MOTHER!

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

GAVE BUSINESS TALKS BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

Several interesting business talks were given at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel when the business methods committee, under the direction of Charles A. Saxton, put on an interesting program. Mr. Saxton was assisted in the program by various members of the club who spoke on subjects under the general head of Relations Between Employer and Employe.

Eben Learned was the first to discuss the subject, he reading an abstract of an article written by a Swiss manufacturer regarding the application of self criticism, according to the Rotary code of ethics.

James L. Case spoke of the welfare of the employe as a primary interest of the employer. He touched on the encouragement of thrift, group insurance, recreation and a number of other methods of caring for the welfare of the employe.

The question assigned to Flint Brayton was "It is wrong not to promote an employe to a position that offers more opportunity, even though it is difficult to fill his old position." Mr. Brayton stressed the importance of advancing men in position as a means of fairness to the employe and a means of keeping him satisfied.

The resolution that: It is wrong to pay the employe less than the standard wage even though there is an excess of labor in that line, was argued from the affirmative and negative sides, A. E. Payson taking the affirmative and Walter E. Turner the negative. Mr. Payson argued that paying the standard market price for labor kept the employe satisfied, made him a better worker, a better consumer of manufactured products and a better asset to the community. Mr. Turner's argument was that wages might be cut if keen competition demanded it and that majority of employes regarded a decrease in wages much more profitable than slack work at the standard wage.

The program was closed by a talk by Albert E. Van Wagenen regarding friendly relationship between employer and employe. Mr. Van Wagenen cited the case of a Connecticut manufacturing plant that was promoting this idea to the fullest extent and was reaping large benefits.

At the business session at which President Spear presided, and Flint Brayton acted as song leader, the club voted $50 to the Bulletin fund for the LaFlamme boy. Secretary Jewett reported that at last Wednesday's meeting there was a 100 percent attendance, the first in a number of years.

The announcement of the annual meeting of the United Workers was made and also an announcement of the meeting of the Boy Scout council.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

SENATOR HEFLIN ABSENT AS HIS PARTY DESERTS HIM

Trammell of Florida Was the Only Democratic Senator to Sustain the Senator From Alabama—Senator Moses Expressed Surprise at the Abject Surrender of the Alabaman—Heflin Gave Notice That He Will Continue His Attacks on the Roman Catholic "Political Machine" and the Governor of New York—Mayor of Montgomery, Ala., Denounces Heflin.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Accepting the challenge hurled at them yesterday by Senator Heflin, of Alabama, democrats of the senate today with but a single dissenting voice expressed their confidence in Robinson, of Arkansas, both as their leader and as a member of the special Mexican committee.

The vote was 34 to 1 and came after nearly an hour of debate during which three senators from the south insisted that the conference action should not be interpretative of a decision in any way on the questions involved in the row between Heflin and Robinson over the Catholic church and Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York.

The Alabama senator who absented himself from the party gathering was alternately defiant and conciliatory. Immediately after the conference broke up he declared that it was "in bad taste and improper" to bring up a vote of confidence in the party leader in his absence.

Subsequently on the floor of the senate, Heflin gave notice that he would continue his attacks on the Roman Catholic "political machine" and the New York governor, but explained that the party conference had taken the precise action which he would have expected it to take.

"I endorse his (Robinson's) leadership myself, in the main," he said. "I differ from him on some things. I could not expect them to remove him. But it was a sort of whitewash arrangement; they expressed confidence in him and were willing for him to remain on the committee."

The democrats refrained from locking horns again with the portly senator from Alabama, but for the first time a voice was raised from the republican side. It was that of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire.

"I am surprised," said Moses, "to confront the complete and abject surrender which the senator from Alabama has made since yesterday afternoon when he breathed out fire and slaughter here, defied the leader of his party, bared his breast to the barbs of any ecclesiastical combination which might be brought together, admitted his willingness to submit himself to the dagger or the poison cup and now this morning recants everything."

"I have recanted nothing," Heflin protested. "When the senator from New Hampshire says I have recanted he stated that which he knows is not true."

Senators who stood out in the democratic conference against even having it appear that the conference went on record on the merits of the controversy were Simmons, of North Carolina; Harris, of Georgia, and Trammel, of Florida. It was Trammell who cast the single vote against the resolution of confidence.

Senator Neely, of West Virginia, the other absentee, said he did not arrive in town until just before the conference and therefore did not have an opportunity to attend.

In calling the conference to order, Senator Robinson stated its purpose and said that in addition to the notice he had given to Heflin on the floor yesterday that it would be held, he had written him a personal note advising him of the call and what was to be taken up.

Immediately after the conference Heflin explained to newspaper correspondents that after the flare-up on the floor yesterday, Senators Overman, of North Carolina, and Tyson, of Tennessee, had obtained his promise not to press for the removal of Robinson as leader and not to attend the conference.

Subsequently, Tyson in the presence of Heflin, told the correspondents that he had not requested the Alabaman to remain away from the conference and the latter agreed that this was the case; that they merely had advised him not to push his dispute with Robinson.

On the floor of the senate, Heflin explained that he had made this promise to the senators and explained further that he had failed to "catch" Senator Robinson's notification yesterday on the floor and has assumed from a previous conversation with the leader that the conference was one to take up the merchant marine bill. Consequently, he said, he did not attend as he had slept late after his vigorous exertions of yesterday.

The Alabaman said that before he left his apartment his secretary called him and told him he had a notice of the conference, but did not tell him what was in the note from Robinson.

"It was not until I got in this chamber that I found out what the contents of the note was," Heflin declared, amid laughter.

The Alabaman told the senate that everyone outside of the senate whom he had talked had told him they thought Robinson's attack was "outrageous and uncalled for."

Senator Robinson came into the chamber some time after Heflin began his remarks. The leader took his accustomed place and sat facing the Alabaman, who said that the Arkansan had "eulogized the Catholics to the skies" and the while "almost had tears in his eyes."

"I do not object to him eulogizing the Catholics," Heflin continued. "Some of them are worthy of eulogy and I have not assailed one of them who served his country faithfully. I am not talking about Catholics or other days. I am talking about the deadly machine of Roman Catholicism. The political machine of my day. It is creeping up in this government surely, slowly, certainly. It is getting into every department in Washington."

Shouting almost at the top of his voice, the Alabaman senator declared that those who took advantage of his absence from the conference to attack him were "cowards" who would "not dare to get up here and face me here on the floor."

"It will be a sad day for the democratic party," he continued, "when it takes up with Tammany and Al Smith, a wet, a nullifier, a Tammyanite and a Roman Catholic."

Moses interjected that Smith was surely to be the nominee of the democratic party, but Heflin emphatically denied that this was so.

Finally, Senator Heflin withdrew his threat to move for the discharge of Robinson from the special Mexican committee and the democratic leader laughed heartily.

INVITATION TO ROBINSON TO VISIT MONTGOMERY, ALA.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 19.—(AP)—W. A. Gunter, Jr., mayor of Montgomery, today sent the following telegram to Senator Joseph T. Robinson, democratic leader in the United States senate:

"As mayor of the capital city of Alabama, I speak not only for the people of Montgomery, but for the majority of the people of Alabama when I request you to visit Montgomery at some early date as the guest of the city and the people of Alabama and speak to our people. We are deeply humiliated that the good name of Alabama should be besmirched by the false imputations of Senator Heflin, who so unjustly brings disrepute upon the good name of our state and of our people."

Mayor Gunter's telegram was inspired by press reports of the heated colloquy between Senators Heflin and Robinson on the floor of the senate yesterday.

LACK OF FUEL DEFEATED RECORD ENDURANCE FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19—(AP)—An exhausted fuel supply today forced Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, British aviator, and Lieut. George R. Pond, U. S. N., to earth after two days and nights aloft in the monoplane "Spirit of California" had brought them within striking distance of a new world's endurance flight record.

The airmen landed with empty gasoline tanks at Mills field here at 10:16 a. m., they had been in the air fifty hours and seven minutes.

By prolonging the flight three hours and 15 minutes the fliers could have established a new world mark.

The present record of 52 hours 22 minutes and 31 seconds is held in Germany and must be exceeded by one hour to be broken officially.

Before the big Fokker plane was brought down her three engines had burned up 1,535 gallons of gasoline loaded aboard prior to the take-off at 8:03 a. m. Tuesday.

HARTFORD, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Prohibition has brought the end of the day after pay day bugbear in the building trades, the chief cause of the inconvenient Saturday pay day and since prohibition there has been a notable proficiency shown in all lines of work, according to the report of Frank E. Carroll, secretary of the Hartford Open Shop Building Trades' Exchange, presented at the 14th annual meeting of that organization at the Hartford club tonight. In introducing his discussion of the results of prohibition, Mr. Carroll's report said:

"In discussing present labor conditions and standards and in view of the increasing agitation relative to national legislation that may affect what is commonly called 'prohibition law' it appears to be an opportune time to arouse interest in these relative matters regardless of whether you agree or disagree with our conclusions."

CONNECTICUT TAX ON BUSES ATTACKED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—The Connecticut tax of one cent a mile on buses engaged in interstate business was attacked today in the supreme court as unconstitutional by the interstate Buses corporation. Counsel for that company explained it was engaged exclusively in interstate business and insisted that the mileage tax was an unlawful discrimination because it was not imposed upon companies doing business entirely within the state.

Questions by the court brought out that intra-state bus operators were required to pay a tax of three per cent on their gross earnings which was not imposed on interstate companies. Members of the court expressed their inability in the absence of statistics to the contrary to see that the different method adopted by the state for taxing interstate and intra-state companies constituted an unlawful discrimination.

Four Dead From Drug Taken As Medicine

Father, Mother and Their Two Sons Were Victims of Cough Cure.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The bodies of James Potter, 46, his wife Lulu, 43, and their two sons, James, Jr., 16, and Robert, 14, lay in a morgue here tonight awaiting arrival of relatives who will take them back to Steubenville, Ohio, the city which the family left last Thanksgiving day to come to Cleveland in an effort to recoup their fortune.

All four were victims of a deadly drug taken in the form of cough medicine last night. Police announced that 13 capsules of the drug had been found in the medicine chest at the Potter home. City chemists reported that the drug produces almost instant death.

Death of the four brought to a close a fight against circumstances which saw the collapse of a fortune estimated at one million dollars and a struggle to regain financial success.

Potter was to have been arraigned next Saturday on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses at Steubenville.

Fifteen years ago Potter resigned as cashier of a Steubenville bank after it was reported he had made a fortune in oil. Success smiled on him and his wealth grew. His every undertaking was profitable until he rated as a millionaire. Then the wheel of fortune stopped. Investments in West Virginia coal fields wiped out almost his entire fortune, when he failed to get railroad connections for his mines.

With his small remaining capital, he entered the real estate business, but in this he did not succeed, and he was indicted for obtaining $500 under false pretenses, in connection with a land deal.

The indictment was returned after he had come to Cleveland, rented a spacious home and opened a rooming house. Last night the family had as guests five of their roomers. After dinner Potter took his wife for a walk. Late in the evening the family gathered in the living room and a short time later Mrs. Maude Hohman, the housekeeper, heard a scream. Mrs. Hohman found James dying. "Daddy has given us cough medicine and I feel it coming on" she moaned. As she entered the boy's bedroom she found Potter dead and Mrs. Potter working over Robert. "It was medicine," Mrs. Potter exclaimed as she too fell dead.

Coroner A. P. Hammond said no autopsy would be conducted as investigation had revealed all four deaths were caused by poisoning.

$10,000 REWARD FOR RETURN OF MISS FRANCES SMITH

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A reward of $10,000 was offered today by St. John Smith, New York broker, for the return alive of his daughter, Frances St. John Smith. The Smith college freshman disappeared on January 13. Mr. Smith had previously offered $1,000 for information leading to the discovery of her whereabouts.

While state, local and college authorities and detectives employed by Mr. Smith continued their search for the girl and looked into the daily crop of reports that someone resembling her had been seen in various places, her mother gave the press a direct appeal to her daughter to communicate with her.

"Frances, my darling," she wrote, "please come to father and me or send word to us at the Hotel Northampton or if it is nearer at number 129. We long for the happiness of having you back and we need you and miss you so. Dearest love, Mother."

State Detective Joseph Daley in charge of the search, said today that he still held to the belief that the girl had drowned herself in the Connecticut river.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Sweeping out of overcast skies a line squall, nearing the proportions of a tornado cut a path through southern Ohio today, leaving one dead and many injured. Property damage was estimated at $800,000.

Homes and school houses at Lindenwald, Ohio, felt the fury of the high wind. Two school children were among the injured.

PRINCIPALS IN DIVORCE KISSED AND EMBRACED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—(AP)—In a court hearing that began and ended with the principals in the divorce suit kissing and embracing, Mrs. Mary Ball today was awarded $150 a month temporary alimony from Thomas Ball, once a prominent attorney, but now said to be broken in both health and purse.

The divorce suit filed by Ball attracted attention recently when Mrs. Ball filed an answer in which she accused his sisters, Mrs. Alfred I. Dupont, wife of a multi-millionaire member of the powder manufacturing family, and Mrs. Elsie Ball Wright, of alienating her husband's affections. Mrs. Ball said then she would file a $1,000,000 suit against the two sisters.

At the opening of the alimony hearing today, Ball walked to the corner where his wife sat and, taking her into his arms, kissed her.

A few minutes later on the witness stand, Mrs. Ball said:

"Tommy told me just a moment ago that he loved me. Don't you love me, Tommy?"

"Don't, don't, Mary," said Ball and broke into tears.

At the close of the proceedings, Mrs. Ball rushed into her husband's arms and they kissed.

The judge, in awarding the alimony and $250 attorneys' fees, said he was mystified by the entire proceedure.

Ball in his divorce suit accused his wife of nagging him and running him into debt at a time when he was in a hospital due to injuries received in an automobile wreck. His attorneys declared today he was living on the charity of friends.

SENATE DECLARES SEAT OF SMITH OF ILLINOIS VACANT

Voted 56 to 27 Against Giving Smith the Oath of Office — Exclusion Was Based Upon Smith's Acceptance of More Than $200,000 in Campaign Contributions to His Primary Fund by Officials of Illinois Public Utilities Corporations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—The senate late today declared vacant the seat to which the people of Illinois elected Frank L. Smith.

By a vote of 62 to 23—more than a two thirds majority—his credentials were declared to be tainted with "fraud and corruption" and it was decreed that he was not entitled to a seat.

Before finally barring its doors against the former chairman of the Illinois commerce commission on account of contributions to and expenditures in his primary campaign in 1926, the senate voted, 56 to 27, against giving him the oath of office.

This was the second time this session that the oath had been denied and by excluding Smith without first permitting him to take the oath, the senate established a precedent in a case unique in its more than a century of history.

Only the staunchest members of the republican old guard stuck to Smith's cause to the finish. They were joined by two democrats, one from the south, the fiery Blease of South Carolina, and one from the northwest, Steck, of Iowa.

Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader and Jones, of Washington, the majority "whip," were among the 21 republicans who joined forces with 39 democrats and the one farmer-labor, Shipstead, of Minnesota, in excluding the Illinois republican senator-elect.

By the language of its resolution declaring that "a vacancy exists in the representation of the state of Illinois in the United States senate," senators said the senate put Governor Small on notice that it was ready to consider the credentials of an appointee to fill the vacancy.

Some of the leading constitutional lawyers among the senators declared that this action of the senate vitiated the Illinois election and that the governor could appoint forthwith. Legal advisers of Smith disputed this contention, however, holding that Governor Small could not act until Smith formally tendered his resignation.

While the senator-elect has made no formal pronouncement as to his future course, intimate friends have stated time and again that he would not resign, but would wait until the convening of the seventy-first congress in December, 1929, and then present his credentials again and ask for a seat. Meantime, one third of the present senate will be up for reelection.

The exclusion of Smith was based primarily upon his acceptance at the time he still was chairman of the Illinois commission of more than $200,000 in campaign contributions to his primary fund by Samuel Insull, of Chicago, and othe officials of Illinois public utilities, some of whom were not even residents of that state.

These contributions as disclosed by the investigation by the Reed slush fund committee as well as expenditures totalling more than $450,000 were recited in the resolution which then declared that the acceptance and expenditure of such sums were "contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the dignit yand honor of the senate, dangerous to the perpetuity of free government."

This was the precise language which the senate approved several years ago when it confirmed Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, in his right to a senate seat from which he subsequently resigned after his colleague, Senator Townsend, who led the fight for him in the senate, had been defeated at the polls.

MURDERED WOMAN THEY BELIEVED TO BE A WITCH

SZEGEDIN, Hungary, Jan. 19—(AP)—Belief in witches by four men accused of murder was given as the reason for reversal today by the superior court of their conviction.

The accused men had a sick friend who told them his illness was due to the visits of a beggar woman who was a witch and cast an evil spell over him. While the invalid related his tale the old woman entered his sick room, begging for alms.

When the aged crone was unable to answer questions the four men accepted the story that she was a witch and hacked her to death.

In summing up, the judge of the superior court said, "The murderers acted under an irresistable impulse as the invalid's statement impelled them to believe in the presence of a witch. Moreover, not only these statements but all attendant circumstances pointed to the presence of a witch.

DO YOU KNOW

The bird known as the dodo has been extinct for nearly two hundred and fifty years. In size it was a little bigger than a turkey, and its flesh was equally good to eat. It was incapable of real flights, owing to the fact that wings were improperly developed, so that it was soon caught and eaten out of existence.

Agar-agar is the name of a gelatinous substance obtained from Ceylon moss and similar seaweeds. The name is of Malay origin. Agar-agar is used in soups and jellies, and in the artificial cultivation of bacteria. It is also used in the Orient as a size and to render silk and paper transparent.

A diver is not simply "dropped overboard" to fall almost like a stone to the bottom of the sea. He is lowered very carefully at a rate—averaging about two feet a minute—that allows the pumps to supply the proper air pressure. Otherwise he would probably suffer great pain, with bleeding at the eyes, nose and ears. The rate at which he is withdrawn from the water is slower still.

Warns Girls of Baldness

That the present generation of girls will go bald was the warning uttered by Dr. Leonard Williams in a recent lecture in London, according to the New York Times. He attributes the danger to shingled hair and tight hats. To keep your hair and scalp healthy, shampoo frequently with Packer's Tar Soap—hair specialists' favorite shampoo for 35 years. It is antiseptic, tonic, stimulating. Get Packer's at any drug or department store.

He used to be such a manly looking fellow with good features and a fine figure, but now his meagre flesh hardly covers his bones—He is absolutely skinny.

Pretty tough on John to have his friends talking about him that way, but the health resorts and the Mountains are populated with just such John's who kept getting thinner and thinner without trying to help themselves.

DANIELSON

PLAINFIELD HORSE RUNS DOWN DANIELSON AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 19.—Abel Bernier loked at a horse, unexpectedly, last night, and the horse looked at Abel, but didn't see him. It was a closeup view too. That this may be better understood, it is necessary to explain that Abel, who is quite a joker on his own account, left Danielson to see a basketball game at Plainfield. He was a member of a party that motored down in a car driven by Gerald Boulaine, an open car.

Down in Plainfield street the Boulaine car was proceeding along nicely enough when a man driving a horse-drawn rig hove in sight. This driver, who it afterwards was established, was Jacob Monty, of Plainfield, started to swing his charger into a side street with one of those long, graceful sweeping curves that men make when driving a steed to a light hitch. Mr. Boulaine slowed right down to what might be termed a walk to avoid a collision, but it didn't do him any good. There was a crash. That's when Abel saw the horse. The horse very suddenly and unceremoniously poked his head right into the car and looked Abel right in the eyes. Abel, in great surprise, stared back at the horse. "Can't be a hold-up," mused Abel, "don't seem to answer the description of such things." You see, up to this time Abel hadn't seen the horse, nor Mr. Monty nor any of the incidents leading up to the horse getting his head inside the car.

Then Abel, sensing the joke, winked at the horse, but the horse paid absolutely no heed to this friendly gesture. "I got an idea right there," said Abel today, and tried it out. "I passed my hand back and forth before the horse's eyes and he didn't even blink. 'You said it,' I said to myself—it's a blind horse."

But that didn't help Mr. Monty any. A state officer came down from the Danielson barracks and ordered Mr. Monty to appear in court this morning, which he did and was fined $10 and costs. It was a warning that drivers of horses should not run over automobiles. It might be mentioned that Mr. Monty was driving without a light on his vehicle, and that, of course, is against the law in the night season. It also should go into the record that Abel was down to Plainfield this morning to appear as a witness in the court proceedings closing the case.

FIRST ISSUE OF B. & L. SHARES MATURE APRIL 1ST

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 19.—After a little more than a dozen years of paying monthly charges on the first issue of shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association, holders of them will cash in April 1, when the shares come to maturity. Retirement of these shares will involve the paying out of $50,000, if all the holders of them want the cash. If they do not, they will be issued certificates of credit bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent., or they may reinvest the money from the matured shares in a new issue of shares to be made in April. After April 1, series of shares will mature every six months for a number of years.

Newly elected officers of the association for 1928 are: President, A. M. Thompson; vice president, Walter Anderson, Andrew E. Meech, D. Fred Kenworthy, Louis E. Young; secretary, Clifford H. Two other recent bequests that will be received by the home in the near future are from the estate of Mrs. Julia Henry ($3,500), and from the estate of Adelaide E. Stalt ($1,000).

During the past year a considerable amount of repair work has been done at the home, which is in very good condition.

This is a week of special activity for members of the Danielson Girls' club, and they will round it out Friday evening with a meeting at which roses are to be made for use at a ball to be given later in the winter.

Next Sunday afternoon Miss May Howard, president of the State League of Girls' clubs, is coming here to meet with the members of the club at a Get Together tea to be held in the club rooms.

At the meeting of the club on Tuesday evening of this week Miss Annie Gates presented the club president, Mrs. Bertha Garragher, with a beautiful leather pocketbook. A supper of chicken salad, biscuits, coffee, fruit dessert and cake was served.

Those in the cast were Miss Wanda Neljadlik, Emily Chrabus, Laetitia Halle, Nellie Meunier, Blanche Caron, Rose Gaudette, Theresa Orrell, Celinda Davis, Veronica Grzeslak, Jennie Johnson, Helen Billings, Antoinette LaBonte and Fay Welsh. The committee in charge for the evening was made up of Miss Annie Gates, Mrs. Eva Bodo, Miss Justine Longon and Miss Rose Gaudette.

Notices sent out earlier in the week to delinquent personal taxpayers, these notices giving them five days to pay, if they would avoid summary action, with the necessity of appearing in court, are having their effect. Numbers of the overdue tax payments came in today, and a rush to pay as the time limit expires toward the week-end.

One man who received a five-day notice, sent his reply today. In effect he tells the collector to go chase dodo birds, or otherwise disport himself.

Says he: "Mr. Collector: If my name is on your books, please remove it. I own nothing. I know nothing, and don't want to know nothing concerning the town of Killingly or the borough of Danielson."

And that's that.

The largest and most successful of the series of weekly whists arranged by groups of St. James' parish was held last night in St. John's and adjoining halls with 86 tables in play. This week's group of managers and promoters represented the families living on South street and easterly to the Assawaga river. In attendance and enthusiasm, this whist topped all of the others, which in each instance have been very successful. The workers were congratulated on their achievement. The committee of last night's whist was made up of Mrs. George J. Heneault, Mrs. Lucien Lambert, Mrs. Octave Plantier, Mrs. Octave Caron, Mrs. John Casey. Also assisting in arranging the event were Mrs. Hector Bernier, Mrs. Dollard Grennon.

At whist, first honors for the ladies went to Mrs. Hector Bernier, second to Mrs. Charles Barbeau, third to Mrs. Julian Benac. For the men, Gregory Boucher won first honors, second went to Aime Boucher and third to Albert Redman.

Since leaving Danielson, December 1 they have toured much of Florida, jeaning while making their headquarters at Leland, which they liked very much.

Country highways are in a terrible condition just now and there isn't any thing to be done about it. Alternate thawing and freezing weather with the traffic they are now subjected to, have cut them up so that they are ribbed and rutted from gutter to gutter. They offer only discomfort to motorists.

Repairs were being made today to the north gates at the Main street crossing, the slipping of a chain having put this pair of gates out of use during the current week.

Anent what was said this morning in this column relative to Adams White, first treasurer of the Windham County National bank, and the shears that he had as an only weapon of defence in case of attack while he was keeping the bank's receipts in his bedroom in Brooklyn more than a century ago, Francis E. Storer, present treasurer of the institution, said this afternoon that the bank still has the shears and uses them for cutting currency. They are about 18 inches in length.

"I am willing to sell my property for the amount it is assessed for" writes a Putnam citizen to a newspaper of that city, complaining about the revaluation recently completed. It is just this thing that Killingly is going to try to guard against when its revaluation is made, for it is all important that it should be avoided.

CREOMULSION

FOR THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Mother! Do You Know the Danger of that Cough or Cold?

Mother, if the youngsters play hard and "take cold," if for any of a dozen other reasons they get "sick with a cold," stop it as fast as you can. Don't let it hang on. Colds that stay and stay, too often lead into pneumonia or flu or chronic bronchial trouble. Too often a cold leads into a fatal complication.

If any of your youngsters develop a cough or a cold that hangs on, use sensible precautions immediately and give them Creomulsion. Help their strong, youthful bodies to fight coughs and colds with Creomulsion. It is pleasant, easy to take.

Creomulsion is an old remedy now. Millions know its merits and like it. We guarantee that it will relieve stubborn coughs and colds, if you follow directions, or we'll refund your money.

SMITH'S EXCLUSION

Being in control of the situation the United States senate has declared the seat of Senator-elect Smith of Illinois vacant and thereby established a precedent. It has overridden the desires of the voters of that state and the opinion of the supreme court of Illinois which held Smith to have been legally elected, and in doing so has deprived Illinois of one of the representatives in the senate to which it is entitled under the provisions of the Constitution. The senate has thrown to the wind the rights of Illinois. Whatever may be thought of the choice for senator, or such circumstances as have been referred to in connection with his election, it is perfectly evident that he was elected by the people who had a right to elect him and who knew all the conditions.

Now arises the question as to what will follow concerning the vacancy. It is not the disposition of Colonel Smith to resign, but to wait until the next congress and press his claim for a seat. Whether, as claimed, the action of the senate amounts to a nullification of the election and no resignation is required may require some time to determine. That being the case the governor of Illinois might appoint to fill the vacancy, but it is to be remembered that the senate refused a seat to the last appointment made by Governor Small, that appointment having been Colonel Smith for the purpose of filling out the unexpired term of Senator McKinley.

The situation is not one that will be regarded with pleasure by the people of Illinois, and the governor cannot be expected to have any faith in what the senate would do with another appointment, even if he should consider the senatorship vacant and be disposed to make an appointment. If there has been uncertainty about what would be done up to now there must be even more as to what the future course will be. In the meantime Illinois, through no fault on its part, is being deprived of representation.

OUTLAW POISON GAS

The discussion this week at Brussels concerning what might be done in the way of safeguarding the noncombatants against the effects of a gas attack in case of chemical warfare failed to make any constructive progress. It showed that there are many interested, many desirous of providing some means of protection, but an evident recognition of the fact that the problem was too great to even give hope that it might be accomplished.

There was the idea advanced of constructing cellars suggested possibly by the cellars which are built in the tornado regions of the west, where the people could go in case of a gas attack, but it was quickly realized what a gigantic task would be involved in constructing accommodations for the people of a large city under such a plan.

Another plan advanced was the provision of gas masks for each and every one which could be adjusted at the first warning. This seemed plausible until it was learned that it is necessary to have the masks fit each individual, that they must be kept in perfect order, that the chemicals have to be replenished frequently and there must be no moisture whatever in them if they are to do what is expected of them. Masks which fit today might be entirely inadequate a year from now, especially those for growing children and those which are neglected, and it can be appreciated what neglect could be expected in regard to such equipment.

The conference got no encouragement out of anything that was suggested for its consideration. It must, however, have been convinced, as well as those who considered the report of its deliberations, that the greater the consideration given to the horrors and possibilities of gas warfare the greater the need for the nations to get together and place a ban upon it. One hates to contemplate what might happen should the nations go in for a greater development of poison gas as an implement of war. The best solution lies in prevention and that means the outlawing of poison gas if in fact it isn't possible to go a little further and outlaw war.

THE NEW SHIP BILL

From the action which has been taken in the senate upon the Jones bill, it would appear that that body was determined to have a merchant marine and vessels for national defense at any cost. It is important that we should have ships under our own flag to carry our goods and it is important that there should be such ships to be had in case of trouble, but it has never been considered desirable for the government to go into the shipping business.

As the result of the war the country finds itself in possession of a lot of ships that it would like to get rid of, ships which are operating in competition with private capital, ships which are becoming less valuable each year and ships which it has been felt should be sold as quickly as possible. In spite of this demand and the desire to get the shipping into private hands where it belongs it has not been accomplished.

In his recent message to congress the president urged speedy action in selling the ships to private capital and spoke against the putting of more money into new merchant ships, and yet regardless of this, and the fact that deliberations are underway between shippers and the shipping board looking to such an end, the senate has gone on record as favoring the construction of merchant vessels and the maintenance of a merchant marine indefinitely, with no chance of disposing of the ships unless the board is unanimous for it.

Chairman Jones of the senate commerce committee says we will have to depend upon foreign ships for our transportation unless this is done. Perhaps it would be well to give some thought to the help that would be derived through a revision of our navigation laws whereby American ship owners would find it possible to compete with foreign owners. Private capital in this country understands the handicap which has been thrown about ship owners here because of our laws but if that handicap should be removed there would be a greater incentive for building and operating merchants ships under our flag.

STARTING THE CONFERENCE

Organization of the Pan-American congress at Havana appears to be getting under way promptly and with the evident desire on the part of the delegates to facilitate progress.

Thus far the reaction there to the president's address has been very favorable and the part which has been taken by Mr. Hughes in showing this country agreeable to open discussions of the matter before the conference has made a good impression. When the question as to procedure was raised by the delegate from Argentina that the committee and main sessions be open it was immediately seconded by Mr. Hughes. There were those who had gotten the impression that the United States not only did not favor such action but that it would oppose it. However much the feeling may have been held that better progress and results would be gained through closed sessions this country did not propose to insist upon it and thereby create a wrong idea among the representatives of the other republics, and it was certainly not willing to bolster up such suspicions as some of the delegates may have accumulated from unknown sources relative to our efforts to force the conference to comply with its views.

The policy of good will which the president set forth doesn't mean that we may not always be able to agree with certain suggestions that are advanced but action thus far taken plainly indicates that we are willing to do our part in dealing with the problems and desire to make any and all concessions that are within the bounds of reason. It is an attitude that cannot fail to have the best possible effect upon the deliberations if it is generally indulged in.

THE RADIO COMMISSION

When the radio commission was authorized and named it was realized that it faced no easy task. It was desirous, however, that it should be started on its way in order that the detrimental effects of a future delay might be eliminated as far as possible. The need of making a beginning was apparent even though it could not be assured from the start that perfection would be obtained.

The commission was named and has been at work. There are evidences of the good work that has been accomplished. Needless to say it has not done all that was hoped but it has encountered plenty of the snarls that were anticipated. In the endeavor to clear up some of the troubles others have been encountered, and as time goes on there are additional demands for allocations.

Just now it is a question as to what congress is going to do about the commission, whether it is going to upset the existing arrangement, refuse to ratify the appointments that have been made and throw all that has been done into the discard. While congressional committees are deliberating as to what will be done the commission is disposed to sit tight and await results. Additional changes which were scheduled to be put into operation the first of next month have been deferred for a month, for the commission has no desire to set in motion new changes unless it is going to be kept in power and be shown enough confidence to continue with the work. The financing of the commission must be provided for if it is to be continued and yet the situation doesn't appear to have been reached where such a commission can as yet be regarded as having completed its work and be discharged.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: This has been a winter without a backbone.

Even if it is claimed that there is an available auto fuel supply for centuries, it doesn't mean that the autoist's pocketbook is going to be helped by wasting it.

President Coolidge was the right man to give the Pan-American conference a good start and he has left an excellent delegation to bring about a good finish.

With railroads slashing rates as much as twenty cent in New Jersey to compete with the busses, the next move will probably be to buy the busses and run them themselves.

If you have any pet views explanatory of January, 1928, weather put them on record so there will be something to crow about when your predictions for the rest of the winter are fulfilled.

It looks as if the autoists were using the pedestrians as targets when it is declared that nine out of ten killed last week were people afoot, but possibly the fault didn't all rest with the auto drivers.

THE TRUTH OF DEVOTION

"The glory in it!" declared the fourth lady at the porch bridge party as she successfully engineered a grand slam. "Husbands, I mean. The most irritating habit they have without doubt is that of invariably telling their wives the truth about themselves as they see it.

"Any clever man who puts his mind on it is very well aware that the truth is precisely what a woman doesn't want. She may know quite definitely that her mouth is too large, her nose crooked and her hair stringy, but how she does enjoy having some man bend over her and murmur in a buttery voice, 'Tonight you are like a spring breeze over a bank of violets.' It gives her the illusion of wafting along in delicate chiffons, a lovely, beguiling creature. But no husband would humor her that way—his verbal contribution would be a plea to go get a decent hair curl or to put some powder on her shiny nose.

"They delight in bringing one to earth with a jolt. Now, it always sounds delightful to me to hear a woman described as a frail little creature. I adore that word frail and since I have lost so much weight I have secretly felt that, perhaps I might lay claim to the adjective. When I read a description of Lindbergh's 'frail little mother' I decided to make an experiment. I had on a bright yellow morning dress with stockings and slippers to match and I leaned up against the wall as droopingly as possible and got Jim's attention.

"'Dear,' I began in my most delicately appealing voice, 'do I look frail?' Jim regarded me over the edge of his paper speculatively for a few seconds, evidently trying to put his entire mind to it. Then, in low, well-controlled tones, he said, 'Why, to tell you the truth, you look to me exactly like a banana!'

"All husbands have been greatly upset by the discovery that if they walked behind their wives and regarded them in a detached fashion they were absolutely unable to tell whether they were 16 or 40. I don't know why this should upset them so, but it does.

"No married man exists who has not asked his wife in dubious tones whether she doesn't honestly think that skirt is too short for a woman of her age and whether she doesn't really feel it is silly to comb her brown hair down over the gray hair. The gray is there, isn't it, no matter whether it is covered up or not and why, sezze, why in the name of common sense should she try to delude herself, to say nothing of the public?

"As he scowls at the slight wrinkle at the neck of his coat and shakes his manly form down into the garment more securely he ads for good measure that to a grown-up person of sense mere looks don't matter so much, and as for him he'd rather a woman bent her mind to the real serious affairs of life than waste hours at beauty parlors. And, by the way, why not ask the Parmers over for bridge? Cute little trick, that Mrs. Parmer, doesn't she think? Peachy complexion and such taste in clothes, by Jove.

"Maybe some wife, tired of being in the background, cuts loose at a party and is a real success. Does her husband pat her on the back, tell her she is some girl and that he is proud of the attention she drew?

"'Sarah,' he begins the minute the door of their car slams behind them, 'what in the name of reason came over you tonight? I never was so embarrassed and uncomfortable as I was tonight seeing you make such a jackass of yourself!

"'I don't care if I did rave, as you say, over Elsie Jones' being the belle of the ball at the party before this, that's entirely different, and she can do those things and get away with them, but it's about as natural for you to act that way as for an elephant to use a crochet hook.'

"By this time Sarah, who has really made a hit, is all flattened out, and sinks back into the quicksands of kitchen sink, darning basket and dinner-to-relatives, served with ginger ale. If she only knew that Elsie Jones' husband——"

"Huh," said the lady who had long ago dealt and was tired of waiting. "I can think of a lot of laws good for husbands, but, outside of jail, I'd like to see anybody enforce 'em! 'Syour bid!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Late C. E. Chandler's Patriot Ancestor

Mr. Editor: The following appears on the records of the Conn. society, S. A. R., and may be of interest to the later generation of patriots:

In re Solomon Cleaviand, the patriot ancestor of the late Charles E. Chandler, a descendant tells the following story: "His company was on the northern frontier and was once three days without rations. They finally came upon a cornfield in which there was left a single pumpkin. This they stewed in an old crock, and after providing those with sticks who had no jackknives they were marched in single file past the pumpkin stew, taking each a mouthful. There proved to be enough to go around three times."

IN THE DAYS NEWS

PARA, BRAZIL.

Para state, Brazil, formerly the world's greatest rubber producing area, may regain its importance in the commercial rubber field if plantation areas purchased by American capital are developed," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Para is the natural home of Para rubber. For more than a century rubber has been its chief commodity. Its forests abound in rubber trees that freely supply latex, the milk-white juice of their inner bark, from which rubber is coagulated by evaporation.

"Unfortunately for Para the customs officials were not on the alert in 1876. Seeds were shipped out of the state, they sprouted in London, and were transported to Asia and the East Indies where for 15 years these abducted children and their off-spring have outproduced their Brazilian parents.

"While the eastern plantations were scientifically developed and production increased rapidly, Para lost its supremacy in the rubber world. The rubber collectors continued to use crude methods of collecting latex from the wild trees of the forests.

"The whole state, like its rubber industry, awaits development. The Portuguese reached Para five years before the Pilgrims landed in New England. Much of its area, which is more than three times that of Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York combined, is still a jungle wilderness.

"There is a small area of rough mountain region in the north and a comparatively small acreage of open pasture land along the Atlantic coast where the Brazilians have some success in cattle raising.

"Roads are almost unknown in the state. Even in Para City, the capital and only large city in the state, many of its streets abruptly stop at the jungle's edge. One can travel through the jungles for miles by paths of the rubber collectors that lead from tree to tree, but it would be impossible to use four-wheeled vehicles. The natives have met this problem by the use of Para's numerous rivers as highways. The Amazon, which flows through the state for 500 miles, is the Grand Boulevard, and its numerous branches form the side streets that stretch like a huge net to all parts of the state. A railroad, 150 miles long, runs from Para City to Braganca, on the coast.

"Most travelers see Para from the Amazon steamboats. While the Amazon is the main transportation artery in northern Brazil, its banks are almost devoid of human life. The traveler's first stop is Para, the capital, which lies about 75 miles up the Amazon basin from the sea. Approaching the docks, the capital looms up as a concentration point for rubber and other products from the interior. Warehouses on the river front are filled with chunks of rubber shaped like huge hams, cocoa, and Brazil nuts. The air is permeated with the odor of smoky rubber.

Behind these warehouses is a busy city of more than 200,000 inhabitants; Brazilian, French, German, American, Syrian and Portuguese whose language is the most generally spoken. Para is beautiful and modern, with handsome government buildings, theaters and residences of wealthy Brazilians, and spacious parks, which line wide, clean boulevards and streets well-shaded from the tropical sun by lofty palms. Although Para lies but a few degrees below the equator and the climate is hot, it is not unpleasant. Sunstroke is almost unknown to the inhabitants.

"While visiting Para, the uninitiated might imagine other tropical cities like the capital along the Amazon. But that idea is dispelled soon after leaving Para's docks. For hundreds of miles at a time the great river is bordered by palisades of green jungle growth on either shore, only broken here and there by a small clearing where a native and his family are eking out a bare existence raising sweet potatoes for food and collecting rubber to pay for other necessities. And now and then a small village will come into view. These important towns are named—Prainha, Santarem and Obidos—each with but a few thousand inhabitants.

"Many of the forest rubber trees have never been tapped. Wild animals and reptiles roam at will in the jungle darkness, and unfriendly insects make life miserable for human beings who are brave enough to invade their quarters. Along the shores of the river, it is not uncommon to see crocodiles basking in the sun while the boat attendants tell of the diminutive sharp-toothed piranha. This fish is one of the most dreaded of the Amazon. It has been known to bite off the fingers of native paddlers, and the lips of horses and dogs while they were drinking. The tapir is Para's largest wild animal.

"One of Para's drawbacks has been its small population. If the inhabitants were distributed equally over the state, there would not be two to the square mile.

"Many of the inhabitants are natives who have never seen the white man. Along the Tapajos river where the American holdings are reported to be located, there is a race of Mundurucus, swarthy Brazilian Indians. The tribesmen along the river banks who have come in contact with civilization have dropped some of their savage habits, but many of those in the more remote districts are still seeking skulls with which they sometimes make drinking cups by plugging up the eyes, nose and mouth with rubber, ornament their huts. In the latter case they often leave the skin and hair intact.

"The Mundurucus are intelligent compared with many other Brazilian Indian tribes but they still believe that to be prepared for marriage, the prospective groom must be tatooed from head to foot, and that worms are the cause of all illness. The witch doctor, the only capable worm extractor, blows tobacco smoke on the affected part. Then he sucks it and in a few minutes the 'worm' is displayed to the other tribesmen. One explorer is said to have closely observed the 'worm' which was a piece of white root."

Little Talks on Thrift

Doesn't Go Far Enough.

It is unfortunate that in much of the so-called thrift work in this country encouragement has been given only to the saving of money. One cannot, of course, say aught of such advice, excepting only that it does not go far enough.

Abraham Lincoln once said that economy begins with saving money. What he had in mind was the great truth that in thrift the first steps consist of laying aside money, but that those primary practices do not constitute thrift in its entirety.

Let the nation learn the words of Lincoln that "economy begins with saving money," but let us emphasize the fact that Lincoln made use of the word "begin." Saving money is only the beginning of thrift.

Current events emphasize the need of widespread thrift education. There are thousands who have made the start by saving money, but, unfortunately, their thrift education has gone no further. As a result one reads in the papers almost daily of the exposure of individuals who have despoiled the cherished savings that grew in many cases penny by penny through a long term of years. No greater tragedies appear in the columns of the press than many of the stories of those misguided persons whose lifetime accumulations have been swept away.

Judging by the reports in the newspapers from day to day one seems safe in assuming that there is a rising tide of unscrupulous practices based on in sufficient popular understanding of personal economics.

A great public duty confronts us all in putting forth every effort to end these machinations. As much attention should be given to teaching the correct uses of money as is given to the encouragement of saving money. Simply to preach "Save! Save!" is not enough.

Wise spending and prudent investing constitute just as much of the problem of personal economics as successful saving.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

She Knew Him.

Jane, age two, went with her parents to see a Sunday school play, "The Nativity." She showed little interest until the baby came on the scene. Then she smiled broadly. But when the three wise men approached she clapped her hands and laughed aloud for one of them wore a crown. "Ole King Cole," exclaimed Janet.

One On Daddy.

Alice, age five had been taken by her father the day before Christmas to see Santa Claus. When she returned home, her mother was interested in hearing an account of the adventure.

"Did you really see Santa Claus? Did you tell him what you wanted for Christmas?" asked the mother.

"Now, mother," said Alice in a confidential tone, "you and I know very well there is no Santa Claus; but let's not tell daddy, for he still believes there is one. He certainly had lots of fun talking to the Santa Claus at the store."

Saving

It isn't what you get that makes you rich,
It isn't what comes in, but what you save.
Spend all you get—you may not find it hard—
And all your life you'll be a galley-slave.

Perhaps you think you earn more than you get;
It may be that in fact you really do.
But what you get is all that you will have,
And rainy days are sure to come to you.

Perhaps you get so little that it seems
You really are compelled to spend it all,
But think a bit, and maybe you will see
The reason why your income is so small.

Perhaps you are not doing all you can
And your employer feels a little sore;
Just work a little harder for his boss,
And maybe he will have to pay you more.

But anyway, no matter what you get,
Save from it every cent that you can spare.
And you'll be glad to see your savings grow,
Though you may never be a millionaire!

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. Russinger, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

Quick Relief From Rheumatic Pains
New Discovery from France Giving Remarkable Results
A wonderful new kind of treatment, discovered and perfected in France, is producing marvelous results in thousands of even stubborn cases of rheumatism.
This amazing new discovery is the result of the same French chemistry that has given the world the boon of aspirin for the relief of headaches, and radium for the relief of cancer pains.
Rheumatism is due to internal poisons. These poisons are carried by the blood to the muscles and joints, and this new treatment is specially designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons. The results are usually amazing. Tired muscles become vigorous; stiff, agonizing joints become supple and smooth; and soon you actually forget you ever had a pain!
This new treatment is called Dr. Beaupre's Treatment for Rheumatism, and can be had at any good druggist.

He was brought to this city from New London Thursday, having just completed a 6 months jail sentence in the New London jail.

It is alleged that on August 2, McGee entered Mrs. Chioda's store, struck her and took $15 from the cash register. BUREAU CAMPAIGN FOR $3,600 IN MEMBERSHIPS GOES OVER THE TOP

A final day of hard work by the teams in the Merchants bureau campaign Thursday sent the membership drive bounding over the top at the victory dinner at 6.15 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel Thursday night and the successful completion of the work was hailed with rousing cheers.

About 50 of the team members were gathered at the tables in the hotel dining room, while Pete Ethier was at the piano and Secretary Walter H. Pilcher was the song leader. Special entertainment features that went big were supplied by Edward T. Connelly with his stories and songs, a baritone solo by Earl Styers and a duet by Mr. Styers and Mr. Connelly.

When the time for final reports arrived, Chairman Herbert B. Cary called on the different team captains whose reports showed a total for the day of $964 which brought the grand total to $3,445, and this was immediately boosted over the quota of $3,600 when every team captain agreed to underwrite two more subscriptions, which would bring the total to $3,636.

Chairman Cary expressed in the warmest terms his appreciation of the hard work of the team captains and members, which had contributed to the happy result, and he also spoke commendatory words of the assistance that had been given by the hotel, the girls in the chamber of commerce office, the musicians and the newspapers.

Chairman Cary also announced the prize winning team to be Charles I. Smith's Whippet team, which had secured a total of $528 in memberships and prizes were presented to the members of the team, Mr. Smith, Joseph Pysky, Earl Styers and Walter E. Gilbert.

Following brief remarks by President Harold D. Larrabee of the chamber of commerce, the business meeting was turne dover to Abner Schwartz, who called for the report of the nominating committee which was presented by George E. Johnson, chairman. The ticket as nominated was elected with Mr. Schwartz chosen for general chairman, although he tried hard to be excused from further service as head of the organization.

The following were elected: General chairman, Abner Schwartz; vice chairman, J. B. Caron; secretary, Walter H. Pilcher; treasurer, J. Fred Fleming; executive committee, John P. Lyston, G. R. Merithew, C. E. Fitch, Walter E. Gilbert, Burton Young, Frank G. Aubrey, C. Edward Smith.

Others to speak before the evening closed were Mr. MacMillan, who has been director of the campaign and spoke of the great spirit of unanimity and co-operation which has prevailed, and Secretary Pilcher who spoke of Norwich as being a community where there was an unusual spirit of community co-operation and cited as an example of this the fact that the city gas and electric department had supplied the illumination for the Christmas lighting of the streets at no cost to the chamber of commerce in contrast to another place of which Mr. Pilcher spoke where a charge of $700 was made for such service. Mr. Pilcher's remarks also included commendation of the leadership of Chairman Cary, the support given by the newspapers, the co-operation by the captains, the fine work done by Mr. MacMillan, endorsement of the election of Mr. Schwartz as general chairman, and praise for the work of the young women of the office force of the chamber of commerce and of the services of "Pete" Ethier as pianist.

It was announced that the regular Wednesday meetings of the credit bureau would be held and that the meeting next week would be in the evening.

JOINT INSTALLATION BY B'NAI BRITH LODGES

Rose of New England lodge, No. 898, Independent Order of B'nai Brith, and the ladies auxiliary, No. 40, held a banquet and joint installation Sunday evening at Nadelson's Spruce lodge, Pitchville, making the most successful social event the lodges have ever held.

The special guests of the evening included Mayor Milo R. Waters and Mrs. Waters, who have attended every B'Nai Brith banquet held by the Norwich lodge since its organization; Lazarus Schlechter, a prominent New York attorney, and chairman of the intellectual committee of the I. O. B. B.; and Nestor Dreyfus of New London, chairman of the charity committee of the I. O. B. B., and Mrs. Dreyfus. There were also present B'Nai Brith members from Hartford, New London, Willimantic and Westerly.

Streamers of holly, laurel and evergreen, with multi-colored fancy paper caps were used in the attractive decorations of the big dining room and back of the speaker's table was a large six cornered star of David in the Jewish national colors of white and blue, lit by 12 red, white and blue electric lights. The stem of the star was decorated in red, white and blue bunting. The right side of the star was adorned with a large American flag and on the left the lodge's white silk banner with the I. O. B. B. emblem completed the decorations producing a marked artistic and pleasant effect.

After the retiring president, Josiah Greenstein, had invited the company to sing America, the banquet was served, with Alexander Pasnik acting as song leader, while the following menu was enjoyed: Fruit salad, celery, pickles, olives, chicken liver with mushrooms saute, chicken bouillion noodle and mandel, roast stuffed chicken, green peas and carrots, and candied sweet potatoes, preserved peaches, hearts of lettuce, tomatoes, ices, assorted cakes, tea and coffee.

Mr. Schlechter, as installing officer, designated by the I. O. B. B. grand lodge, carried out the novel plan of installing both the officers of the men's lodge and the ladies auxiliary in a body, making this unusually impressive.

The newly elected officers are: Jacob Weschler, president; Oscar Silverman, vice president; Elkin Smith, treasurer; Abraham N. Silverberg, financial and recording secretary; Josiah Greenstein, monitor; Abraham Curland, assistant monitor; Benjamin Goldfarb, warden; Irving Eisenstein, guardian; Max Hanover, first trustee.

The newly elected officers of the Ladies auxiliary are as follows: Mrs. Bettie H. Pasnik, president; Mrs. Augusta W. Curland, vice president; Miss Annie Alexander, recording secretary; Miss Bessie Bruckner, financial secretary; Mrs. Annie Wechsler, treasurer; Mrs. Esther Trachtenberg, mon itress; Mrs. Sadie Silverberg, guardian; Mrs. Tessie Alexander, guide; Mrs. Belle Bruckner, sentinel; Mrs. Betty Schwartz, Mrs. Mary Greenberg, Mrs. Rebecca Trachtenberg, trustees.

After the installation, Toastmaster Greenstein introduced as the first speaker, Mayor Waters, whom he called the beloved Mayor of Norwich, and the entire gathering rose and gave the city's chief executive a rousing greeting.

Mayor Waters in his usual concise and able manner made a short but sincere address in which he lauded the service rendered by the B'Nai Brith members in civic, patriotic and communal activities, carried on by the Norwich community. The mayor pointed with pride to several B'Nai Brith members who hold office under his administration and expressed his delight that all the members are collaborating harmoniously for a better and happier Norwich. When the mayor said that he had been present at every B'Nai Brith banquet held at Norwich and that he would feel badly if he would not have been invited to this one, the members gave him a tremendous ovation.

Mrs. Pasnik, elected president of the B'Nai Brith auxiliary for the fifth time, was next called upon for a few remarks. She gave a comprehensive resume of the educational, charitable and social activities carried on by the auxiliary during 1927. Mrs. Pasnik was followed by Jacob Wechsler, the newly elected president of the men's lodge, who in brief remarks thanked the members for their confidence and trust reposed in him by the high honor entrusted to his care, pledging to do the work with zeal and sincerity. Nestor Dreyfus of New London spoke of his great interest in Norwich B'Nai Brith lodge, especially as he was greatly instrumental in organizing the Norwich branch.

Mr. Schlechter, the installing officer, was the next speaker, thrilling his audience as he told of the various patriotic, civic and charitable activities in which the I. O. B. B. is participating. He pointed out that the paramount work of the order is to bring harmony and better understanding among people of all faiths and political opinions and that it is always striving to bring about human brotherhood among all people. He gave a poetic description of the meaning of B'Nai Brith emblem—the Menorah—a seven armed candelabra, each arm representing light, justice, peace, truth, benevolence, brotherly love and harmony.

Mr. Schlechter told his listeners about the great help which the organization is rendering to unfortunate Jewish refugees who find a haven in Mexico in their flight from oppression in several European countries where bigotry, oppression and religious intolerance is as bitter as in the dark ages, despite the fact that we are living in such an advanced age of education. He also told about the fine work done by the I. O. B. B. anti-defamation committee and how the opinion of this committee is regarded with respect and is of value to leading heads of motion picture industries seeking to carry on the work of good will among all people through the portrayals upon the screen. The entire address was of an educational and inspiring nature and was received with marked attention and interest and accentuated with hearty applause.

Max Hanover was called upon to finish the speaking program. His brief remarks came as a surprise to the entire gathering. Even the arrangement committee was taken by surprise. Mr. Hanover in very sincere words addressed his remarks to the outgoing president, Josiah Greenstein, telling him that his intimate friends in the lodge have arranged for a special dinner to be tendered in his honor and that he will then be presented with a fitting token of appreciation, and that he (Mr. Hanover) is making this public so that all the brothers and guests may know how much the membership appreciated the valuable service rendered to the lodge by the outgoing president.

Mr. Greenstein was visibly surprised and affected by this token of appreciation and thanked the members for their kind regard and for their friendliness.

The committee in charge of the banquet were Oscar Silverman, chairman, Abner Schwartz, Jacob Weisinger, Alexander Pasnik, Jacob Wechsler, Josiah Greenstein and Max Hanover. The committee of the Ladies' auxiliary were Mrs. A. H. Manes, chairman, Mrs. A. Pasnik, Mrs. A. W. Curland, Mrs. A. Silverberg, Mrs. E. Trachtenberg, Mrs. M. Cohen, Mrs. S. Mandell.

Lyons orchestra furnished the music.

NORMALCY ON THE THAMES.

The Thames, which suddenly overflowed its banks at London, causing loss of life and property, is usually one of the most mannerly of rivers.

"The Thames within the small compass of a hundred miles shows just what is characteristic in English scenery, history and modern life," says R. J. Evans who paddled a Canadian canoe from near its source at Cricklade down to London and reported his journey to the National Geographic society.

"At Cricklade the river is little more than a rivulet," writes Mr. Evans, "in fact, the local people all referred to it as 'the Brook' and that the name was well deserved we found from personal experience.

"The first eleven miles to Lechlade is not really navigable water. And for most of the distance we had to walk in the bed of the stream, guiding the canoe over the shallows, which occured every few yards, while if there were sufficient depth of water our progress was impeded by the heavy weeds, which, thanks to enforced neglect during the war, were a formidable obstacle.

"Lechlade is a Cotswold town, built around the wide and sunny marketplace, from one side of which rises the sixteenth-century church, with its spire so loved by the poet Shelley. The houses are of stone, brick being a rarity in the Cotswolds, and have an air of mingled spaciousness and dignity which is most attractive.

"Four miles below is the ferry where Mathew Arnold saw the Scholar-Gipsy 'crossing the stripling Thames at Bablockhythe,' and about a mile on the right the village of Cumnor, where was enacted the tragedy of Amy Robsart, described by Sir Walter Scott in 'Kenilworth.'

"At one point we could see Oxford, but as the river describes a great horseshoe curve, it was some time before we approached the outskirts of the city.

"From Oxford the river runs to Iffley, a little village two miles below. This stretch is the scene of the college bumping races—the Torpids in the Lent term and the Eights in the summer term. Both are eight-oared races, extending over a week, the boats starting in a line-ahead formation, 150 feet apart.

"In both sets of races the principle is that each boat endeavors to overtake and touch the one in front, and if successful takes its place on the succeeding day. Few sights are more beautiful than this—the crowd of undergraduates running on the tow-path, the long string of racing boats, and the line of boats and barges crowded with bright blazers and pretty dresses.

"Two miles below is Sandford, where from time immemorial the King's Arms has been the goal of undergraduate boating parties. Getting through Sandford lock, we paddled on to Abingdon.

"Below are the twin villages of Goring and Streatley. They occupy what was the most beautiful spot on the Thames, but now, alas, are crowded with the houses of the newly rich; and what was a paradise is now an inferno of money and motor cars. The country round is still unspoilt and the reaches down to Pangbourne full of beauty.

"A busy town, Reading is famous the world over as the seat of Messrs. Huntley and Palmer's biscuit factory and Messrs. Sutton and Sons' seed gardens. We paddled away past Sonning to Shiplake, where we camped on the long island by the lock, getting up early the next morning and reaching Henley in good time.

"Henley is a quiet little place for fifty-one weeks in the year; but for one crowded week in July it is the scene of the first river regatta in the world, and here once again we have a typical picture of English life.

"From the bridge there is a clear view of the course almost down to the starting point. The course is kept clear by white booms and posts, and along these on either side are the boats and punts of the spectators, often twelve or fifteen rows deep.

"Windsor was a fitting goal. The castle is, perhaps, the most regal building in the world. Founded by William the Conqueror, it has always been a favorite royal residence, and to do justice to a tithe of its interests would demand a volume, and that a large one, in itself.

"Nestling under its shadow is the little town, and a few fields away Eton college, the most famous school in England.

"Here we bade farewell to Father Thames, after a journey through the heart of England, which had shown us more variety of interests—quaint, beautiful, and historic—than can be shown by any other area in a land full of beauty and possessing a noble history of nearly two thousand years."

SUFFERED ECZEMA THIRTY YEARS RABALM HEALED
"I have been a sufferer from eczema for over thirty years," says William Johnson, 6 Hodgkins Street, Gloucester, Mass., "and during that time have received treatment and tried many remedies without obtaining even a little temporary relief. A few months ago I was using Rabalm for neuritis with wonderful results, and discovered to my great astonishment that where ever Rabalm was applied, there was a marked improvement in my skin. The eczema irritation was relieved at once, as it had never been before, and ever since, I have not only been comfortable but all signs of the trouble have been gradually 'disappearing, to my great satisfaction."
Rabalm is the result of a scientific effort to find an effective remedy for eczema, to stop pain and itching, heal blisters and restore beauty to the skin. A white, stainless, pleasant-smelling ointment, Rabalm will not stain clothing and has no disagreeable medicine-cabinet odor when used on the face. Two sizes, 50-cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists

DELANEY SIGNS TO MEET HEENEY IN 15-ROUND BOUT ON MARCH FIRST

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—John M. "Tex" Chapman, accustomed only to the whims and francies of six day bicycle racers, took full possession of Madison Square Garden in the absence of Tex Rickard today and celebrated his promotorial debut by signing Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney to a 15 round joust on March 1.

Achieving his end where the original "Tex" had given up in high sudgeon before leaving last night for Miami, Fla., Rickard's newly appointed assistant hauled the fight managers before him today, and in half an hour talked them into splitting half of the gate receipts evenly between them. Papers will be signed tomorrow.

The match forecast the final lineup of the "elimination" campaign to name Gene Tunney's opponent next summer. While Tex is reviewing the heavyweight program with the champion on the links at Miami, Chapman will endeavor to sign Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko to a 15 round bout on March 12 with the winners of both matches meeting early in April for the right to challenge Tunney's supremacy in July. Jack Dempsey probably will face the titleholder for the third time here in September.

The endurance contest between managers of Heeney and Delaney entering the second day, was brought to a sudden halt and general agreement when challenges of the New Zealander's courage reached the ears of Bernard Mortimer, British promoter and one of Heeney's stockholders. Mortimer went into private session with the remainder of the Heeney bondsmen and came out with an offer to bet $10,000 on the Anzac and an agreement to split the purse. Negotiations had been prolonged by Heeney's desire for five per cent more than Delaney.

During the general barter of services today, no mention was made of Pauline Uscudun, the fifth starter originally selected by Rickard for the final elimination flight. The Spaniard left today to fight Romero Rojas in Mexico City Jan. 29, and will meet George Godfrey, the new "Black Menace" in Los Angeles in February.

FIRST DOG SLED RACE AT LAKE PLACID TODAY

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 19.—(AP)—A dog sled derby takes its place on the winter sports program of this mountain resort for the first time tomorrow. Seven teams, among them dogs famous in the Nome serum relief dash, are entered in two twenty mile races to be held tomorrow and Saturday.

Zeppla, who mushed behind his string of huskies to the relief of the epidemic stricken Alaskan city, has accompanied one of his teams here. The derby is held in conjunction with the annual figure skating carnival held at the Lake Placid club.

Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., of Poland Springs, Me., is scheduled to drive a team numbering in its string some of the Zeppla dogs. Lead dogs of the string to be driven by Dr. J. Davlogn, of Lake Placid, also are of Alaskan breed.

Walter Channing, Boston, racing chairman of the New England sled dog club, has entered two teams, one to be driven by himself and the other by Harold Pendergast. Other entrants are Hiram Mason, Tamworth, N. H., and Jacques Suzanne, of Lake Placid.

DELANEY READY FOR BOUT WITH HUMBECK TONIGHT

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, who abdicated the light heavyweight boxing throne in search of heavyweight laurels, and Jack Humbeck, 205 pound Belgian "cyclone," today completed preparations for their 10-round clash at the Argonne A. A. here tomorrow night.

Delaney, fresh from a 20-seconds knockout victory over Sully Montgomery in New York last Monday, plans another whirlwind attack to gain the decision and another rung in the heavyweight elimination ladder he has started to climb. Humbeck, who has yet to be flattened after 69 bouts, is just as anxious for victory and a little attention from the manufacturer of boxing's heavyweight title contenders.

Delaney expects to scale about 181 pounds, a weight that will force him to give away more than 20 pounds to his ponderous opponent. Thirty two rounds of preliminary skirmishing, including an eight round semi-final are scheduled for the evening.

FAVORITES REMAIN IN BAHAMA OPEN GOLF

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Women on whose heads have rested various golf crowns survived the quarter finals of the women's championship golf tournament of the Bahamas today, but one had to work hard for her victory.

Miss Helen Payson, Portland, Me., Canadian champion and semi-finalist in the National women's championship in 1927, won from Mrs. R. Livingstone of New York by default.

After playing virtually even most of the way Miss Marie Jenny of New York, 1925 Metropolitan champion, defeated Miss Rosamond Sherwood of New York, former National long drive champion 2 up.

Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr., of Chicago, former western champion, defeated Mrs. John P. Renwick of Mount Kisko, N. Y., 3 and 2.

Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, twice Canadian champion, won six and five from Mrs. Dorothy Higbie Tracy, of Chicago.

HAUGEN IS CHOSEN AS MEMBER OF SKI TEAM

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)— Anders Haugen of Minneapolis, four times National ski jump champion and member of the last Olympic team, was chosen today by the National Ski association to be the third member of the American ski team, to represent the United States in the St. Moritz events, February 11-19.

In the 1924 winter Olympic games at Chamonix, France, Haugen scored the longest jump of the international tournament, but was ranked fourth in the final point standings. The eastern donors of the fund raised to send the American ski team chose Rolf Monson, of Brattleboro, Vermont, and Charles Proctor of Dartmouth college, to complete the American trio.

MISS SEARS WINS FINALS IN ROUND HILL SQUASH

GREENWICH, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Miss Eleanora Sears, of Boston, this afternoon won the finals in the women's open squash racquet tournament at the Round Hill club here, defeating Miss A. Boyden of Boston in three of four sets.

Miss Sears showed remarkable control in the first set, weakening in the second, in which she was held scoreless. Miss Boyden's playing in this set was considered the best of the tournament, but she was unable to continue her form and lost the third and fourth. The scores: 15-10, 0-15, 15-10, 15-11.

DANIELSON TOWNERS SWAMP PAWTUCKET TIGERS, 54 TO 28

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 19.—The Danielson Town team completely outclassed and outplayed the Pawtucket Tigers in a roughly played game here tonight, defeating them 54 to 28. The Danielson boys walked away from Sammy Moore's Tigers right at the start of the game and there was no question as to their superiority at any time during the encounter. The Pawtucket team changed their lineup several times using all of their reserve men which proved of no avail as the Danielson team was too strong. If arguments could win a basketball game the Pawtucket boys would have had a score of three figures, but that not being the case they took a good trimming.

Godreau, Schofield and Keech were high scorers for Danielson while the remainder of the men made at least one or two baskets. Moore, who is an all-around athlete and coach in Rhode Island was the outstanding star for Pawtucket making some very pretty shots.

Next week the Millville team comes to Danielson including in their lineup Bernot, Casper and Peloquin.

The preliminary between Danielson Seconds and the Plainfield Buddies was well worthy of mention as it was a very fast and clean game from start to finish with the Buddies finally winning in an overtime period, the score being 27 to 24. With the score 24-all at the end of the 40-minute period the Buddies went back for the overtime and caged one basket and a foul making the final count 27 to 24.

Interscholastic Sports

Meriden surprised many by trimming New Haven Hillhouse 20 to 18 Wednesday. Hillhouse went through 1927 with only four defeats in major sports but this is a poor beginning for '28.

Chapman Tech boosted her winning streak to 3 straight in beating Pratt High of Essex Tuesday night.

Stonington, incidentally, lost to the Coast Guard Seconds in the Whaling City on the same day.

Windham is all primed for the first of her seasonal combats with South Manchester High tonight at Manchester. It looks like a toss-up for both schools seem to be real strong again this year.

Two old rivals, Putnam and Killingly meet tonight at Putnam with both undefeated.

The annual football dance comes tonight at the Academy gym. Jim Kelly, halfback last season is chairman of the dance committee.

Stonington and Chapman meet tonight at Stonington with Tech holding a big pre-game edge. Coach Morris has done well with a squad of inexperienced men at Tech.

There will be somewhat of a vacation for scholastic basketball within the next ten days or so as the mid-year examinations start.

Bulkeley in New London now has its indoor track workouts going forward with regularity.

Bulkeley plans an extensive outdoor campaign and workouts are being held early to have the squad in tip-top shape

KARAKOS DISPUTES McGRAW'S GREEK TITLE

"Tommy Karakos, the Greek lightweight, who has shown to excellent advantage is out with a defi to Phil McGraw. Tommy wants to decide the Greek championship with Phil, in the ring. He wants to hear from the Detroit slugger.

Tommy makes his next appearance in New London, on January 25th, with Bobby Mays. The fight fans will see a great fighter in action when he appears in the New London ring. Tommy has fought the toughest boys the promoters could get for him. No one can accuse him of ever looking for a soft spot. The tougher they come, the better he likes them. Similarly, the harder the going the happier he is. The answer is that Tommy loves to fight and is not contented unless he is throwing the padded mitts.

Tommy has fought slashing fights with Johnny Shupack, Andy Mastelone, Joey Knapp and numerous others. Recently, Karakos fought Pal Moran in New Orleans and had Pal on the floor for the count of nine.

Tommy's weight is 135 pounds, which he has no trouble in making. He is a legitimate lightweight. To see Tommy in action is to see a smooth working clever and hard hitting veteran. Tommy is ever on the aggressive and can take it without flinching.

He is ready to box Sid Terris, Phil McGraw, Bruce Flowers, and any other of the lightweight contenders, bar none.

SCHAEFER AND COCHRAN TO PLAY EXHIBITION HERE TUES.

Two of the world's most famous billiard players, Welker Cochran and Jake Schaefer, challenger and champion, will come to Norwich to give an exhibition at the Elks' club on next Tuesday night. Cochran was champion at the 18.2 balkline game until last month when Schaefer badly defeated him and regained the title which Schaefer lost to Cochran in 1926.

It is seldom that Norwich is visited by champions in this indoor sport as billiard playing here has been on the decline for a number of years. Both these players demonstrate the fine art of the game which embodies a technique that is only attained after years spent above a table.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The old bugaboo about eastern control in various branches of sport has bobbed up again.

Earlier in the winter it figured in the reorganization of the football rules committee along more representative lines, now it concerns tennis and an attempt to reduce the dominant position of eastern members on the executive body of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

To those who know the tennis troubles it isn't strange to find "Big Bill" Tilden with the forces seeking a change in the constitution of the U. S. L. T. A., that would cut down eastern control. "Big Bill" is an easterner himself but his bloodless tilts with the so-called old guard of tennis have become an annual affair.

The source of this control which Tilden and his friends apparently desire to lessen, if not actually break up, is the presence of so many ex-presidents from the east on the executive committee of the U. S. L. T. A., there are five now, all residents of the east. With the retirement of Jones W. Mersereau, of New York, after a three-year term as president, the number will be increased automatically to six, including four from New York. Mersereau's successor, furthermore, will be another easterner, Samuel Collom, of Philadelphia.

The issue will be carried before the annual meeting of the U. S. L. T. A. February 11, when a proposal will be made to limit to two the number of ex-presidents any section may have on the executive committee.

From the sentiment which has come to the surface so far it appears likely, however, that the old guard will muster sufficient strength to defeat this recommendation. As might be expected, the Eastern Lawn Tennis association, most powerful voting group in the U. S. L. T. A. has already gone on record as opposed to any change in the present scheme of representation. It is more significant, however, that the California Tennis association also has decided to support the existing scheme of administration. This decision was reached by the Californians in spite of agitation by Tilden and his friends to gain support for a change.

As it stands now, the Western association, with headquarters in Chicago and the Philadelphia district, Tilden's own bailiwick, probably will be the only leading groups supporting a re-alignment.

Advocates of the proposed change, pointing to the trend of wilder representation in other sports groups, hold that it is no longer practical to have the east in so dominant a position.

Opponents of a change, on the other hand, contend that the east is still the stronghold of tennis, the scene of a big majority of the major tournaments and, therefore, entitled to a preponderance of representation. Furthermore, they point out, the wide experience and counsel of such ex-presidents as Julian Myrick, George Adee, Dwight Davis, George Wightman and Henry Slocum is an important asset

It may or may not be a coincidence, but Tilden's voice in tennis government has not been so influential since he lost his crown as national champion in 1926.

When in a defiant mood, "Big Bill" formerly was able to muster sufficient strength to put over quite a few of his particular policies. He was a prime influence in changing the player-writer regulations several years ago. He also was a leader in forcing a change in the national ranking one year after it had been agreed on by the ranking committee and given publication.

But already this season Tilden has met defeat on one score—his effort to have the United States file its 1928 Davis Cup challenge in the European zone. His latest legislative lobby also seems due to be thwarted.

SENIOR CHURCH LEAGUE RESUMES PLAY TONIGHT

The Senior Church league resumes operations this evening at the Y gym at 7 o'clock with the First Baptists meeting the Norwich Town Congregational quintet.

This is the first game on the new schedule announced earlier in the week. The Baptists will have it on their opponents in experience but the opposition has been drilling hard and expects to put up a stiff tussle.

Games in the league will be held Monday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

DARTMOUTH MAY PLAY NORTHWESTERN THIS FALL

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Plans for the intersectional football game Nov. 24, between Dartmouth and Northwestern, were discussed today by Harry Heneage, director of athletics at Dartmouth, and Kenneth L. Wilson, director at Northwestern, without agreement on the use of Soldier Field stadium as urged by Heneage.

Wilson said he would have to refer the question to his faculty committee. Dyche stadium at Northwestern will hold 45,000 and Soldier field more than twice as many. Among the big games on Soldier field calendar next fall is the Notre Dame-Navy contest.

Pell Beats Dobell

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Clarence C. Pell, of New York, American champion, easily defeated F. C. Dobell, Montreal, during today's play in the Canadian ranquets championship. The New Yorker won in straight sets, 15-8, 15-8, 15-4.

Stanley Mortimer, of New York, who, with Pell, holds the American doubles title, disposed of his fellow countryman, B. Cutter, Boston, 15-8, 15-4, 15-11. H. C. Clarke, Boston, advanced at the expense of A. J. Hill, Montreal, 15-3, 15-4, 15-7.

BOXING NOTES

The Putnam Sporting club has another amateur boxing show set for next Friday evening, January 27. The Shapiro stable of Worcester will have a team on the card and in this team will be Harry Devine, recognized by most all New England amateur clubs as featherweight champ of the United States, and Young Cormier, Worcester country bantam champ.

Al Koziol, Frankie Adams and Jimmy Quinn of this city are also slated to appear while Young Peloquin and two others from Danielson are booked. Young Grenier of Putnam and Frankie Adams are matched in one of the main bouts.

It will be remembered that Adams got a decision over Grenier on a local card.

Jack Delaney and Benny Leonard will be invited guests of the Coast Guard academy at their smoker in New London Saturday night. Delaney will stop over in New London on his way from Boston, where he is boxing Jack Humbeck tonight, while Benny Leonard is coming direct from New York.

Bobby Mays, who meets Tom Karakos, N. Y., in the feature of the Thames A. C. card in New London next Wednesday, Jan. 25, began his training Wednesday for the bout. Monday night Mays beat Pete Petrolle at New Haven.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Connie Mack is out with his usual prediction that the Athletics will be stronger this season than last year.

Banff, one of the famous sport centres of the Canadian west, will stage its annual winter carnival the week of February 4.

The Chicago White Sox have signed Left Goodell, a 17-year-old pitcher from Oklahoma, who is said to possess a marvelous curve ball.

The Waseda University basketball team, which is now touring the Pacific coast, holds the championship of Japan, having defeated all outstanding contestants.

The mild weather which has marked the early winter throughout New England and the east has knocked most of the scheduled winter carnivals into a cocked hat.

The new stadium of 25,000 seating capacity to be built at the University of Virginia will be welcomed by the crowds that attend the Virginia-North Carolina football classic.

Seven of the eight baseball clubs in the Three-Eye league will start the 1928 season with new managers. The only left-over is Spud Campbell, who will continue to pilot the Bloomington team.

That the game of golf continues to flourish like a green bay tree is evidenced by the report of the United States Golf association, which shows 193 new clubs added to its membership roll last year.

The Army-Navy football game, considered the most colorful gridiron contest of the season, will be missed at the New York Polo grounds, where the service classic has been played pretty regularly since 1913.

The track and field performances of the late Alvin C. Kraenzlein, particularly his unparelled achievements of the 1900 Olympic games at Paris, will long be remembered in the world of athletics.

Sectional trials of the National Collegiate A. A. for the selection of Olympic performers will be held as follows: Wrestling, at Ames, Ia., March 30-31; swimming at the University of Pennsylvania, March 30-31; track and field, at Chicago, June 8-9.

Messrs. Doc Crandall and Art Griggs are to take their Wichita baseball team to California for spring training. Last year the Witches finished in second place in the Western League race and the club bosses purpose to spare no expense in conditioning the players for a real fight for pennant honors this season.

Football has been played in England for more than 500 years.

Harry E. Heilman, Detroit outfielder, has won the American league batting honors every other season since 1921.

An American women's tennis team headed by Helen Wills will begin an invasion of Europe in the early spring. The trip will be sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Nearly fifty nations are to take part in the coming Olympic games, and the preliminary parade of the thousands of competitors in Amsterdam is expected to be one of the most wonderful sights of its kind the world has ever seen.

Golf has had the effect of reviving old towns in England that were dying out 25 years or so ago, among them Sandwich and New Romney. The old Cinque Port towns fell into decay on account of sand filling their harbors, and it is the long stretches of sand and grass that attract golf clubs to them.

American baseball players might well envy the long professional life enjoyed by some of the cricketers in England. For illustration, Quaife, one of the best-known professionals, who has announced his intention to retire, is now fifty-five years of age and has been playing "big time" cricket for thirty-seven years.

One of the results of the popularity of dog-racing in England is the amazing prices being paid for greyhounds. Almost anything on four legs will bring a fancy price. In the better-class dogs there is the without speculation. A few weeks ago, Waterweed, dam of Golden Seal (winner of the last Waterloo cup), was sold for $4200, and at the same sale a litter of six puppies, two months old, realized $7,000.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Havana and Habana.

President Coolidge, six hours out from Key West on his journey to the Pan-American conference, was welcomed as El Presidente de los Estados Unidos, in Havana.

"The city will always be 'Havana' to the United States, but 'La Habana' to Cubans," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The distinction is important. The capital of Cuba has her Havana aspects—her Americanisms. But she remains the Spanish queen city of the Antilles.

"The electric signs boldly proclaim American electrical industries. The Biltmore, the Ritz and the Plaza present homelike hotel names and homelike prices to the visiting Americans. Certain great banks of Manhattan hang signs also in Calle O'Reilly. Havana boasts a Fifth avenue (Avenida Quinta) and the Opera House facing Central Park (Parque Central) has been stormed by Hollywood's crusaders.

"So much for American Havana. Spanish La Habana wears these Americanisms like jewelry of a current fashion. La Habana insists on patios, builds houses in white, smooth stucco, and looks to it that every man, woman and child speaks Spanish. An American counts himself fortunate if his tourist chauffeur can speak a modicum of English. Unhappy, indeed, is he who asks for O'Reilly street. A Cuban may spell it that way but he pronounces it Calle Oriya. La Habana is decorated with wrought-iron Spanish grills and innumerable wrought-iron Spanish balconies. La Habana's Juliets, however, prefer 'playing the bear' with their beaux at the ground floor grills. The prsion principle in courting, as practiced publicly along the narrow streets, never fails to interest Americans. La Habana's attitude toward women also remains Spanish.

"Americans aching to shed overcoats also find the Cuban capital a truly tropical city. While the shade may harbor charming temperatures emphasized in tourist folders, the noonday sun assaults anyone who dares venture from his cave of coolness. So Cubans wait within their caverns of shade from 11 until 3 o'clock, heeding the siesta customs of the tropics. Noonday rest encourages a night life which lasts well into the morning.

"Havana has pride in her climate but she keeps constantly on the defense against it. A law prohibits the sale of meat during the hottest part of the day, milkmen deliver milk in ice, and in many homes abbreviated partitions instead of walls divide rooms. One experience a visitor to Havana never forgets is a stroll down Calle Obispo, a leading shopping street, under canvas sun canopies stretched from wall to wall.

"The benefits of the tropics are equally apparent. Havana's markets display an amazing variety of delicious fruit, avocado pears, anonas or custard apples, zapotes, pineapples, sapodillas, oranges, guavas and limes—all cheap by American standards. Two dozen beautiful roses can be purchased for 10 cents. Havana's parks and gardens are lush with brilliant flowered tropic bushes and trees. Numberless royal palms erect as soldiers, cross their sword-like fronds high above the boulevard traffic.

"Havana's municipal housekeeping is admirable. Coasting along shore a newcomer sees twenty miles of white-walled homes housing this city of 560,000 residents, gleaming through palms lining the Malecon Boulevard behind the sea wall. A narrow inlet at the eastern limit of this seascape affords a 'tradesman's entrance' for the ships of all nations to Havana's convenient backdoor. Wharves, railroads, and shipping concentrate around the shores of the spacious, landlocked harbor. Cargoes of sugar and cigars go out toward Morro Castle and the sea over the very spot where the sinking of the Maine started the train of events which has led to the present close relationship between Cubans and Americans."

PROVIDENCE OFFICIALS INSPECT R. R. PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 19—Fifteen or twenty officials of the New Haven railroad, comprising the Providence division department heads, made their first inspection today of the newly extended division from Providence to Midway, much of which section was formerly in the New London division, abolished the first of the year.

Leaving Providence on the official inspection locomotive "Naugatuck" with a day coach attached, stops were made at each station from Providence to Westerly where the train was run on the siding near the westbound train shelter.

When Westerly was reached, about 1:30 p. m. the members of the official party went to the Terminal for dinner. Returning to the railroad property, thorough inspection was given the various buildings used for passenger and freight service. Station Agent Earl S. Bavier was at his office in the freight house and the freight yard and tracks were looked over.

Members of the inspecting party were H. A. Moynihan, Providence Division superintendent; Edward Russell, assistant superintendent; Thomas Rawley, assistant superintendent; Ernest Farnham, traffic feright agent; Seymour Wright, signal supervision; eGorge Anderson, signal maintenance foreman; W. F Fitzpatrick, assistant real estate agent; J. F. Thorndyke, division passenger agent; D. N McArthur, freight agent at Providence, Conductor John Sprague and a force of stenographers and clerks.

TWO OIL CO. STATIONS ENTERED BY YOUNG THIEVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 19—Pawcatuck was visited during Wednesday night or early hours of Thursday morning by burglars who entered properties of the Texas Oil company located at the west end of the Pawcatuck river railroad bridge, and the property of the Standard Oil company at 197 Mechanic street extending along the New Haven railroad. Patrolman C. Wilson Brown was notified and made investigation of the breaks which were discovered by the company employes when the day's work was begun today.

At the Texas plant Agent Henry Mayne found that the fence surrounding the property had been scaled. Footprints around were of small size leading him to the conclusion that the offenders were boys. A spanner was used to break out an east window in the office and on the opposite window was a hole as if a stone had first been thrown through both. An open safe was rifled and no money found; some thirty postage stamps were taken when some of the inner compartments were broken and papers were scattered on the floor. From a locker a sheepskin coat was taken, also a leather vest and overcoat. Exit was made by the office door, found unlocked.

At the Standard Oil plant, Agent Ernest H. Ozanne reported a window broken out on the south side of the building and the curtains pulled down. The locked safe could not be entered. A thorough ransacking was made and papers scattered about, the only thing missing being a flashlight. A piece of coal on the floor was thought to have been used for breaking the window. A spanner from the Texas plant was found and some postage stamps on the ground, leading to the belief that the Texas plant was visited first. It was thought that the would-be robbers might have been scared away when the oil heating system was started up automatically.

NOANK

John Ashby is head clerk at Mrs. Jane Carson's news store. A group of young fellows hang out there during the long winter nights, so Bandy Ashby, as he is called by them, started a play. For the past two weeks they were putting in practice there. Wednesday evening at Traven hall, before a crowded house the play "Our Gang" was given. The first act was down at the club room to greet the new president, George Moore, as Eugene Mallett. The father, Jake Long, was John Ashby, leader of the gang. The part of the mother, Mrs. Julia Cross, was taken by Mrs. Jane Carson; Bad Boy Irk Williams, was Raymond Sweet; Fatty, Ted Jackson, was Danny Robertson; Barrett Turns, George Pratt was Edward Mahoney; William Pratt was Leo Harris and the new president, George Moore could not tell them until he put on his smoked glasses to get another look. The crowd was in an uproar as the curtain went down. When the first act was over the Lightning Four orchestra of West View, played between the acts. When the curtain went up for the second act, "Visiting Night with Old Pals from Boston at President Moore's Home in Hickville", Big-Hearted Mike Kelly of Maine, Harold Sweet, came to give the gang a talk on keeping away from bad company while in a big city. Uncle Ben Strong as Walter Buddington, who is rich, giving away money like water running from a duck's back. The Summer Girl from Ocean Beach, Miss Nellie Grant was Miss Mollie Deane. The city chap, Fred Maxwell was Robert Lamary, of Providence; Aunt Sarah Cunningham was Miss Annie Landy. The Barrett twins dressed up like Jack and Jill sang "That Old Gang of John Ashby" that closed the play. The crowd had two hours of fun and went home happy. The sum of $25 was cleared and will be in charge of John Ashby for cigarettes and cigars to be given to the gang each evening.

Three tame squirrels on Cedar street are trying to gather something to eat but cannot find anything as the butternuts are done for until another year. On a large water tower, 70 feet in the air, which supplies water to the shipyard, these squirrels have done damage to the canvas that is on the roof and making large holes in it trying to find a warm spot to build a nest. It is the first time that the Old residents of the fishing village ever saw so many squirrels around so late. There being no nuts in the woods has made them leave and hike to different places looking for food. A carpenter fixed the roof and it took him a whole day. But he said he didn't blame the squirrels trying to find a home for the winter and it will all come out in the wash.

H. Bracci spent a day in Essex this week.

The services were attended by a large crowd.

John Ebbetts has entered the machine shop at the shipyard.

The young fishing fleet has found that the bottom of Fulton market has dropped out, proved by the low prices for the fish that the village fishing men are sending down every night by truck. They claim at the market that the fishing men with larger boats have brought in heavy loads, so that the market is overstocked. Many tons of fish were put back into the ocean, worth nothing. Buyer Martin told them to lay off for a day.

Fred Phillips of Middletown is at his home for a few days' visit.

Charles D. Welch is laid up at his home on Elm street, ill with grip.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Several Norwich people bound for Norwich from New York on the Steamer Worcester were treated to a thrill 75 years ago when the steamer became disabled and had to be towed back to New York. Happenings of real interest in Norwich were few during the week and the following items have been gleaned from the files of the Norwich Evening Courier for the week of Jan. 18, 1853:

Tuesday, Jan. 18, 1853—The Steamer Worcester, which left New York at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon for Norwich with a large number of passengers, became unmanageable, when some of her machinery gave way, when the boat was nearly opposite Huntington, leaving her at the mercy of the wind and waves. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock, and about 1 o'clock the wind was blowing a perfect hurricane, accompanied by snow. The captain hoisted distress signals and about 3 o'clock a steamer was observed about three miles from the Worcester. It was the Steamer Commodore, Captain Lewis of Stonington, bound for New York. The Commodore saw the signals and went to the Worcester and succeeded in making fast to the disabled steamer. The Worcester was towed to Throges Neck, where the Worcester anchored for the night. She was taken back to New York early Wednesday morning.

The Eastern bank at Danielsonville has just declared a dividend of 3 per cent though it has been in operation but seven months.

There was an alarm of fire in Main street this morning between 9 and 10 o'clock. It proved to be the gas works of F. W. Treadway, but it was extinguished quickly and without any damage worth mentioning. The fire was occasioned by a leak started in one of the boilers through the melting of a "faxset" whereby three or four gallons of liquid oil and varnish escaped into the furnace of fire beneath.

Jumper Finds a Friend.

If you possess a little wit
Just try to make the most of it.
—Jumper the Hare.

Jumper the Hare is perfectly aware that he is somewhat slow of wit. He knows full well that he is not as smart in some ways as some of his neighbors. It is seldom that he can save himself by his wit. He saves himself usually by his long heels. But he has some wit, as most folks do, and he tries to make the most of it.

When Jumper first started to run from Shadow the Weasel and Billy Mink he simply headed straight into the Green Forest, with no real plan. He just meant to keep on running as long as he could. He felt that if he ran long enough and far enough his enemies would become tired of following him. But as he ran, lipperty-lipperty-lip, over the snow, through the Green Forest, he remembered a friend. Yes, sir, Jumper remembered a friend.

His heart grew a bit lighter. He changed his direction ever so little. "I'll go straight over there," said Jumper to himself. "I'll go straight over to where Lightfoot the Deer is spending the winter. I think I can get Lightfoot to help me, if it is necessary. Lightfoot and I are old friends. Of what use is it to have friends if you cannot get them to help you when you need them?"

So for some time Jumper ran, lipperty-lip, lipperty-lip, through the Green Forest. Presently he came to a path through the snow. It was a deep path. It had been made by tramping down the snow as fast as it fell. This was what he was looking for. That path had been made by Lightfoot the Deer and Mrs. Lightfoot and the two nearly grown children. It was a part of the yard of Lightfoot the Deer.

You didn't know that Lightfoot lives in a yard? Well, he does. That is the place he lives in winter, when the snow is deep; it is called a yard. It isn't like any yard that you have ever seen. There isn't any fence around it, yet it really is a yard, I suppose, for Lightfoot and Mrs. Lightfoot and the young Lightfoots seldom go out of it, and when the snow is very deep can't go out of it. It is merely a lot of paths which cross and recross and crisscross and twist and turn among the food trees. Outside these paths the snow is so deep that even with his long legs Lightfoot cannot get about. But along these paths he can move rapidly.

"Oh!" said Lightfoot, "It's you, is it?"

So when Jumper the Hare came to this path in the snow he knew that all he had to do to find Lightfoot was to jump down in that path and follow it until it led into the maze of paths, and there, sooner or later, he would find Lightfoot. Jumper didn't hesitate. He jumped down into that path and away he went, lipperty-lipperty-lip. It was good travelling in that path. By and by he came to another path. It crossed the path he was on. He didn't know whether to turn to the right, or turn to the left, or keep straight on. He wisely decided that one path was as good as another path, so he might as well keep straight on. He kept straight on. Presently the path forked. One fork was as good as the other fork, so Jumper turned to the right.

For a long time Jumper wandered this way and wandered that way in the yard of Lightfoot the Deer without so much as once getting a glimpse of Lightfoot. Then quite unexpectedly he came upon the whole family. They were lying down. Yes, sir, they were all lying down. Jumper almost ran into the middle of the family party before he saw them. He startled Lightfoot the Deer so that Lightfoot leaped to his feet ready to fight an enemy, if there should be one. But when he saw Jumper the hair which had begun to rise on his shoulders dropped back into place.

"Oh!" said Lightfoot. "It's you, is it? What are you doing here?"

"Looking for you," replied Jumper meekly. "You are my friend, aren't you, Lightfoot?"

"Certainly," replied Lightfoot.

Jumper sighed thankfully. "I know it," said he.

THE NATION'S BREADBASKET

(Written Specially for Th Bulletin.)

It seems that, for something over three years, the federal trade commission has been looking into the nation's bread basket.

Bread is the universal food. It is to be found on the table of the exclusive hotel and in the dinner pail of the ditch digger. It is served at the most elaborate table-d'hote and at the humblest lunch counter. It is an accessory at the most epicurean feast and a standby at the tenement dining table. It is, truly enough, "the staff of life."

Naturally, all sorts and conditions of men and women are interested in bread, its character, its quality, its savor and, not least of all, its cost. This last item is what the trade commission has been investigating.

It has covered the country by its agents for three full years in an endeavor to find out just what people pay for their bread and just where the money they pay for it goes. The results have now been tabulated. They seem to me almost astoundingly significant.

The commission finds that, for the three years of 1925, 1926 and 1927, the average cost of a pound loaf of bread to the consumer, the country over, was eight and fifty-five one-hundredths cents (08.55). Of this sum the farmer received one and fifteen-hundredths cents (01.15), the miller forty-one hundredths of a cent (00.41), the railroads and other carriers sixty hundredths of a cent (00.60), the retail grocer one and twenty-three-hundredths of a cent (01.23), the baker five cents and eleven hundredths (05.11).

Now it isn't any part of my purpose, at this time, to analyze these different costs or pay any attention at all to more than just two of them, viz.: the price the eater pays for his bread and the price the farmer gets for the wheat it is made from.

Disregarding the finer fractional accuracies, it turns out that, in comparatively round figures, of the more than eight cents and a half which Mrs. Consumer pays for her loaf of bread less than one cent and a quarter goes to the farmer who produces the wheat from which the bread is made.

Right there, it seems to me, is the whole "farm problem" in a nutshell. Right there is to be found the basis for the farmer's discontent and grumbling—and of his reason for them. Right there is the explanation of why farming doesn't "pay" as other no more honorable or more strenuous occupations "pay."

Bread is bought to eat, not to hoard up nor to look at. Its only service is as food and its only value is in its food content. Every smallest item of that food value is in the wheat berries which the farmer grows and sells.

Yet he gets in the markets which are his only outlet less than one-seventh of what the consumer finally pays for the food he furnishes. The other six-sevenths or more go to people who handle his wheat in one way or another, without adding a penny to its food value.

Now, it doesn't take an educated economist nor a trained dietician nor a "Napoleon of business" to see in that state of affairs a rank, glaring, brutal injustice.

One doesn't even have to be a trained moralist to see in it a victory of grasping greed over honest desert.

One doesn't have to know anything about the troubles of the millers or the railroads or the bakers or the grocers to know that the farmer isn't getting his fair and honest share of the price paid for the bread his wheat has made.

I own up that I haven't the slightest idea about the in-between motions that wheat goes through after it passes from the farmer's fields to the eaters' tables. I don't have a ghost of an idea whether there is or is not any "profiteering" in a single one of them.

But I do know, just as you know, and everyone with eyes, ears and a pocketbook must know, that, if these other costs are legitimate, then the portion eked out to the farmer is disgracefully and disgustingly inadequate.

It is like going into a restaurant and ordering a dollar dinner—and "tipping" the waiter with seven dollars. It is putting the cart before the horse, with a blunderheadedness discoverable only in "human nature" at its worst. Even a Pittsburg millionaire would think a dollar tip sufficient for the waiter who had served him with a seven-dollar dinner. But in the matter of daily bread we exactly reverse things. We pay seven times as much for service as we pay for value received.

Could you beat it?

Under any rating of decently even justice it would seem that, if the various handling processes actually were worth something over seven cents, then the farmer ought to get at least seven cents for his wheat. That would only be giving as much sauce to the goose as the gander claims.

Strictly speaking, as the farmer's wheat supplies the entire food value of the loaf, it ought to bring him in more than half the price of the loaf. But I suspect that even the wheat farmers of Kansas and the Dakotas would cease from their grumbling if they could be assured of only that half.

Even as things are, the farmer with grit and energy and industry and foresight — with "gumption" — can make at least a living. But he is as much entitled to more than a mere living as other workers and business men. If he works 12 hours a day he is rightfully entitled to at least one and a half times the wages of his eight-hour compeers in the trades. If he raises produce which the markets demand, he is entitled to at least as high a rate of profit on it as the grocer at the other end of the line.

He doesn't get either—the pay or the profit.

Wherefore he grumbles and grouches and kicks and shakes his fist at the government. Considering this matter of bread, I can't say that I wonder at his being sore.

What I do wonder at, more and more, is why he doesn't take a brand out of the bonfire at which he is being roasted and fight back with his enemy's own weapon.

It is perfectly self-evident, in this matter of the wheaten loaf, he is being discriminated against and deprived of his fair rights.

Well, he doesn't have to raise wheat. He can raise steers and make beef, or cows and make butter, or hogs and make pork, or sugarbeets to make sugar, or oats to make breakfast food, or asparagus, of which no market ever yet had enough, or any one of a score of other things.

Isn't the wheat farmer's head big enough to accommodate two ideas at a time? Isn't his farming skill adequate to putting them into execution?

I have a neighbor who owns less than 20 acres of fair land. He keeps two horses, three or four cows, and a sizable flock of hens. They make a lot of manure, all of which goes back on the land, with whatever more he can pick up at a bargain. He can't, of course, compete in raising wheat or corn. But he raises hay enough for his animals, mangels and cabbages for his cows and hens, enough potatoes and other vegetables for his own use, buys up calves from his milk-selling neighbors and turns them into first class, A No. 1 veal and gets top-notch prices for the meat. His 20 acres, under prodigal manuring and judgmatical tillage, produce about as much as any other 40 acres I know of. But he doesn't sell any of his crops as raw material. He uses them to finish off a completed product for which his market is avid.

It is true that seasonal and climatic conditions limit the farmer's list of producible crops. He can't raise sugar-cane or cotton in the northern states, nor lemons and oranges and figs, etc. But he has a wider range of choice than a good many appreciate.

Why, when I was growing garden truck as a business I sometimes had over a hundred varieties in my ten-acre plats. Some of them were admittedly rather "chance-y," in view of the scant hundred and twenty days I could reckon on between frosts, but they sometimes turned out well. When they did, they paid good profits.

"Big business" is confessedly always looking out for its own interests. But it can fatten those interests only at the expense of either producer or consumer, or both. It can't make money for itself selling what it hasn't got or what nobody will buy. If it won't pay farmers their fair share for raising wheat, so long as there is a surplus of the bread-making grain, it will mighty soon raise its bids when there is a shortage. When ten people have that to sell which only nine want to buy, the price falls. But when ten people are clamoring to buy that of which there is a supply for only nine, then prices go up sky-rocketing.

I don't know of any law, spiritual, moral or physical, which compels a farmer to go on working for nothing and boarding himself, just in order to produce wheat.

If he can get enough for his wheat to put him on even terms with the other wheat-handlers, that's all right; let him go to it. But why should he hang on to the hot end of the poker and dance up and down in pain when there are other pokers with cool handles within his reach?

It seems to me that the federal trade commission's report on the bread situation makes very clear why wheat farmers are disgruntled and sore.

But it doesn't clear up the question why they keep on raising wheat to make others rich and keep themselves poor.

"One-track" minds are said to have their places in life. But such places are not on the farms.

THE FARMER.

Twenty-five years ago Mrs. J. C. Brown, of West Frankfort, Ill., lost her gold band wedding ring, and died a short time ago without regaining it. Recently the ring was found on the grave of Mrs. Brown's mother by the sexton of the cemetery. It was returned to Mrs. Brown's family.

Some 1,500 goats are solving the problem of keeping the grass mowed on the 160-acre tank farm of an oil company near Ponca City, Kas. The goats are doing wonderful work as mowing machines and keeping the grass well clipped as a protection against fire in the 14,000,000 barrels of crude oil and gasoline stored in the 100 tanks on the big farm.

At Groveland, N. Y., Richard Long and a cow had an argument over the right-of-way on a highway and the cow won. When the cow refused to move out of Long's way, he backed his flivver and then started forward with the intention of pushing the animal off the road. But the cow was stubborn and Long's light machine tipped over in such a way that the gasoline was ignited, the car burning.

When John Flynn, twenty years old, was knocked unconscious and pinned to the ground by a fallen tree in the Victorian bush, in Australia, his dog saved his life. The animal waited near the man's motionless body, and licked his face until Flynn revived slightly. Flynn had just enough strength to scribble a call for help to his mother and tie it in a handkerchief around the dog's neck. The animal headed homeward. After it had ran two miles to the Flynn's home, Mrs. Flynn did not notice the handkerchief round the dog's neck, and for several hours the dog fretted around the house until another member of the household returned and saw the mute message. A relief party was quickly organized, and led by the dog, it proceeded toward the scene of the accident. Three-quarters of a mile from there the party met Flynn, crawling painfully along the track. Believing that the dog's mission had failed, Flynn had started laboriously to dig himself out of his prison, using only his hands.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Continued mild weather during the past week has been an advantage to the local contractors and progress has been made that will exceed any in the history of the local building trade. Contractors say they have never seen such a winter in their life time and never has there been so much work done in the winter time before. Those who have occasion to do expensive work say that there is practically no frost in the ground and that cellar and foundation work can be done with almost the ease of mid summer.

Masonry work has had plenty of opportunity for drying without the use of salamanders as in past winters which has been a great saving to the contractors both in time and label. Outside carpentry work has been done with conditions much more favorable to the worker as well as to the owner.

A number of buildings have been brought to the completion stage during the past week. At the state hospital the ward buildings are being brought along at a rapid rate by the H. Wales Lines Co.

The new building for the Silberman Furniture Co., is fast nearing completion and is farther along than was expected when the building was first started. The windows have been set and work is now progressing on the interior.

Several houses in Norwich Town and Bean Hill are being erected. Other sections of the city report good progress in the building line.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were nine sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to five sales during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $59,970 and $10,900.

There were 11 sales of real estate in New London last week, an increase of eight sales over the corresponding week in 1927. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $90,760 and $32,850.

State Building Permits

From the standpoint of building permits issued in the Connecticut building centers, the new year opened rather auspiciously, with a record of 181 permits. This compares with a total of 135 permits issued during the like week a year ago. The total estimated cost of construction work for which permits were issued this past week was less, however, than in the corresponding week in 1927. The total for last week was $731,009 and for the like week a year ago $759,550.

New London

Contractors in the building trades have much to congratulate themselves for in the weather which has prevailed here so far this winter. With half of January already passed into oblivion, there have been but very few days in which the mercury dropped sufficiently to interfere with construction work and the dread of all contractors—snow—has been entirely something of which so far New London has remembered from last year. This, despite reports from southern states and even from the tropical climates that exceptionally cold weather has prevailed.

Of necessity contractors must make some allowances for winter losses due to frost and snow, and accordingly each good day is one to the good. In this respect the contractors with work under way have been exceptionally fortunate and unless a long stretch of severe weather sets in the winter will probably have but very little effect on the building situation locally.

A new two-family dwelling has been enclosed in Ledyard street. The new structure is of frame construction, 22 by 40 feet, of modern design and will have modern conveniences and improvements.

Work has been completed on the construction of a new cottage in Warren street for William Cruise. The new house is 24 by 26 feet, of frame construction, with a set-in entrance, and shingled sides and roof.

A new cottage is being framed in Colman street for Gildo Minucci. The new structure is 26 by 34 feet, of modern design. Work is being done by the day from private plans.

Work has been started on extensive alterations to be made to the Crocker house annex in Union street for the Connecticut Power company. While renovations are being made the power company has moved its departments housed in the annex to the Plant building in State street. The new work will consist of the transformation of the section formerly occupied by the power company and that until recently occupied by the Southern New England Telephone company.

BUILDING HITS ANNUAL WINTER SLUMP IN CONN.

Building activity in Connecticut suffered its usual winter decline during the month of December, although six communities showed gains over the same month last year and although building figures in most cases approximated those of last year, according to reports obtained from the building inspectors of 21 cities and towns by E. L. Taylor, secretary of the committee on industrial development of the New Haven railroad. The seven places showing increases in building totals over December, 1926, were Bristol, Hamden, Middletown, New London, Stamford, West Hartford and Wallingford.

AMBASSADORS of JOY

SALES IN THE STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

LOWEST IN ANY SESSION SINCE JULY 18

NEW YORK, Jan. 19(AP)—Heavy buying of U. S. Steel common, following the announcement that the corporation had raised the price of sheets, plates and bars $1 a ton for first quarter delivery only, injected life into today's stock market after a long period of comparative dullness. The day's sales barely exceeded 1,400,000 shares, being the smallest of any full session since July 18 last, and approximately one-tenth of the business was done in Steel and General Motors stocks.

The weekly Federal Reserve report on brokers' loans, due after the close of the market, undoubtedly tended to restrict trading. The figures showed a decrease of $31,549,000 bringing the total down to $3,787,824,000. No change was made in the 3 1-2 per cent rediscount rate. Call money dropped from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent and other monetary accommodations held steady. The Bank of France reduced its rediscount rate today from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent to bring it more in line with open market rates in the French capital, which has been experiencing a plethora of credit as a result of the return of French capital from abroad.

Speculators for the advance were pleased at the return of Steel and General Motors to market leadership as the recent sluggishness of those stocks was held responsible for the inability of pools to attract a following in other issues. Wall street interpreted the fact that Steel's increase in commodity prices applied to first quarter delivery only, as an indication that a further stiffening was likely, arousing hopes of increased Steel company profits in the first half of the year. Steel closed 3 1-4 points higher at 147. Predictions of record-breaking quarter earnings on General Motors also began to beat fruit, that stock closing 1 1-4 points higher at 132 5-8.

Despite Senator Walsh's effort to bring about a senate investigation of public utility companies, power and light stocks developed several points of strength. Montana Power was run up 5 points to 111 1-2, closing near the top, and Abitibi Power, Brooklyn Edison, Detroit Edison, Electric Power & Light, Federal Light & Traction, and Philadelphia Co. showed net gains of 1 to 3 points. Adams Express jumped 9 1-3 points to 235.

Some of the strong spots in the industrial section included American Woolen preferred, Bordens, Coty, Crucible Steel, Curtis Aero, Fidelity-Phenix Insurance, International Harvester, G. R. Kinney, Midland Steel Products preferred, Republic Steel, Underwood-Elliott, and Warren Bros all up 2 to 7 points.

Rails were quiet but firm. Southern Railway, Mobile & Ohio certificates added 20 points to a 15 point gain of yesterday by touching a record high at 130.

Except for a slight easing in French francs, presumably in reflection of the lower French rediscount rate, the leading foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone. Sterling Cables were quoted around $4.87 21-32. Swedish kroner rallied 10 points to 26.86 cents and Japanese yen gained another 5 points by touching 46.88 cents.

A firmer undertone also was apparent in the commodity markets. Wheat advanced a fraction of a cent a bushel and cotton rallied 12 to 18 points. Sugar and coffee prices advanced slightly.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 19—(AP)—Keeping in step with an unexpected advance at Liverpool, wheat values here displayed pronounced strength at times today, influenced also by unfavorable crop conditions southwest. On the other hand, corn declined toward the last owing a good deal to prospective larger receipts here.

Wheat closed firm, 1-8c to 1-2c net higher, corn 1-4c to 5-8c off, oats unchanged to 1-4c and 3-8c lower, and provisions unchanged to 10c up.

With cold weather predicted and with widespread absence of snow protection for the winter crop, wheat traders were given further reason for anxiety by reports confirming serious drought in north central and western Kansas. It was officially stated that in the Kansas sections referred to much of the new wheat crop gives no signs of life. Meanwhile, coupled with higher Liverpool quotations than due were advices of better British milling demand as well as of numerous bids for cash wheat at the American seaboard.

Larger trading in future deliveries of wheat here than has been the rule of late was also an outstanding feature, but this stimulus was somewhat offset by late weakness of the corn market. Besides, Argentine wheat shipments for the week were almost 2,000,000 bu. greater than for the week previous, and were also decidedly in excess of the total a year ago. As the day drew to an end, selling to realize profits did much also to lop off part of the earlier gains in the wheat market.

Corn prices suffered material setbacks after having scored rather brisk upturns on account of general rains over the corn belt. An increase of country offerings from nearby territory, however, was in evidence on the price bulges, and there were also bearish effects from Chicago purchases of about 200,000 bu. of corn to arrive. Moreover, arrivals of corn in the southwest continued liberal. Oats were governed by the action of corn.

Provisions were firmer, reflecting the trend of hog values.

PLANS FOR POULTRY BREEDING SEASON

A backward glance at egg prices during June, July, August, September, October and November, together with present prices and the immediate future, shows without question that money-making pullets must be hatched quite early. Heavy pullet production during September, October and November yields a very acceptable profit; but under average conditions, the December and January production that follows is not quite as satisfactory.

It is an old saying that we "cannot eat our cake and have it, too"; yet the amount of it that one must experience in a flock of early-hatched, early-laying pullets can be considerably influenced. While a discussion of the various controlling factors must include breeding, brooding, rearing, housing, feeding, and the many details of management, the problem for immediate consideration relative to next year's program, is Breeding.

The salvation of the eastern poultryman, with an ever-increasing flood of southern, middle-western and far-western eggs to meet in competition, must be through more economical production, which is based on better breeding. A careful analysis of the Connecticut Home Egg-Laying contest records shows without question that some flocks do lay heavily and consistently year after year, while other flocks do not.

If one is buying baby chicks, then look carefully to the source of the chicks, and see that they come from the flocks that have an honestly-earned reputation for high egg production. If breeding at home, then the breeding flock should be carefully selected from the very best birds on the farm. If old hens are available as breeders, they should have been carefully selected early in the fall for high, consistent egg production, and be again selected about the first of January to eliminate all that have not come through the molt, or which for any reason do not show good vigor and vitality.

If pullets are used for breeding, they should be carefully selected at the time they are housed for winter, and again about the time they reach maximum fall production. While some pullet culling may be tolerated in January, it should not be general for this reason:

Many of the earliest hatched pullets, that have been the best layers through the fall, may go through a slight fall molt and not be as pleasing to the eye in January as some of the slower maturing pullets that have not laid as heavily. If there are enough pullets available, choose only those which, through external characteristics, show heavy egg production over a long period with no sign of weakness.

It is true that slightly better fertility and hatchability may be obtained if the pullets have gone through a neck molt. It must be remembered, however, that the neck molt should be one caused by management rather than one caused by inability to stand the pace. It is a simple matter to force a fall molt simply by decreasing lights or making any change in management that will decrease the total food consumed; in fact, the average poultryman is confronted with the problem of how to prevent the fall molt rather than how to cause it.

The male side of the breeding pen is by far the most important from the standpoint of selection, because each male is worth fifteen to twenty females.

DEMAND FOR SOY BEANS CALLS FOR EXPANSION OF CULTURE

Soy bean growing is a branch of agriculture in which the national supply does not meet the demand, W. J. Morse, of the United States Department of Agriculture, pointed out to an Illinois audience at the State Soy Bean Day celebration at Urbana. In spite of the very rapid spread of soy-bean culture in the United States in recent years, we imported last year about 31,000,000 pounds of soy-bean oil, 43,000,000 pounds of soy-bean cake, and 4,000,000 pounds of soy beans. These large imports and the increasing utilization of the crop, Mr. Morse said, call for an expansion of soy-bean production in our own country.

In the United States the industry is in its infancy and although soy beans are used primarily for forage, our oil mills offer an opportunity for a greater production of seed. In China the soy bean is primarily a cash crop. It is used in many food products and is an indispensable part of the national diet. In Manchuria, which produces about 70 per cent of the world supply of soy beans, the crop occupies about 25 per cent of the cultivated area, producing on the average about half a ton to the acre.

That the Department of Agriculture is doing its share in promoting soy bean culture is reflected in the fact that one of its agricultural explorers in China obtained approximately 2,000 introductions of seed, which are being tried out by the government with promising results.

HINTS FOR THE FARM

Cows in herd-improvement association of the country number about 400,000 and give an average of about 7,500 pounds. The difference is not a result of monthly testing itself, but the practice usually results in increased average yields in the herds because it reveals to the farmer the profitable high-production cows and is a guide in culling, feeding, and breeding.

It is wise to make sure of the log rule to be used in scaling timber sold from the farm woodlot. The Doyle rule is in common use in the south, but it is not fair in its estimate of board feet in small and medium-sized saw logs. The Scribner rule is fairer and is used in the national forests. For small timber, such as second growth pine, the international log rule gives volumes very close to that which can be sawed out under good methods. A log measuring 10 inches inside the bark at the small end and 16 feet long would scale 64 feet by the International rule and only 36 feet by the Doyle rule.

Maintenance and improvement of native pasture lands, the forage on which is composed mainly of bunch grasses, is dependent upon the periodical production of a fertile seed crop. To insure seed production of the more palatable forage plants requires prevention of too early grazing, avoidance of over-grazing, and effective control and distribution of stock.

Adequate records are necessary to efficient management of any business. Many farmers, owing to a lack of proper records, do not know what returns they actually receive, nor how these compare with returns they should receive for their work and the use of their capital. Some are living on the interest of their capital, making small wages or none, and no net profits. Farm records may vary from the taking of an annual inventory to carrying the most complete and detailed system of cost accounts.

Chicken bedbugs are common. They come out at night and attack the hens, then hide during the day. They draw considerable blood and their bites irritate hens to the extent that they often lose flesh and even stop laying. A spray of carbolineum, crude petroleum, or creosote oil, driven into the cracks in the wood, is recommended.

CHAMPION HOG RAISER'S PRODUCTION METHODS

Pigs are not just pigs, according to Adolph Larson, Washington county, Iowa, winner of first prize in the Iowa pork producers contest. They are pork, and feeding costs should be watched as carefully as weight or good looks, because the profit is the important thing about pork.

In producing 1,930 pounds of pork per sow for each of eight sows in six months' time, consisting of 9.44 pigs per sow, averaging 204.4 pounds each at 189 days, Mr. Larson was declared Iowa's champion pork raiser in 1927, winning over 800 hog men who entered the contest. The cost per pound was less than five cents. He used Spotted Poland China hogs.

"I fed just a little linseed meal in ground oat slop," said Mr. Larson, "to have the sows in good condition, and I spent a lot of time at the hog house even before the pigs came. I made a mixture of 40 pounds tankage, 40 pounds alfalfa meal and 20 pounds linseed meal, and I put about 4 quarts of this in 14 quarts of whole oats in a trough morning and night in addition to the slop and 2 ears of corn per sow."

Mr. Larson kept a fairly accurate account of the amount of feed fed from farrowing until the pigs were sold. It reads as follows: Corn 1,100 bushels; oats 28 bushels; tankage 1,800 pounds; linseed meal 1,400 pounds; alfalfa meal 800 pounds; 200 pounds of minerals and the run of ten acres of clover pasture.

The cost of corn, Mr. Larson calculates, was $682; oats $9.80; tankage $68; alfalfa meal $12; minerals $4.50; pastures $52; linseed meal $36.40.

The cost per pound of gain upon this basis for feed alone would be actually 4.9 cents or approximately 5 cents per pounds.

This feed cost represents about 80 per cent of the cost of growing these pigs. Including labor costs, etc., the gross production cost is approximately seven cents a pound.

THE JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE AS A CROP PLANT

The Jerusalem Artichoke, a widely known but little used plant native to the United States, has recently taken on new interest because of the development of an improved method for producing levulose from its tubers. Levulose is a form of sugar which is considered by many authorities to be much sweeter than ordinary cane sugar.

The renewed interest in the Jerusalem artichoke and its possibilities calls for a thorough study of the plant. Accordingly the United States department of agriculture has recently published technical bulletin No. 33-T, in which has been collected and reviewed all of the published works on the artichoke. Besides a summary of available literature the bulletin includes the results of preliminary work in the study of varieties. Suggestions for improvement of varieties are also included.

The culture of the Jerusalem artichoke is very similar to that of corn and is no more expensive, except harvesting, which is comparable with that of potatoes. Although it has a rather undeserved reputation as a weed because of its hardiness, it can be kept under control by proper rotation and cultural practices.

It has long been regarded as a competitor of potatoes and for that reason has not received the attention it seems to merit. It has a much wider range of usefulness, however, than as a substitute for the potato. All parts of the plant may be used for feed, forage, human food, or for manufactured articles. Some French investigators have suggested the use of the stalks for fuel and of the pith for use in research laboratories. It is particularly valuable for diabetics, who seem able to use the inulin contained in it to better advantage than is the case with sugars or starches.

If the United States is to grow the plant more extensively, the success of the crop will depend on economic adjustments, says the department. The basis of selection will be an attempt to find the type of variety which can most cheaply produce inulin.

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Coming! Buck Jones on Silver Buck in the role of a good-bad man among the "Hills of Peril."

A picture of daring and danger—pathos and laughter—breath taking excitement and a love story brimming with suspense.

Action—thrills—hard riding and hazardous stunts are a feature of the "Hills of Peril."

A fine cast supports Buck, including George Hale, star of Chaplin's "Gold Rush."

Don't miss the best western entertainment of the season.

Coming to Breed for a two day showing commencing today.

In some Mexican villages, a man still hangs around his neck the dead body of a humming bird, sacred to the Aztec god of war, to gain the love of a woman.

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—The quilt mill of Palmer Brothers, on Washington street, employing a large number of hands is to be operated on half-time beginning Monday next, and until that date the employes will be idle. Last night with the suspension of work the employes were informed that the mill would be shut down until next Monday and on that day the half-time schedule would prevail indefinitely. The reason for the shut down and half-time operation of the mill is lack of orders. The storehouse is well filled with blankets and comfortables and because of the extremely mild winter there has not been a demand for the product of the mill, hence the reduction of expenses. It is the first time in a number of years that the mill has not been operated on full time.

CLUB ATTENDANT GETS FINE OF $200 AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—Francis Sullivan, employed at the Railroad club, Railroad avenue, was in the police court this morning, charged with violation of the liquor law. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs. Sullivan paid into the treasury of the city the least amount of any of the men and women arrested in the series of raids made by the police ten days ago, for he was charged with but one count, actual sale, Sullivan having sold a pint of whiskey to one of the spying sailors. All of the others paid $400 and costs, for two charges were levied against them. Sullivan could not be found at the time of the other arrests for he left the city the day that the arrests were made. He returned to New London Sunday night and Monday he delivered himself to the police when bail was furnished and he was ordered to present himself in court today.

FRESH MONTVILLE YOUTH TREATED WITH LENIENCY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—Joseph Maher, 18, of 7 Williams street, employed by the Robert Gair company, Montville, was charged in the city court today with tampering with fire apparatus. Maher can consider himself lucky that he was not also charged with burglary for after the disposal of his case it was discovered that he had burglarized the lunch wagon on Bank street, owned by Raymond Hurley. Maher was at the lunch wagon about midnight and was ejected. He was also on the sidewalk there at 1:30 o'clock when Hurley and his wife closed the wagon and started for their home. It was afterwards that Maher went to the wagon and forced an entrance. Gaining admission to the wagon, Maher did considerable damage and removed some of the utensils. He then went to the firehouse of the Allen Hook and Ladder company and while there he tampered with the wires controlling the operation of the engine. He was detected by Driver Edward O'Connor and complaint was made to the police with the result that Maher was arrested by Patrolmen Edward Riordan and John Foley. In court he was sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. After Maher had left the police headquarters, Hurley appeared there and made complaint against Maher for stealing from the lunch wagon. When the story was related to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, Hurley was loath to press the complaint because of the fact that the young man resides with his aunt and is practically her only support. Maher, however, will pay for the damage he caused. When Maher was arrested, two large knives taken from the lunch wagon were found on his person.

Daniel J. McGuire, former brakeman in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, on a charge of trespassing upon railroad property. McGuire was at the union station last night and after loitering there a long time, Special Agent Jorgerson ordered him out of the station. McGuire refused to do so and this act resulted in his arrest and prosecution.

Salvatore Delaporte, of Shaw street, was charged with violation of the city's ordinance providing that public service drivers shall solicit fares only from the public service stand, Union station. The case was nolled. Delaporte was arrested two weeks ago when detected by Patrolman Albert Iverson soliciting fares on the south side of State street, near the corner of Bank street and in front of the Union Cab company. Delaporte was arrested and the following day the case was continued to today.

The only other case given a hearing was that of a young man residing on Church street, who was arrested today upon complaint of his wife, who preferred a charge of non-support against him. The man was arrested by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh. The case was continued to Thursday next and it is understood that the accused will support his wife and family and in that way avoid being given penalization by the court.

Automobile owners, who maintain cars at the least possible expense, especially where the purchase of tires is concerned, continued the obtaining tires by theft last night. Two auto owners reported to the police that spare tires were taken from their cars while the autos were parked. One owner to lose a tire was E. F. Totten, Lawrence-Memorial hospital, the theft being made while the owner left his car on Huntington street, near State street. The other was Mrs. Richard Mulcahy, of Quaker Hill. Mrs. Mulcahy parked her car on Meridian street, a thoroughfare which has always provided prey for auto thieving. When she returned, it was discovered that a spare tire had been taken.

George Dennison, messenger boy, residing on Willetts avenue extension, reported to the police last night that while he was away from his bicycle, which he had left on the sidewalk of Bank street, between Spurrgard and Howard streets, the wheel was stolen.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Frost, of 40 Blackhall street, are in New York for several days.

Peter Jr., twin son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smeraldi, 30 Montauk avenue, died yesterday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Abe Quint, 361 Ocean avenue, Miss Agnes Rogers, 106 Squire street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Private funeral services were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Charles E. Daboll at his residence, 116 Federal street, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, officiating. The bearers were Edwin C. Ford, J. Warren Gay, William E. Lewis and Marvin E. Smith. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Yula M. Perkins, wife of Clarence V. Perkins, formerly of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at 48 Chapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. E. E. Knapp, pastor of Jordan Baptist church. Relatives and acquaintances acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Harry Henderson, submarine base. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the driver's license of Charles Ellis, U. S. S. Camden.

First Selectman John Lyman, of Middlefield, Conn., has communicated with the New London police, requesting that they notify Ernest Roath, 229 1-2 Broad street, that his family is anxious for Roath to return to his home. Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray found Roath and informed him of the message from his family.

MISSING STUDENT CLUE FURNISHED BY HOTEL MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—The New London police are working on a clue that possibly may result in the finding of Frances St. J. Smith, Smith college student, who mysteriously disappeared from the college five days ago and whose whereabouts have remained a complete mystery since, although wide publicity has been given by newspapers in an endeavor to find the girl. Saturday afternoon a girl about 18 and answering the description of the missing student, accompanied by a young man, went to a local hotel and registered as "Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Coulle, Providence." The couple remained at the hotel until Sunday evening when they left. It was not until several days after the couple had registered at the hotel that the manager saw a picture of the missing student in a newspaper. He at once was struck by an almost positive likeness between the picture and the guest of a few nights before. Being convinced that the girl was the missing student, the hotel man this afternoon went to police headquarters and made known his observation and suspicion. The hotel man said that the girl remained in the hotel throughout Saturday night and Sunday, but her companion made several trips from the hotel. In describing the attire of the girl, the hotel man gave a description of the coat she wore and that description tallies with a coat which the girl is supposed to have taken with her when she left the college. The police of Providence have been communicated with in the hope that it could be determined whether there is anyone residing in Providence of the name under which the couple registered here. A good description of the young man was also furnished the Providence police. Up to 10 o'clock tonight, no word had been received from the Providence authorities.

MILLER BUILDING CONTRACTS AUTHORIZED BY COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—A special meeting of city council was held this evening at which authority was given the city manager to make contracts to heat, furnish plumbing for and paint the interior of the Miller building at 277 Bank street. This property is to be used for school purposes to take the place of the Jennings school building recently destroyed by fire. Councilor Twomey objected to any contracts being awarded until an option could be secured from the director of law as to whether the council had the authority to make such contracts. He objected to awarding each of the three contracts, but he was outvoted in each case.

The contract for the plumbing went to M. Mallove for $115, while the other bids were $320 and $424. Councilor Scott hesitated about awarding the contract at the price, but he was assured that the inspector of plumbing would see that the work was done according to specifications. The contract for heating went to the Van Keuren company at $498, that being the lowest bid received. Other bids varied from $600 to $800. The painting contract was awarded Prevost and Christal at $190. Other bids were at variance up to $300.

Three building applications were granted, including that for a building on Hempstead street against which there was objection last Monday on the ground that the structure was out to the sidewalk line. It was represented that the building inspector had given the permission and that there was no established building line on the street. Joseph and Eva Rutberg were given permission to erect a building on Montauk avenue on representation of their attorney, Frank L. McGuire, that the parties had moved the structure back so that it was in conformity with other buildings on the avenue. It was declared that the location of the building out beyond the lines of other structures on the avenue was an error, and that it was not intended to have the building situated except on the established line.

Louis Markow was given permission to erect a bungalow on Pequot avenue to replace the former school building destroyed by fire Christmas morning. The understanding a week ago was that Markow was to rebuild the structure damaged by fire to the extent of more than one-half its value. That is not the intention of Mr. Markow and he will erect an entirely new building on the land. The city manager told the council that the ordinance for bidding the repair of buildings damaged or deteriorated to the extent of one-half its value had to do with structures within the fire limits. This proposed structure is not so located, so the ordinance does not in any way affect its repair or reconstruction.

MAYOR URGES WATCHFULNESS AGAINST SMALLPOX CASES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 19.—At the special council meeting this evening, Mayor May cautioned the city manager, and through him the health department of the city, to be watchful for the first appearance of smallpox, prevalent in Middlesex county and which has appeared in New Haven county. He urged watchfulness and bespoke the cooperation of the physicians of the city and the health department to combat the disease in the event that a single case appears here. The city manager assured the mayor that all was in readiness with vaccine and the cooperation of doctors, to see that the first case was promptly attended to. He said he had no fear whatever that the disease would get any foothold in New London.

Mrs. John Dorsey, mother of Patrolman Michael Dorsey, died at her home in Ireland, last Christmas day; the news of her death was received by relatives here today. Besides Patrolman Dorsey, Mrs. Dorsey is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary A. McGarry, of this city, and Miss Margaret Dorsey, a registered nurse at St. Petersburg, Fla., and by three sons, John Dorsey, of Tilley street; Patrick and Thomas Dorsey, of Ireland.

The funeral of Mrs. Nettie M. Ladd, wife of Jabez B. Ladd, of Poquonoc Bridge, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Poquonoc Bridge Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. Albert E. Hylan. The bearers were William Chapman, Marcus L. Train, Charles Palmer and Adrian Hewitt, all of Groton. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

Miss Gladys Slawick, registered nurse and a member of the New London Visiting Nurse association for three years, has resigned to become assistant supervisor of the children's ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Miss Barbara Prindley, of Fall River, Mass., has been appointed to succeed Miss Slawick.

P. LeRoy Harwood, treasurer of the Mariners Savings bank, is in New York to remain until Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Olga Gebhardt, about 65, of 221 Huntington street, died this afternoon at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where she had been a patient about a week.

Favorite of all his literary works, "Joan of Arc" was the only one of Mark Twain's books he considered worthy of dedication to his wife. It was on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, in 1895, that he made this dedication "in grateful recognition of her twenty-five years of valued service as my literary adviser and editor." Clara Clemens, daughter of Mark Twain, will be seen at the Lyceum, New London, on Saturday, January 21, matinee and night in a dramatization of her father's "Joan of Arc."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A new show presents itself at the Broadway theatre today, bringing to the stage and screen a program guaranteed by the management to be one of the best seen here this season. The vaudeville headliner, Norman Stocker and his ten syncopates, come to the Broadway direct from a record-breaking engagement of two years at the Strand Roof, in New York. It is through the courtesy of the National Broadcasting company that Mr. Stock is allowed to accept a limited number of vaudeville engagements, his being able to appear in Norwich being indeed a stroke of good fortune for local theatregoers. Other acts on the bill include Flo Carlson and company in a delightful song and dance offering. Miss Carlson is a pretty miss with a manner of personality that should win her many friends. Tim and Betty Meyers present their comedy skit "Castles in the Air." Victor Graff possesses a charming voice, together with a choice selection of songs, while Martin and Martin open the program with their acrobatic novelty called "Allez 'Oop."

Fred Thomson appears on the screen in his latest Paramount production, "A Pioneer Scout," a most worthy successor to "Jesse James," his premier effort in big western features. Thomson with his horse, Silver King, has won international fame through his work on the screen and is to be featured very soon in one of the most lavish western productions since "The Covered Wagon."

The show as a whole looks to be very good and capacity audiences are expected by Manager Fink to fill the Broadway the last three days of this week.

Breed Theatre

After completing "What Price Glory," Director Walsh's first step in preparing for the filming of "Loves of Carmen" was to secure the services of his "Glory" stars, Miss Del Rio and Mr. McLaren, for the new picture. Old Spain has been invaded for costumes. Spanish artists and architects aided in reproducing the authentic atmosphere of Seville.

Miss Del Rio's Spanish heritage and her temperament enabled her to give a most artistic portrayal of the fiery Carmen. With the same skill shown in his interpretation of Captain Flagg in "What Price Glory," McLaglen played the role of Escamillo, the rugged bullfighter, with convincing realism. The part Don of Jose was assigned to Don Alvarado, himself a Spaniard. Nancy Nash, Mathilde Comont, Fred Kohler, Carmen Costello and Jack Bastian have other important roles.

The cast of favorites, a romantic drama of popular appeal and a director who has proved he can produce great pictures—this is the combination that is offered the patrons of the Breed Theatre Sunday for an engagement of four days.

Strand Theatre

W. Ray Johnston presents an imperial photoplay "The Wheel of Destiny," directed by Duke Worne and taken from the story "The Man Without a Past," by Joseph Anthony. This is one of the finest stories ever screened, and is acted by a splendid cast of players including Georgia Hale, Forrest Stanley, Ernest Hilliard and Miss Dupont. If you want to enjoy an evening of good screen entertainment, be sure and see this picture. It is worthy of praise and one that you will like to remember.

There is an excellent cast composed of real sons of the west in the new Rayart release "Gun-Hand Garrison" now showing at the Strand. Tex Maynard, cowboy star is featured. Ruby Blaine who, incidentally, has the only feminine role in the picture was raised on a ranch and in choosing the balance of his players, Trem Carr, was equally careful to select only those who know life on the open range and can handle their roles with that native intelligence so essential to successful characterization. The roster includes Jack Anthony, Chas. O'Malley, Arthur Witting and Paul Malvern and Rayart's rough riders.

Palace Theatre

Terpsichore's latest favorite, the Black Bottom, plays a featured role in "The Romantic Age," the Columbia drama with jazz background at the Palace theatre today and tomorrow.

Veria Townsend, a clever Hollywood blonde, who is acclaimed the best dancer of the new step in the film colony, dances the Black Bottom in this production. She gives so intriguing an exhibition of the twister that the staid and solemn butler, played by Bert Woodruff, succumbs to its charms, and despite rheumatic legs, tries it.

In "The Romantic Age," which features Eugene O'Brien ad Alberta Vaughn, Director Robert Florey has made a scintillating picture of today's youth.

Sandow, the great dog actor, whose latest picture, "Avenging Fangs," a co-feature at the Palace, has many ways of expressing various emotions that mere humans haven't.

For example, Sandow can get across many emotions by merely changing the position of his sensitive ears. When his silken coat bristles, it is easy to see that he is violently angry. Then, too, a quiver of the nostrils can express many shades of feeling.

With these remarkable assets, coupled with a thorough training, it is little wonder that this marvelous dog has become so popular with picturegoers. His first two pictures were called "Code of the Northwest" and "Call of the Wilderness." Both were popular wherever shown and "Avenging Fangs" is said to be even greater than these.

Announcement

The affair tonight at the armory will be featured with D'Atri's orchestra, the city's most popular band. The big feature of the evening will be the latest Broadway hits, Cobble Stones, Fascination, Sweet Elaine, Singapore Sorrows, The Beggar, Ice Cream.

Expended By Children's Aid Society.

The sum of $87,870 was expended by the Children's Aid society in the year 1927 for the service rendered to 1149 needy children. Of this number, 946 were new applications; 264 children were given 75,526 days of foster care at the exceedingly small figure of $1.17 per day and at a year's average cost of $77.00.

These interesting figures were pointed to by Ralph Barrow, executive secretary of the society, in his report of the year's work. Mr. Barrow stated further that the society had received children from each of the eight counties of the state: Hartford 593; Litchfield 24; Tolland 9; Middlesex 38; Windham 35; New London 69; New Haven 20; Fairfield 128.

NORWICH ALLOTMENT IS $34,945 IN STATE-AID TO TOWNS OF CONN.

Norwich, with an allotment of $34,945 from the state, will receive the largest sum of any city or town in New London county, under the 28 separate state-aid grants approved by the 1927 legislature. New London is a close second with a total of $34,392 while Stonington is listed third with an allotment of $31,715.

A detailed study of this "swapping" of several million dollars annually between the state and its towns was completed this week by Arthur F. Potter, statistician of the state tax department, showing that while the state goes about collecting large sums in taxes from the 169 municipalities with one hand, with the other it is handing back almost equal amounts of money in grants. The 28 different state grants to towns, authorized by legislative acts, are contributions for every type of project from education and highway construction to mosquito elimination.

Connecticut paid last year to the several towns a total of approximately $4,568,600. Mr. Potter's survey shows. In this amount is included $2,568,768 collected in taxes on the stock of insurance companies and banks. Formerly collected directly by the towns, this tax is now collected by the state and returned through the state tax department. Also included is $133,209 paid to certain municipalities in lieu of taxes due on state-owned land in those towns.

Moneys to be paid to the towns this year under what are termed strictly state-aid grants amount to $1,567,626.47. On the other hand, Connecticut will collect from these towns, offsetting this portion of state grants, about $300,000 for a military tax and $1,500,000 as a state tax, a total of approximately $1,800,000.

The several grants and taxes returned by the state to the towns last year were as follows:

Grant in lieu of taxes, $7,155; stock tax, $2,563,768; estate penalty tax, $126,053; dog license fees, $119,608; railroad indebtedness, $5,500; mosquito elimination, $6,553; legislative grants, $1,760; drawbridges, $1,125; enumeration grant, $338,477; various other educational aids, $620,467; superior court, $6,541; soldiers' aid, $11,522; highways, $75,277; library apparatus, $18,235; child welfare, $16,502; Americanization, $14,307; non-English speaking schools, $16,176; trade school transportation, $10,034; other state aid for schools, $8,509.

Other towns in New London county will receive the following sums: Colchester, $14,547; East Lyme, $6,394; Griswold, $10,246; Groton, $9,802; Lebanon, $14,476; Ledyard, $9,021; Lisbon, $7,820; Lyme, $5,695; Montville, $11,537; North Stonington, $9,068; Old Lyme, 7,939; Preston, $7,419; Salem, $5,506; Sprague, $6,851; and Waterford, $15,833.

ONE-SIXTH OF AGENTS FAIL ON EXAMINATIONS

One sixth of the applicants for agent's license failed to pass the test given by the Connecticut insurance department during the past year. A total of 1,818 examinations were taken in 1927, averaging more than 150 a month, with 301 failing to pass.

Colonel Howard P. Dunham, insurance commissioner, says the examination given during the past year was not more difficult than that given in other years, the questions being concerned with the simple fundamentals of the insurance business. An applicant for a license to sell insurance who is not able to answer the questions is hardly the type of person to be entrusted with the responsibility of dealing with an uninformed public, he points out.

Many of the 301 who failed to pass the test succeeded in subsequent examinations after studying harder. A total of 16,954 licenses were renewed during the past year. Four hundred and eighty-two agents of the other states were granted licenses as of September 15, 1927. The number of agents in Connecticut as of that date was 5,291 while the number of brokers was 370.

INJURIES FROM FALL, NOT FROM ASSAULT

That Robert Chesebro, 51, of Center Groton, who is confined to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital at New London suffering from a fractured nose and other injuries, was hurt in a fall and was not the victim of foul play has been determined by Sergeant Henry V. Albright of the Groton barracks of the state police who completed an investigation Thursday into the facts concerning the finding of Chesebro on a lonely road in Center Groton several nights ago. Chesebro was unconscious when found by Chauncey Crouch of that town and it was at first believed that he had been the subject of a mysterious attack. The state police officer has obtained definite evidence that the man fell against a stone wall while walking along the highway. Chesebro's condition Thursday was said to be comfortable.

RE-BUILDING ORGAN AT THE UNITED CHURCH

At the United Congregational church the work is now going on in re-building the organ mechanically and thoroughly electrifying it in its operation, but the changes and improvements to be made will in no way disturb or affect the voicing of the organ which has grown warm and mellow in tone with the years that have passed since the instrument was presented to the church about 65 years ago by William A. Buckingham, then governor of the state.

The re-building of the organ is to constitute a memorial to the late Frederick W. Lester, organist of the church for over 35 years and it is planned that a tablet will be placed upon the organ indicating the memorial character of the changes and improvements that are being made. Included in the complete re-building of the mechanical equipment of the organ, two of the important changes to be made will be the installation of a new console, or keyboard, and placing the choir organ in a separate expression box, which will immensely improve its adaptability for choir uses.

Members of the congregation are contributing towards the expenses of the improvement, which will approximate $5,000, the readiness with which responses are being received by the committee indicating their willingness to participate in honoring the memory of Mr. Lester, who for so many years was the beloved organist of the church.

The plans are being carried out under the direction of a committee, consisting of Walter F. Lester, chairman, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., and Archibald Mitchell, 4th, who have had the valued advice of the present organist, Dr. J. Lawrence Erb, dean of the department of music at Connecticut college.

The work is being done by the Campkin Organ company of New Haven and will probably be completed in about a month when a programme will be arranged for the opening of the remodeled organ.

LOCAL LIONS MAKING UP PURSE FOR LA FLAMME

With President William R. Frisbie in the chair the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with the usual large attendance. Dick Quinn was the song leader and Lionel Ethler presided at the piano. C. E. Carpenter offered the blessing. The meeting opened with the singing of America. During the luncheon an invitation was read by the president from the United Workers to attend a meeting to be held at the Sheltering Arms Tuesday, January 24. The following were appointed a committee to represent the Lions club: C. E. Carpenter, chairman; Dick Quinn, Abner W. Schwartz, Earl Taggart, Louis Fontaine, Jean Kieffer, J. B. Caron, Thomas Savard and President Frisbie.

The club members are making up a purse to be given to The Norwich Bulletin for the LaFlamme fund. The club has also offered to make arrangements for the LaFlamme boy's education at the Norwich Commercial school to enable him to earn a livelihood in the commercial world.

The five minute speaker of the meeting was Mr. Carpenter and he spoke on Lionism in the United States as illustrated by the Lion's International magazine. He called attention to a letter from President Camp to all Lions clubs. The letter says:

"Get on the job" and stay on it, and International office is ready to help. Herald to the world our creed of Lionism that of "unselfish service" and better demonstrate it. Then an editorial on "Compulsory Service." Show men their obligation to their city. In time of war men are drafted for service to nation. Draft them in time of peace to the service of their city, their civic duty. Draft them in your club.

Mr. Carpenter told of President Camp's visits to 15 clubs, among them Minneapolis, Boston, West Virginia, and our own state, Waterbury, Oct. 22nd, where the U. S. marine band furnished music. At Cincinnati he presented five charters to new clubs.

He also told of the honor roll. Lion Ulsh of Des Moines has had a perfect attendance since July, 1921. Two others in the same club missed but two meetings in six years. Lion Finn of California has not missed a meeting since the club received its charter in October, 1922 and many others perfect in attendance for from three to five years.

Lions club of Jamaica, L. I., has 76 members who haven't missed a meeting in five years.

Waterbury, Conn., has a "child health program" worth our attention. That article is worth reading. Supporting the nutrition play school, helping chronic invalids, homes where need was great but people too proud to ask for help, warm blankets, clothes, mittens, etc., left at many doorsteps on Christmas eve.

Lions club of Albion, N. Y., built cooking shacks for boys.

Farmville, Va., sponsored a hospital. Their first project was a hotel, a community institution.

Activities of Lions all over the United States. Many have been concentrating work for the blind.

Other activities: Placing blind boys in state school; radio set for blind school; radio set for any institution; selling work done by blind to help; hospital fees paid for operation to restore sight for child; individual eye examination for children of city; scholarship for training teachers for work among blind; books for blind; Braille textbooks; glasses for defective pupils who cannot afford; a free eye clinic; potato club for boys and girls each given bushel potatoes, prize $30; endorsed note for boy to buy registered Jersey calf; crippled children furnished suitable shoes, needy families; crippled children's school helped; helped form a band; memberships in Y. M. C. A. given to several boys; phonographs given to institutions; Portland Lions found a special hospital for crippled children; student loan fund assist scholars to higher education; children of a widow taken care of; dentists giving service for children; sunshine camp for sick children; Boy Scouts order; civic activities; new industries; bus lines; hotel; relief work of floods, etc; help to paroled prisoners; auto parking station by Lions; community fair; supplying daily and Sunday papers to hospitals; old lady has home built for her by Lions; "Mothers Summer Camp"; distribution of milk; skating rinks for children; starting zoo; children's carnival; children's room for club.

Mr. Carpenter also spoke of the movement to repair Old Ironsides and urged the Lions to purchase Old Ironsides pictures, as the proceeds are to be used for the repair work of the famous old ship. All members of the club present purchased pictures of Old Ironsides.

Mr. MacMillan who is conducting the Norwich Retail Merchants bureau campaign spoke to the club members, with regard to the drive. The club went on record as in favor of supporting the New London County Agricultural society in its activities during the coming year.

INJURY ENDS IN DEATH OF WEST MYSTIC MAN

William M. Henderson, 69, of West Mystic, died Wednesday night in the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals, at New London. Death was due to nervous shock, following an operation over his right eye, which was severely injured when it was struck by a fragment of rock.

Two weeks ago, Mr. Henderson was breaking a boulder with a sledge hammer when a sharp chip struck him over the eye, cutting in almost to the eyeball. At the hospital, physicians performed the operation in an effort to forestall threatened loss of sight in the eye.

Mr. Henderson, a resident of West Mystic for many years, was a native of New York. He was a painter by occupation. He was a member of the Mystic Baptist church.

Mr. Henderson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida M. Henderson; a daughter, Mrs. John A. Branch, and two sons, Daniel B. and William L. Henderson, all of West Mystic.

MISSING WESTERLY GIRL LOCATED IN NEW YORK

Mary Bekizuk, 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Catherine Bekizuk of Fair View avenue, Westerly, who disappeared from home, Dec. 7 and for whose body Coast Guardsmen of the Watch Hill station dragged the Pawcatuck river for four days, was located in New York city Wednesday night. The girl was working and has been employed almost since her arrival in New York.

She left home Dec. 7, without warning and, insofar as the family knew, without cause. She obtained money from a sister in Stonington the same day and then dropped out of sight.

The afternoon of Dec. 23, Albert L. Lawton of Pawcatuck reported seeing what he believed to be a girl's body washed over the Stillmanville dam in the Pawcatuck river. When the Bekizuk family heard the body story, they reported Mary's disappearance to the police. As a result, members of the Watch Hill station spent four days dragging the river while police ran down various clues on a possible murder theory.

Later it turned out that what had gone over the dam was an old bobby horse.

EKONK YOUTH DIES FROM SHOTGUN WOUND

Arthur S. Gallup, 21, son of Edwin and Lena G. Gallup of Ekonk, died Thursday at a Providence hospital from shotgun injuries received while hunting about a month ago. Following the accident he was taken to the hospital, where his condition became improved and it was thought that he would recover. Suddenly there was a change for the worse and since that time he has gradually failed.

Gallup went hunting with his cousin and received a severe wound from the accidental discharge of a shotgun.

GOV. SMALL OF ILLINOIS TO SUSTAIN SEN. ELECT SMITH

Will Refuse to Recognize the Action of the Senate in Declaring Smith's Seat Vacant—The State Will Have Only One Senator Until December, 1929, Unless an Election is Forced This Year—Senate's Action is Regarded as an Unwarranted Affront to the State of Illinois.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Illinois has received an unwarranted affront from the United States senate in its refusal to recognize Colonel Frank L. Smith as one of its senators, Gov. Len Small declared today in a formal statement in which he served notice he would refuse to recognize the senate action.

Coupled with the declination of Col. Smith to resign, the governor's statement was interpreted as meaning that Illinois would function with one United States senator for the next six years, unless other developments intervened.

Col. Smith was with the governor when the typewritten statement was passed out to newspapermen in the office of Werner W. Schroeder, Gov. Small's personal attorney.

Schroeder said he did not represent Col. Smith and he did not know whether the senator-elect contemplates legal action in a renewed effort to force recognition by the senate.

Oscar E. Carlstrom, state attorney general, said he had no statement to make now, but might have one at some later date after a conference with Col. Smith.

It was understood Carlstrom was ready, as head of the state's legal department, to assert publicity that Col. Smith still was senator-elect from Illinois, despite the senate action, that his credentials were good for six years, and that there was no vacancy subject either to election or temporary appointment.

The Illinois general assembly was on record with a joint resolution holding Colonel Smith was entitled to his seat in the United States senate.

Col. Smith declined to indicate what his next step might be.

Two forms of litigation were said by some to be open to him. One would be to compel payment of the senatorial salary and the other to compel Vice President Dawes to administer the oath of office.

A third discussed in some unofficial quarters was that Col. Smith might see fit to have a notary public or some capable officer administer the oath of office to him.

On the other hand, the Chicago Daily News quoted an unnamed republican leader as explaining Col. Smith's dilemma had two prongs:

"If he attempts to hold his certificate of election the democrats will nominate a candidate for the Smith vacancy in the senate. The republicans then will be forced to nominate a candidate or permit the democratic candidate to win without opposition. Smith will have to run again for renomination and re-election to his own seat or stand idly by clutching a worthless certificate and watch another take the seat to which he was elected."

"As governor of Illinois and in behalf on our people, I desire to express an unqualified resentment of this unwarranted assumption of authority by the United States senate in infringing on the rights of a free people to select a senator of their own choice," Gov. Small said in his statement.

"On behalf of Illinois, I can not and will not recognize the action of the United States senate in declaring that a vacancy exists in the representation of Illinois in the United States senate, for to do so would be to bargain away the constitutional rights of the people of a sovereign state and would be recognizing the power of an unauthorized body to disfranchise an entire state."

Gov. Small called the senate's action "outrageous" and said that it "constitutes a dangerous attempt to nullify the rights of a sovereign state and the people thereof" fraught with the most serious consequences to constitutional government that have arisen in the United States since the Civil war.

SENATOR BRUCE DEFENDS U. S. NICARAGUAN POLICY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The administration's policy toward Nicaragua was vigorously defended today in the senate by a democratic stalwart, Bruce, of Maryland.

Replying to a demand of Senator Dill, of Washington, also a democrat, that American marines be withdrawn from the Central American republic the Marylander declared that the only people in this country who opposed the administration's course were "extreme pacifists and radicals."

This aroused Senator Dill who accused Bruce of classifying him as a radical, but the latter entered a disclaimer, explaining that what he had said was that as far as he knew "every radical in this country" was opposed to the government policy.

"And in that connection," Senator Bruce went on, "I would like to see the authority of the Mexican committee of which I am a member, extended so that it might determine how far clandestine correspondence has gone on between the radicals and communists in this country and those in Mexico and Nicaragua."

Bruce added that he did not think any secretary of state had been more unjustly misrepresented than had Secretary Kellogg on his intervention in Nicaragua.

After describing Sandino as a bandit followed by a "rang of irregulars" Senator Bruce said that in addition he is a prohibitionist.

"He found out, however, that he could not enforce prohibition even by the rifle and machine gune," added the Maryland senator.

"I have been wondering why the senator from Maryland was opposed to Sandino but I know now that it is because he (Sandino) is a prohibitionist," interjected Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

"I don't know anything about Sandino but he certainly is a characteristic one," replied Bruce.

STRIVING FOR RECORD FOR SUSTAINED FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20—(AP)—Undeterred by two previous failures, Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, British air ace, and Lieut. George R. Pond of the United States navy today cruised the airways above California with hopes of breaking the world's record for sustained flight held by two German aviators.

At 8:09 a. m., today they went aloft in the huge tri-motored Fokker monoplane, Spirit of California, with 1,315 gallons of gasoline in the tanks. The pilots said they would try to remain in the air sixty hours. The present endurance record is 52 hours, 22 minutes, 31 seconds, and this time must be bettered by one hour to be officially broken.

Frequent wireless messages from the airmen reported perfectly functioning motors and excellent flying conditions. The aviators' food supply consisted of sandwiches and coffee.

55 MILE GALE IN THE GREAT LAKES STATES

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A winter's spasm of wind and cold afflicting the middle west last night and today was less severe tonight with complete relief in sight tomorrow.

At its height the wind attained a velocity of 55 miles an hour, doing small damage at scattered places in the great lakes states and tossing Lake Michigan about so turbulently that virtually all shipping remained in harbor. Two deaths, one at St. Paul and another at Milwaukee were attributed to the storm.

Zero weather was recorded in the lakes states, while in Illinois and Indiana the thermometer dropped to ten degrees above, snow may follow a moderation tomorrow.

A peculiar accident delayed many commuters today. The wind carried away a heavy switch control box and stalled ten Illinois Central suburban trains until the switch could be repaired.

LINDBERGH PREPARING FOR FLIGHT TO CARACAS

COLON, Panama, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Preparation for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's flight to Caracas is being hastily completed. Lindbergh is expected to arrive at France field at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on his return from a hunting trip in the neighborhood of David, some 200 miles from here.

Russell Vorheis, the Wright mechanic, said today that the Spirit of St. Louis was in fine shape for the contemplated trip to Caracas, and thence to St. Thomas, Haiti, Porto Rico, and Havana. The historic plane is still in the hangar at France field, with the flag of every country visited painted on the fuselage.

No definite news has come out of the mountain paradise, where Colonel Lindbergh is resting and hunting, with other aviators, including his classmate Douglass and Colonel Arthur Fisher, commandant of France field. All efforts to extract information of their doings have been of no avail.

SEARCH FOR MISSING GIRL RESULTED IN A FATALITY

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Search for Miss Frances St. John Smith, nearly resulted in a fatality here today, when a motor boat carrying State Patrolman Alfred A. Mesiner, and Charles J. O'Connor and Harold Ewing, of East Hampton, sprung a leak in the Connecticut river and was barely brought to shore before sinking. The boat had been plowing through ice and fighting a strong wind and high waves, the pounding causing the side to split an inch from the bottom. The craft was beached only after all three occupants had been thoroughly wet.

WITNESSES SUMMONED FOR NEW SENATE OIL INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The summoning of Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, and M. T. Everhart, son-in-law of Albert B. Fall, as witnesses in the new senate oil inquiry to start Monday has taken most senate leaders by surprise and they are extraordinarily curious to see what their attitude will be.

Everhadt, who handled $230,500 in Liberty bonds which formed part of the profits of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, has twice refused to testify in the civil and criminal trials growing out of the Teapot Dome lease on the ground that his testimony would tend to incriminate him.

HOW MEXICANS STAND AT HAVANA CONFERENCE

HAVANA, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Mexico brings no grudges to be settled, nor does the Mexican delegation anticipate that controversial subjects will obstruct the constructive program outlined for the sixes Pan-American congress, Dr. Julio Garcia, venerable president of his country's delegation, declared today.

"Mexico reunites with its sister nations in Pan-American communion after an absence of 18 years," Dr. Garcia said, recalling the fact that his country was last represented at the fourth Pan-American congress in Buenos Aires in 1910. "Our instructions are that we come here to work for the advancement of understanding between the countries of this hemisphere, and we shall devote all our efforts totward that end. We believe in the union of American peoples, and our actions here will prove our sincerity, if any doubt exists."

HIGH SCHOOL ROMANCE CULMINATES IN MARRIAGE

RUMFORD, M., Jan. 20—(AP)—A romance of high school days, culminating in a marriage which had remained hidden for six years, was revealed today, when it was learned that James L. Young, Jr., now a Darien, Conn., high school teacher, was married by the city clerk at Portsmouth, N. H., on October 28, 1921, to Miss Helena A. Brennick, of this town.

At the time they were married Young, who was 25, was teaching school at Union, Me. The day of their marriage was the concluding of the state teachers' convention in Portland, and it is thought here they met there for the Portsmouth trip. She kept her maiden name. Young later came to Lewiston, near here, and entered Bates college, from which he was graduated in 1925. He was well known in the state as an athlete. In the World war, he served in the navy.

SEARCHERS FAILED TO FIND MISSING MOSELY AIRPLANE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A search today from the air by Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock failed to develop the whereabouts of the missing Mosely airplane.

The two aviators, in their Pride of Detroit, in which they attempted to circle the globe, left Charleston, S. C., and followed the North Carolina and Virginia coasts before turning inland. They landed at Bolling field here late in the day.

Schlee said that the last heard of the plane in which Ted Mosely and a companion were rushing Havana News Reel films to New York was that it passed over Virginia Beach at 8:40 p. m. Monday. He expressed the belief that the plane might have plunged into Chesapeake Bay in the fog.

PREDICTION STYLE WILL DECREE LONGER SKIRTS

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Predictions that women's styles eventually will decree longer skirts, with a resultant increased demand for wool, were made today at the annual convention of the National Wool Growers' association.

Wool men have viewed with apprehension the fad in skirts that, some day, has reduced to the "vanishing point" the demand for wool by women.

"While we cannot expect women will ever go back to the long skirts of 10 to 15 years ago, some day styles of women's clothing will change and skirts will be somewhat longer," declared J. S. Stressenger, member of a large Boston wool firm. "Every six inches additional length on a woman's skirt means, in the aggregate, millions of yards of cloth."

HOUSE AT WORK ON REVISION OF THE TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—In the face of opposition on the part of republican party leaders to revision of the tariff at this time, Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, today proposed an increase in the import rates on more than a dozen farm commodities and the transfer of a number of others from the free to the protected list.

He introduced a bill to that end and it was referred to the ways and means committee which must pass on tariff legislation, but predictions based on the line-up of the house recently on the tariff question for the most part were that it would not get far.

Anglican Prayer Book Published

If Ratified by the Church Assembly It Will Go to the House of Commons.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Another phase of the religious strife featuring life of England at present was made today with publication of the newly revised prayer book of the Church of England which will be submitted to the church assembly on Feb. 6.

If ratified by the church assembly, the book will again go to the house of commons where on Dec. 15, after one of the most dramatic debates in modern times, parliament rejected the version upon which the church authorities had labored twenty years.

Coming closely on the heels of publication of the Malines conversation which had sought church unity and the pope's encyclical stating definitely that a return to Rome was essential for church unity, the renewed attempt to obtain approval of the revised prayer book by the house of commons is expected to add fuel to the flame of religious controversy. This controversy has its genesis in charges by one section of the church of England that the revised prayer book is a movement in the direction of Roman Catholic forms and practices.

Certain changes have been made in the newly revised version of the prayer book with reference to forms of worship which came under criticism, but it is understood that these are considered minor and ineffective ones by the extreme Protestant Anglicans and a renewed fight on the revision consequently is expected both in the church assembly and in parliament. It is probable that the new measure will reach the house of commons early in May.

Among the chief alterations is the decision of the bishops to order obligatory daily prayers for the king. The omission of the obligatory prayers for the monarch have been criticized as an indirect slight to the monarch, as head of the church. In the amended form, it is provided that a prayer for the king shall be offered every morning and evening throughout the year.

Another change on a matter which is regarded in church circles as vital, that concerning the doctrine of transubstantiation is made in the insertion of a "black letter rubric," dealing with the question of kneeling before the host.

"No adoration is intended or ought to be done either unto the sacramental bread or wine there bodily received, or unto any corporal present of Christ's natural flesh and blood," this rubric says.

FORMER BANKER GIVEN PENITENTIARY SENTENCE

GENEVA, Ills., Jan. 20—(AP)—John L. Esser, former president of the Aurora, Ills., Trust and Savings bank, today was sentenced to serve from three to thirty years in the state penitentiary for embezzlement.

Esser pleaded guilty several weeks ago but passing sentence was held in abeyance while Judge John K. Newhall of circuit court undertook to find out what became of $200,000 missing from the bank and not mentioned in a confession admitting removal of more than $300,000.

The former Aurora banker is 39 years old, married and has three children.

Esser's peculations were revealed Oct 7, 1927, after directors alarmed by their president's actions, ordered an audit. The president, returning to Aurora from Chicago, drove by the bank in the darkness of early morning. Lighted windows in the account section told him that exposure was imminent. Esser aroused a close friend, a Catholic priest, related his actions and upon advice of the priest notified the officers. He said he had contemplated suicide.

The revelations stupified Aurora where Esser was estimated in business circles as a "go getter."

POISON SUBSTITUTED FOR A HARMLESS INGREDIENT

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 20.—(AP)—A Waite High school instructor and seven students were recovering from serious illnesses tonight while Principal James A. Pollock and two detectives continued to investigate the substitution of a deadly poison for a harmless ingredient in the initiation rites of a school society yesterday.

Clarence C. Noonts, 38, science teacher, who was most seriously ill, was reported by hospital officials to be improving, two of the students were recovering in another hospital and the other five in their homes.

Pollock and Detectives Eaton and Brown today questioned more than 40 students who attended the initiation party of the Alchemists club. An examination of the chemical laboratory disclosed the substitution of the poison for a harmless but ill-tasting chemical.

Miss Lulu Howard, chemistry instructor who prepared the chemicals, said the poison was not on the table shortly before the initiation, she said it probably was placed there after her attention was attracted elsewhere.

The investigation tonight had failed to learn who placed the poison on the table, and it will be continued tomorrow.

Sisters Over the Skin.

Kipling's famous "Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady," who were "sisters under the skin" are sisters over the skin as well in these days when the latest and most authoritative fashion news is available to every woman in the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

Today no woman's clothes need proclaim the thickness of her pocketbook. Where will the waistline be? Bows at the cuffs, or not? "V" neck or square? How long—or how short? What materials does Paris favor? What colors are "being worn"? Those questions are being answered for everyone in the advertisements. And with the answers are being coupled the names of manufacturers and merchants who make and sell materials, trimmings, accessories, on which you can rely. For those advertised names are advertised only because they are reliable. Otherwise you would probably never hear of them.

You can follow the advertised styles with assurance—and buy by advertised names with profit.

Sudden Death of William Dupont

Millionaire Chemical Manufacturer Collapsed While Reading a Newspaper.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Collapsing while reading a newspaper in his winter home near here, William Dupont, millionaire chemical manufacturer of Wilmington, Del., and long an associate in the powder producing company bearing his family name, died suddenly today of heart disease. He was 73 years of age.

With him were his daughter, Mrs. T. H. Somerville, of Wilmington; Mr. Somerville, Dr. E. J. Ryan, of Philadelphia, his personal physician, his secretary and a nurse.

The collapse came unexpectedly while he was surrounded by members of his household in the drawing room just before luncheon, Dr. Ryan said. There had been a general conversation in which Mr. Dupont participated with his usual lively interest, and he had picked up a newspaper when the physician was called from the room.

Just as Dr. Ryan reached the hall, it was said, the aged capitalist slumped down in his chair without speaking and was dead when the physician rushed back, summoned by the cries of the nurse.

Mr. Dupont came here about two weeks ago on the annual visit it had been his custom to make for 15 years and although he had been in poor health for some time he was said by Dr. Ryan to have improved greatly since coming south.

Two children, Mrs. Somerville and William Dupont, Jr., also of Wilmington, survive.

The body will be sent to Wilmington for funeral services and burial, leaving here tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock accompanied by members of the household.

HEFLIN TO PAY "RESPECTS" TO MAYOR OF MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—(AP)—Calm ruled today on the democratic side of the senate after the storm over Catholicism and Governor Alfred E. Smith and the challenging of the leadership of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, by Senator Heflin, of Alabama.

Given an overwhelming vote of confidence by his party colleagues, the Arkansas senator apparently regarded the incident as closed, especially since Heflin had publicly withdrawn his challenge of the leader's right to sit on the special committee investigating Mexican documents published in Hearst newspapers.

The Alabama senator seemed disinclined to continue the feud with his party leader, although he still insisted that the party conference in voiting confidence in Robinson had in no wise administered any rebuke to him for attacking the Roman Catholic church and the New York governor or for challenging Robinson's leadership when the Arkansan vigorously assailed him on the senate floor.

However, Heflin reiterated that he would continue on the course he has mapped out in opposition to Smith and to the workings of what he calls the Roman Catholic political machine. In addition he gave notice that he would on Monday pay his respects in the senate to Mayor Gunter, of Montgomery, Alabama, for the attack the mayor made upon him in a telegram to Senator Robinson inviting the democratic leader to visit the Alabama capital as the guest of the city and make a speech there.

RECOMMENDATIONS ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

HAVANA, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Recommendations adopted by the committee on public international law today, which will be submitted to the Pan-American conference, recommend that instead of the drawing up of conventions specifically prohibiting intervention in the affairs of another state and ordering recognition of a de facto government, these maxims should be merely contained in a declaration of principles.

The committee recommends in principle that:

"No state may intervene in the foreign affairs of another."

"A government is to be recognized whenever it fulfills the following conditions:

"1—Effective authority with a probability of stability and consolidation, the orders of which government, particularly as regards taxes and military service, are accepted by the inhabitants.

"2—Capacity to discharge pre-existing international obligation to contract others and to respect the principles established by international law."

FREE STATE HEAD HERE ON A MISSION OF FRIENDSHIP

President William T. Cosgrave Landed at the Battery, New York, at Noon Yesterday—Chuckled at Weak Attempts at Unfriendly Demonstrations as He Rode up Broadway, New York—Just Before 3 p. m. Mr. Cosgrave Left on the Twentieth Century Limited For Chicago—Declined to Comment on De Valera.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State whirled through New York so fast today on his first visit to America that he was gone almost before it was realized he was here.

Landing at the Battery just before noon he was on his way to Chicago well before three o'clock. His brief stay consisted of not much more than a ride up Broadway and a handful of official speeches.

Three thousand police were called out to preserve order but they had almost nothing to do beyond watching the parade and listening to the band.

A few very minor disorders were quickly quieted but they did not escape the quick eye of the little blond Irishman. Asked as he was leaving if he had noticed the weak attempts at unfriendly demonstrations he chuckled and replied "Oh, yes, indeed."

The liner Homeric, on which President Cosgrave came to America, reached Quarantine late last night but the passengers remained aboard. This morning the Irish leader was transferred to the city tug Macom and brought to the Battery by the mayor's welcoming committee, each silk hatted member wearing a large gold badge on which the visitor's name was spelled Cosgrove instead of Cosgrave by what Grover Whalen, the mayor's welcomer in chief, called a "stupid error."

The crowd at the Battery, a friendly crowd though undemonstrative and scarcely more numerous than the police, had been cleared of three men and a woman bearing placards derogatory to the president shortly before he arrived.

The progress up Broadway was between lanes of police so close that they looked like a blue picket fence. A few women waving flags and shouting remarks of an unfriendly nature gave police the odly work they had to do.

At city hall the president and the mayor, who had met in Ireland last year, exchanged felicitations, and then the presidential party continued uptown, to receive the blessing of Cardinal Hayes.

After that they went to the private cars attached to the fourth section of the Twentieth Century Limited and soon were whisked away. It seemed possible that somewhere on his journey President Cosgrave might easily enough meet Eammon de Valera, Irish republican leader and his political adversary, who is also in America, but little was said about that.

"My mission is one of friendship," the president told reporters. "It would not be fitting for me now to speak of Mr. de Valera."

From Chicago the president and his party will go to Ottawa, Washington, Philadelphia and so back to New York. On Feb. 3 Mr. Cosgrave will be guest of honor here at a dinner of the Lotos club.

PRONOUNCES AMERICA AN AMAZING COUNTRY

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20—(AP)—Aboard the Twentieth Century Express, Jan. 20—(AP)—Speeding westward for a 24 hour visit in Chicago William T. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Free State, today expressed gratitude for his reception in New York mingled with amazement at things American as he had taken mental note of them since setting foot on United States soil for the first time today.

As he talked to an Associated Press correspondent in the private car assigned him and fellow members of his cabinet, the president of the executive council of the Irish Free State showed all the excited interest of an immigrant in the landscape flashing past his window.

"This is an amazing country," he said. "Already I've gathered any number of impressions, even though I've been in your United States only a few hours.

"I was very favorably impressed with the wonderful reception accorded us by the mayor and people of New York.

"I don't think you New Yorkers can appreciate what a tremendous place you live in. Those immense buildings; that great harbor; the signs of prosperity everywhere are some of the things that have impressed me so far.

"I was stirred also at the enthusiasm and kindness of the people. Your prosperity in this country has not interfered in any way with your kindness."

He declined to discuss any of Ireland's political affairs.

Mr. Cosgrave said he was looking forward keenly to his "fortnight trip."

His itinerary includes a visit or four days in Washington, after he leaves Chicago Sunday, leaving Washington, he will go to Philadelphia, New York and Ottawa.

W. J. Fripp, assistant vice-president of the New York Central railway was aboard the train, acting as host to the Irish statesmen. The official delegation included Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of defense; Josephlaishe, secretary of the department of external affairs; Diarmuid Hegarty, secretary of the executive council; T. A. Smiddy, Irish Free State minister to Washington; and Col. Joseph Reilly, aide-de-camp to Mr. Cosgrave. Walter McNally, of Chicago, was also aboard representing the Chicago hosts of the visitors. The train was due to arrive in Chicago at 9:45 a. m., central standard time tomorrow.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE MET SOME OF HIS RELATIVES

ABOARD THE TWENTIETH CENTURY LIMITED ENROUTE TO CHICAGO, Jan. 20—(AP)—The arrival of William T. Cosgrave, president of the executive council of the Irish Free State, in New York today was the occasion for a brief reunion with some of his relatives who live in this country, he told the Associated Press.

In New York, he said, he had met four cousins, Robert Connery, of Providence, R. I.; W. J. Nixon, Mrs. Kitty Dooher and Mrs. Ethna Dooher, of New York, and a sister-in-law and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. O'Farrell of Montreal. He said he also had met a brother-in-law, Frank Flanagan, who is on a visit to America from Ireland.

SENATE WRANGLES OVER S-4 DISASTER INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—(AP)—After clashing intermittently for more than four hours today as to whether a presidential commission or congress shall investigate the S-4 disaster, the senate adjourned without a vote on the house resolution which automatically went back to the calendar.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking democrat on the naval committee, demanded a vote, but Chairman Hale, of that committee, objected on the ground that several other senators wanted to speak on the resolution.

Then the Virginian served notice that he would object to the resolution being called up again out of order.

"I will not be trifled with this way," he declared. "I got out of a sick bed to come here and it will take unanimous consent to get this resolution up again out of its regular order."

Under the leadership of Swanson, the democrats demanded a separate investigation by congress of the disaster, with the presidential commission inquiring only into devices to prevent such disasters in the future and for saving officers and men after submarines are sunk.

Administration proponents of the resolution, which was introduced at the suggestion of President Coolidge, moved to amend it to provide for the appointment of a federal judge on the proposed commission of five members.

It was revealed also by Chairman Hale that Secretary Wilbur already had asked three men if they would be available to fill the three places to be given to civilians.

These men, he said, were John F. Stevens, of New York, president of the American Society of Civil Engineers; W. R. Whitney, of Schenectady, N. Y., director of research of the General Electric company; and Thomas A. Scott, a salvage expert.

The house resolution called for the appointment of three civilians and two retired naval officers. Senator Hale would have a federal judge replace one of the proposed naval officers.

Senator Swanson proposed the appointment of a joint committee to include three members of each house.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, of the republican independent group, joined hands with the democrats for a congressional investigation but thought the president had the power to conduct his own inquiry.

McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, then proposed that the house resolution be modified to provide only for an appropriation of $20,000 for the president in the event that he should decide upon an inquiry of his own. McKellar would then have congress go ahead on its own investigation.

When Sure Shot Eddie Morgan shot a basket they would raise the shingles from the roof. About 8:15, Referee Fitzpatrick blew the whistle. Noank was on the west side, Westerly on the east. The Crescents were out to even the series with the R. I. boys. After two minutes of play, Dash A. Patterson sank a long shot for the first score of the evening, both teams going at it fast. First quarter ended with Crescents 8, Battery E 6. In the second quarter, Battery E came with a rush but the Crescents kept after the ball while Flash MacDonald was keeping Machine Gun Lamb covered. The cheering section for the half-moon boys was led by Wilfred Sawphere. He put the pep into his gang, when either side would make a good shot. The first half was over with Noank in front by a close score, Crescents 16, Battery E. 12. During rest time, Capt. L. Patterson told Scorer Balerstracci that Stretch Morrison would be at center, while Sure Shot Morgan was at guard. The third quarter got under way with a fast pass work by the Crescents. Dash A. DANIELSON

MANUFACTURERS SILENT AS TO WAGE REDUCTIONS

DANIELSON, Jan. 20.—No definite information was available here this afternoon as to what cotton manufacturing concerns may do about wage reductions,if anything. Interest in the possibility was aroused by this morning publication of press despatches from Fall River telling of a decision to reduce wages in the cotton mills of that city by 10 per cent., the new schedule effective Monday, January 30.

Inquiry in various quarters where first-hand knowledge of such an important matter as a possible wage reduction likely would be known in this territory brought out no information for publication and no definite statement one way or the other. One was left with the impression that the matter is still up in the air insofar as northeastern Connecticut cotton mills are concerned.

It is generally known in circles in close touch with cotton manufacturers that they dislike the thought of a wage reduction. They would very much prefer maintaining the present scale. But they are dealing with realities—pressing realities—rather than ideals and likely will be governed thereby.

In the past, on a great many occasions, advances, or reductions, in wages in cotton mills in Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell, Lawrence and other New England textile centers have been promptly reflected here. For the present the public must await a decision.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry if thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them, 15c, 30c, 60c.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

The girl with the heart of a wanton, the mind of a child and the soul of a woman, "Carmen," at last will be depicted by one who understands the emotions of the famous character born from the prolific pen of Prosper Merrimee. Probably for the first time the celebrated story of the little gypsy girl with the flaming eyes and fiery emotions will be portrayed by a real Spanish beauty, one who doesn't need a vivid imagination to conceive of the proverbial passions of Old Seville, for through her veins courses the blood of "Carmen."

She is Dolores Del Rio, reared in romantic Mexico by parents of Spanish nobility, who will be seen in the title role of the William Fox screen version, titled "Loves of Carmen."

The stage has had "Carmens" of the opera in the persons of Geraldine Farrar, Raquel Meller, Mary Garden, Emma Calvi and others of more or less renown, and Theda Bara at the height of her vamping fame portrayed the wild rose of Spain on the screen but none equalled the physical "Carmen" as she will be seen in the form of Dolores Del Rio.

Again, as in the other Fox motion picture, "What Price Glory," Dolores is the foil to the amorous wooing of Victor McLaglen, the British soldier of fortune, the bronze giant with the infectious smile, the devil-may-care spirit and the ever youthful recklessness which has won a place in the hearts of picture lovers everywhere.

"Loves of Carmen" will open an engagement of four days at the Breed theatre tomorrow night at 7 and 8:45.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the Norwich Caledonian society was planning its annual concert and ball, which was scheduled to be held at Union hall, Greeneville. The same week a charity ball was held for the benefit of the Provident society at Breed hall. It proved a big success and the Provident society's treasury was considerably enriched by the proceeds. Interesting extracts from the file of The Norwich Bulletin of January, 1878, are as follows:

Monday, Jan. 14, 1878—The 13th annual convention of the Connecticut Temperance union is to be held at the Broadway church tomorrow, commencing at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. The Hon. Neal Dow of Maine, Dr. Noble of New Haven and the Rev. L. T. Chamberlain of this city are among the speakers.

The whole combined force of the membership of the Provident association are now busy, and more than busy, in selling tickets for the charity ball.

The two singular squirrels that lived at the Rockwell place, and were so fortunate as to get themselves into print, after much effort, have both been caught and are to be civilized.

Tuesday, Jan. 15, 1878—The funeral of the late John Dunham occurred yesterday at the Second Congregational church, of which the deceased was a member. The ceremonies were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Dana and the Rev. Mr. Palmer. The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: Henry B. Norton, A. W. Prentice, Frank Johnson and Amos E. Cobb. The remains were interred in the old Norwich cemetery.

One of the finest looking turkeys everexhibited in this city may be seen at the market of T. M. Frasier, corner of Market and Water streets. It is an importation from New Jersey and weighs, liveweight, 37 pounds.

Mr. Palmer Bill has just completed the enumeration of scholars in the West Chelsea school district. He ascertains that there are 926 children between the ages of 4 and 16 years, which is 12 less than last year.

Wednesday, Jan 16, 1878—The 13th annual meeting of the State Temperance union was held at the Broadway church yesterday. The meeting opened at 10 o'clock and the services occupied the remainder of the day and evening. The several addresses were prepared with much care, the discussions were live and animated, and the meeting was a gratifying success.

Remember the entertainment uptown this evening. The original "Mr. Smith" is to appear. Give these entertainments your hearty patronage.

A man named McCarthy was quite badly injured in Greeneville Monday by being caught in the machinery of the factory.

The fashion of wearing red mitts is what is said to be having such a soothing effect on the weather.

The well known and popular minstrel troupe of Morris Brothers will appear at Breed hall on Saturday evening next. The New York Glee club accompanies them. Reserved seats for sale at Davis & Breed's this morning.

By all means purchase a ticket to the O. D. One charity ball to be given Friday night in aid of the poor of the city. In rendering aid to such an object you will have at least initiated this worthy class into a lodge of "Our Delighted Ones."

Thursday, Jan. 17, 1878—The donation to the Rev. E. S. Hill in the vestry of the Baptist church at Preston City Tuesday evening was the occasion of many pleasant greetings to the beloved pastor, and the argument was clinched with a roll of bank bills footing $85. Two hundred and forty persons gathered and participated in the supper and the merrymaking.

The enumeration of children in the Central school district, as just completed by Mr. Daniel Lee, shows 1,504 persons between the ages of 4 and 16 years. This is a falling off of 9 from last year.

The prices paid for supplying the almshouse on recent contracts are these: Corned beef, 6 cents a pound; flour, $8 a barrel; coal, $4.25 a ton. Good articles are said to be obtained at these rates.

Pork in the hog has cost less this winter than for 20 years past. It touched very near the same figure in 1861, however.

Thomas E. Ryan of this city has been elected delegate to the national convention of greenbackers.

Friday, Jan. 18, 1878—The 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. Henry Spaulding and wife on Wednesday evening was pleasantly remembered by a half hundred of their friends in the Universalist church society who think silver weddings a good institution. The wedding feast was duly spread and merry. A complete silver service was presented the surprised and delighted pair.

The boot and shoe dealers, the clothiers, the furriers and robe dealers, the skate and sled manufacturers would like to see colder weather. Sleighs and sleigh bells are poor stock in trade at present. The icemen are anxious to secure a harvest, the farmers want snow to secure good crops and the stablemen to make business lively. The coal business increases as the mercury contracts.

The schools of the West Chelsea school district will be closed this afternoon in consequence of the funeral of Miss Lottie M. Johnson, who has long been a faithful teacher in the district.

Saturday, Jan. 19, 1878—Itschknmostichsxi, the delegate from Behring Straits to the charity ball of the O. D. Ones, was observed yesterday forenoon on the new wharf in his shirt sleeves, chewing beef suet and being fanned by his servant, owing to the intense heat.

The O. D. Ones' masquerade ball last night, in the variety, absurdity and grotesqueness of costume, exceeded anything of the kind ever witnessed here. That worthy organization, the Provident association, will realize a large amount.

The Norwich Caledonian society have their annual concert and ball at Union hall, Greeneville, on the 25th inst., the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns.

NORWICH NEEDS THIS ROAD

Now that the campaign of the merchants bureau has resulted so successfully, and for which it is to be congratulated, it is believed that there is an opportunity for the merchants of the city to give their support to a project which would result in bringing more traders to Norwich.

This concerns the continuation of the state road from Preston City to a point where it would bring the thriving village of Glasgo and the village of Voluntown, which has great possibilities with its fine mills and waterpower, in direct touch with Norwich. Look in every direction and Norwich has good roads reaching out to its trading area with the exception of this. It is one of the largest sections, if not the largest, within the state without the benefit of a modern road. Such a road if built would not only bring the many people resident in the towns involved to Norwich as the natural shopping center, but it would provide a through road to Rhode Island points, cutting off many miles between here and Providence.

It has been an unusual winter, but conditions have been such for the past weeks that residents along this undeveloped road have complained that it was impossible to get to Norwich. What is bad under the best of conditions is next to impassable now.

This is also a section which has to be served by Norwich doctors. They must make the best headway they can in serving the sick, face obstacles which others would not attempt, but it is their advice, after most unpleasant experiences, for those who do not have to use that road to keep away from it. Those who must use it, if they use any, are in a most unfortunate situation.

Norwich merchants should be desirous of getting that trade which lies along this highway. It is the logical avenue for traffic to and from the villages, the mills of which could land their goods directly at the local docks and take away their raw material with a minimum of handling and with the benefit of water rates.

The road that needs to be modernized would do away with the present dead end, relieve the traffic on other roads which must be taken now in a roundabout way in going between Norwich and Providence and would provide facilities for a section which is entitled to receive a better highway. Let it be known that there is a real desire for this needed improvement and it is believed it will be looked upon with favor by the state highway department.

GROSS LACK OF PROTECTION

Where big fire hazards exist it can be expected that trouble will follow. It is possible to take chances and for a time escape trouble but it invariably results in large and serious losses.

This is pointed out in connection with some of the buildings which are used in Washington, and probably in state capitals, for the preservation of documents. They are regarded as valuable. The government wants them preserved and yet the provision that is made for such preservation is negligible. They are placed in buildings which are regarded by inspectors as fire traps and sooner or later the real menace is disclosed through the destruction of part of them. The seriousness of this lies in the fact that too many of them cannot be replaced.

Since early in the year 1921 it is reported that there have been 17 fires in these document buildings with a total property loss of $1,116,000. That money would have gone quite a way toward the construction of fire proof buildings, and it would certainly have been put to much better use than using it for bonfire purposes. When the fire marshal of the District of Columbia says "the storage of valuable supplies and the operation of various shops in cheaply constructed buildings of frame or sheet metal construction constitutes a grave fire hazard," he not only deals in facts but he gives notice of a menace which ought to get more attention.

What he says applies equally well elsewhere. Records that are worth keeping are worth giving such protection that they will not be the prey of flames. Yet they are constantly going up in smoke because protection against fire is neglected or sidetracked in the hope that it will not occur.

NOT THE GOVERNMENT'S BUSINESS

Of late there has been an inclination on the part of many to turn to the federal government every time it is desired to promote a proposition. Instead of states looking after such matters as directly concern them and which should be handled by them, there is a disposition to run to Washington and place responsibilities on the national government which it was never intended to shoulder and which do not belong there.

In spite of all the unfavorable experience in that direction there continues to be a demand for more and more government operation and ownership. It is being urged right now in the case of the merchant marine, even to the point of preventing the sale of ships to private interests unless there is a favorable vote by all the members of the shipping board, and the same thing is being advocated by the backers of the Boulder dam proposition.

The Boulder dam project concerns several states. It is advocated for the protection of Imperial valley, for irrigation purposes and for the development of electricity for distribution over a wide territory. It is possible to make out an impressive story for the things that it is desired to accomplish, but it is not so impressive when it is realized that the demand is for the government to go into business against private capital for the purpose of doing the job. Of course if the government is going to pour its money into such a proposition there is no telling how many hundred others, from all sections of the country will be put forth with similar demands.

This government went into the Muscle shoals proposition as a war measure but the money that has been put into it is still there and it will never be gotten out. We have spent millions and millions for the merchant marine and the demand is now that we continue to spend hundreds of millions more. Both of these projects should be turned over to private capital and there is no doubt but what there is plenty of it available for putting through the Boulder dam project and do it more efficiently than it could be done under government direction.

MODERN SERVICE

What modern roads and present day fire apparatus are doing for greater protection is well illustrated by the response that was made this week by the fire department of Baltimore to the appeal from Washington for assistance at a time when a firebug furnished more business in a short time for the national capital's firemen than they could handle.

Had such a call come years ago there would have been a response, but it would have necessitated a delay while a train was being made ready to carry the firemen and their apparatus. Not so now. Within two minutes after the call was received apparatus was on the way. The 40 mile run was easily made with motor apparatus and good roads and at the present time there is reason to believe that the departments of both cities are so provided with standard equipment that what would render first class service in Baltimore would do equally well in Washington. Ten companies and 95 men were sent to the national capital in quick time without being obliged to wait for railroad transportation.

That of course represents the situation that exists everywhere that good roads exist and where fire apparatus can be put to use. It indicates most strikingly the advance that has been made in the fighting of fire and the additional safeguard that has been created for neighboring cities in case a conflagration develops or a firebug makes extraordinary demands upon the firefighters. Washington and Baltimore have exchanged compliments in this manner on more than one occasion, even when facilities were not what they are today, but they were never so well prepared for reciprocal service as they are now.

REAPPORTIONMENT

Demands have prevailed that there should be a carrying out of the reapportionment requirements relative to representation in the house of representatives. Regardless of the demands action has been delayed. Some states which would gain in representation have been satisfied to wait. Others which would lose by a reapportionment have displayed their opposition. No plan has been put forth that could get action. Likewise there has been a feeling that the membership of the present house is large enough and it ought not to be so increased as to make it more unwieldy.

Nevertheless there has been prepared a bill which carried the name of Congressman Fenn of this state by which the existing membership of 435 is provided for and automatically there must be a reapportionment every ten years following the census. The bill provides for the representation to which the various districts are entitled and it is a measure which carries the approval of the administration.

But providing a bill and getting action on it are entirely different. Nevertheless when Flood Leader Tilson declares that he is going to keep the matter before the house until something is done it is evident that he doesn't intend to let the present session go by without something being done.

The house faces the charge that it has failed in its duty in regard to reapportionment. It has a chance to remove that through the adoption of the Fenn bill, even though action now has been delayed as long as it can be and escape the reapportionment which will be due from the next census. Even though it is a busy session enough time must be found to meet its obligations.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Are we not inclined to look upon the emotions as a misfortune and the emotional nature as something to be suppressed altogether? The distinction between the emotions and their lack is the distinction between a live wire and a dead fuse; or that of a living, kicking human being and a calm, cold corpse. But someone says: "Don't the emotions often raise the old Harry?" Certainly, so also does an evangelistic service if you let it run riot. When the room gets a bit chilly, shall we not build a fire in the grate to flood the room with a genial warmth, even if we know that fire when not controlled will burst through the arms of law and burn up one's home? The yell at a ball game is due to the emotional nature and if you stifle that yell you will wipe out most of the gate receipts in time. However you look at the matter, you will find that the Almighty knew what He was about when He made us emotional creatures, but like other faculties they must be under the will power.

Today has no loopholes through which we can see tomorrow. If this were so we would stop sawing wood today and gaze through these holes to see the gold mines we might strike tomorrow. If we stop sawing half-way through a big log and see a distant gold mine, it is usually of that elusive character that never materializes. If we strain our eyes at any time to see something that is only a little easier than what we are doing at present, in all probability it will never be realized. If any man thinks that Easy Street is the main avenue to riches, honor and glory, he is doomed to bitter disappointment. If we think that the bigger prizes of life are to be gained by the lesser we are only fooling ourselves. For the most part big things come in response to the bigger effort.

The above does not mean that our sawing wood today is the biggest thing we are capable of doing. Whatever may be our occupation today, however menial, there is always something bigger beyond it if it is in us to get there. The reason why so many people fail to rise is because they are not willing to pay the price of rising. The man who falls down on a thousand dollar job is not going to be boosted into a five thousand dollar position by some external pressure. This method of procedure is entirely unknown to the workshop, either manual or mental. A darky was one day approaching a plowed field with his employer. Suddenly he stopped and gazed into the heavens with great emotion. "Well, what do you see?" asked the employer. "I see these letters: G. P. C.," he replied very dramatically. "What do they mean?" "They mean 'Go, preach Christ!' "Oh, you poor simpleton, they mean go plant corn." Undoubtedly he was right.

One of the severest criticisms our Lord ever made of the Pharisees was the emphasis they put on the strict letter of the law while utterly ignoring its spirit. One day a bunch of these hypocrites brought to Him (probably dragging her by the hair) a poor woman who was taken in her sin. With a look of holy horror on their faces, they say: "Master, by our law she ought to die!" Each man had a stone in his hand ready to throw at her. The poor, penitent, frightened woman lies helpless at his feet crying as though her heart would break. The Master's face grows white; it trembles with emotion. He raises His hand, and says: "Let him that is without sin among you cast the first stone at her!" He meant the same particular sin of which she was accused, and they slunk away like whipped curs. Then, lifting the tearful, trembling woman up, He said: "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more!" He did not condone her sin, but He saved the sinner.

Did you ever think that one of the rewards of uncertainty is the excitement it naturally creates? The nature of human life is such that all of us must strike out into the dark kingdom of the shadows. I call it the land of the shadows because we cannot see what lies in our path only a short distance ahead. But are we not at least partially compensated for this lack of vision by constant anticipation? The human imagination puts no limitation to the possibilities of the future. For illustration, take the uncertainties of fishing, and yet how great are the joys of expectancy. The first nibble at the bait makes us think that we are going to land a whopper. Why do men gamble? There is nothing in this world more uncertain? It is because their hundred may be doubled or quadrupled. One of the delights of travel is the expectation of seeing something new every moment. The darkness of uncertainty is relieved by the brightness of expectancy.

If anyone calls in question the moral philosophy of the above paragraph his attention is called to the evident teaching of the Parable of the Talents as given in the Gospel of Matthew. "For the kingdom of heaven is as a man traveling into a far country." In other words, this kingdom reaches far in the distance ahead of us the ultimate reaches of which we cannot see. We are to invest in that far kingdom the possessions God puts into our hands. The man of strong faith and clear vision will put ten talents into the stocks and bonds, the gold and silver, the houses and lands of the kingdom. While he does not actually know he has great faith in such spiritual investments. The reward of such faith and courage is one hundred per cent. The poor trembling mortal with no vision nor courage, who does nothing, will lose the little he has.

If there was no uncertainty ahead of us would there be any room for faith? Faith is still "the substance of things hoped for; the evidence of things not seen." If we had positive knowledge of all the things of life that are before us, there would be no possibility of growth, and without this possibility life would lost most of its enjoyment. When we realize that we are increasing in knowledge, does it not give a zest to life which otherwise would be lacking? Would it not be a positive loss to the sum total of our attainments if we were deprived of the searching habit which would certainly occur were we now the possessors of all knowledge? Think for a moment the things we enjoy which were denied our forefathers. What effect does it have upon us? Do we say that the end of invention and discovery has come? Or do the airship, radio, automobile, telephone and many other things stop our inquiry, or do we still propose to conquer?

In the state of Connecticut and elsewhere there is an outbreak of smallpox, but as far as the papers state no community has been thrown into spasms of terror as they would have been years ago. What has made such a radical difference? Because near the close of the eighteenth century Prof. Edward Jenner stepped out of his laboratory with a small vial in his hand and said to smallpox "Stop!" and it did as far as its awful ravages were concerned. Before Jenner's discovery of vaccination only 5 per cent. of smallpox victims were saved; today 95 per cent. are saved if the vaccine is applied in season and properly. We know that once when smallpox attacked an Indian settlement it blotted out the entire population. In spite of this evidence there are some today who cry out against it. Can anyone acquainted with the history of vaccination be opposed to its use?

STANDING BACK OF THE CONSTITUTION

In the National Inquirer Lieutenant Colonel Alfred L. Moody of the 156th Field Artillery, U. S. A. Headquarters, national guard, writes.

Many organizations in the United States are doing their best to defeat the purposes of the eighteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States. At a recent meeting held in New York city, William H. Stayton chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition amendment, told the committeemen that it was their purpose to raise $1,200,000 for the campaign of 1928. What does an organization opposed to a portion of the Constitution propose to do with such a large amount of money in the campaign of 1928? The organization and those allied with it propose to do all in their power to elect men to office in State and Nation who are liberal in their views or outspoken in their denunciation of the prohibition laws relative to intoxicating liquors. That effort is to be made in behalf of all officials from constable through to the president of the United States. Mr. Stayton said in the New York meeting, according to press reports, that the idea that thirty-six states were necessary to upset the eighteenth amendment was a fallacy; that what was needed was one more "liberal" member of the United States supreme court. He pointed out also that the Supreme Court had not passed upon all the clauses of the amendment, and had distinctly said so.

Since the next president of the United States may appoint more than one member of the Supreme Court, as well as many other national executive officers, the great effort on the part of the liquor forces to nominate a wet candidate for President can easily be understood. A campaign fund of $1,200,000 is to be used for the purpose of nullifying a part of the Constitution. Can a more corrupt motive be found for the work of any organization than the one proposed by Mr. Stayton to his committee in New York?

Organizations may condemn the prohibition amendment and even joke about it and call all those who believe in it all manner of names. They may say that the Volstead act is a failure and that it can not be enforced; that there is more drinking now than in the days prior to national prohibition. But it is one thing to make a statement and it is another thing to prove it. During the past two years I have traveled more than 50,000 miles by train and automobile and have been in every state in the Union except one, and after a close observation, I can say that there never was a time in the history of the country when as small an amount of intoxicating liquors were being consumed by the great mass of the people as are consumed today. Drunks are seldom seen. Young people of high schools and colleges attend athletic games, where thousands of them assemble, and for the most part they do not carry hip-pocket flasks or do they have an alcoholic breath. In addition to my observation, I have statistics, compiled by competent and reliable authorities, and which represent the labor of highly trained minds in all sections of the nation, and the story of those figures is that national prohibition has brought about a great improvement in every line of moral and economic welfare.

Do not let any street corner philosopher or peanut statesman fool you into believing that the eighteenth amendment was put over during a period of war, or that it does not represent the sentiment of the majority of the best American citizens. Figures do not lie, even if liars do figure. Thirty-three states had prohibition laws before the amendment was submitted. Forty-six of the forty-eight states, through their legislative bodies, elected by, responsible to, the people, voted to ratify the eighteenth amendment. They said by that action that the national government should have police power to deal with a business that had been outlawed by a majority of the states and prohibited by parts of other states.

The people demanded that the United States government should assume the same hostile attitude toward the liquor traffic that it held toward other agencies that were destructive to the welfare of the people. That attitude was plainly stated in the wording of the first section of the amendment as follows: "The manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited." The language is plain and clearly states what the government attitude toward traffic in alcoholic beverages shall be. Henceforth to manufacture or sell or transport intoxicating liquors would be illegal, just as using the mails to defraud, or engaging in the white traffic, or in the lottery business is illegal.

The second section of the article reads as follows: "The Congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation." We thus see that the states delegated power to the national government to make laws to carry out the provisions of the first section of the amendment. The Volstead act is one of those laws now in operation. It was enacted by Congress, vetoed by the President, and passed over the President's veto by more than two-thirds of both houses of Congress. The people, through their representatives, were certain that they wanted the United States government to aid the states that were already dry by prohibiting interstate shipment and the importation of liquors. At the same time the states force their own jurisdiction. These two great governmental forces, working together for a common purpose, both having been given the power to enforce the first section of the article, can carry out the mandate of the people if cheap politics will give way to constructive statesmanship, and the full power of the states and the national government is used for that purpose.

Where an honest effort has been made to enforce the laws relative to the prohibitory amendment, and even where it is only partially enforced, the testimony of leading medical experts, of industrial captains, of heads of sanatoriums, of institutions for alcoholics, of crime experts, all contribute to the conclusion that prohibition is a success and that in its results for the betterment of the masses it is one of the greatest governmental achievements of the ages.

Of course the law is violated. All laws are violated. Because of prejudice and false propaganda and cheap politics, the prohibitory law has not had a fair trial. Unpatriotic citizens and unpatriotic organizations have urged the violation of both the Constitution and the law. In some sections public officials have been unfaithful in their duties in the enforcement of the law, but the fact remains that the attitude of the government, as stated by the eighteenth amendment, is right.

Every violator of the law should by brought to the bar of justice and severely punished for that violation. The punishment should fall upon rich or poor, high or low, black or white, American or alien, alike. The Constitution of the United States is too valuable and means too much to the nation to have it trampled under foot simply because it interferes with an individual appetite or is not in harmony with an individual's opinion of what it should be. If we would not impair the Constitution, we must see that it is obeyed, even if that obedience must be compelled.

To the argument that it cannot be enforced, it is my opinion that a nation that can raise 4,500,000 soldiers in less than two years and send 2,000,000 of them 3,000 miles away, across the seas to fight battles for her, and equip them for that great conflict—a nation that can do that can enforce her fundamental law if she wills to do it.

The Constitution has served us well since the foundation of the republic and it is now our duty to preserve, protect and defend it, not for ourselves, but the benefit of unborn generations.

YOUR HEALTH

THE CANCER PROBLEM.

By A. L. Blesh, M. D., Oklahoma City, Okla.—Member Gorgas Memorial.

What do we know about cancer?

1. We know it is a mass of living cells.

2. These cells differ from the body cells only in the lack of specialization. The primitive and most urgent function of all living cells is reproduction. But in the highly organized human body certain cells are specialized for the reproductive function just as other cells are set aside for other functions—thinking, digestion, etc.

Reproduction to the single celled organism is a simple matter of cell division—one cell makes two cells, two cells make four cells. That is by geometric ratio—an almost incalculable thing, a colossal thing.

3. The cancer cell is a reversion, a hark back to this primitive reproductive function. Just as civilization under stress drops from nations so does specialization fall away from the cell and it again obeys the primitive law, violates the acquired social law of the communities of cells making up the body, and becomes anarchistic. All anarchists live on the community they infest—are parasitic.

4. Cancer is parasitic and lives on its host. Not only does it live on its host, but in living gives off deleterious poisons just as the anarchist does.

5. How does cancer spread through the body? To begin with, it has no roots, it is animal, not vegetable. With the blood vessel system every one is familiar but less so with the lymphatic circulatory system. Briefly, the latter consists of minute channels which drain given areas of lymph, converging at given points where they pass through strainers called lymph glands or nodes on their way to the central station. The cancer cell, in dividing to make more cells at some time, crumbles into a lymph channel, is washed along by the current until caught and held in one of these strainers where it proceeds to grow in like manner to the original growth and again extends itself in the same way. More rapidly still it may go through the blood system because here there are no restraining strainers.

Cancer also spreads by infiltration of its cells into the zones about the starting point but this still is local, the other routes are systemic.

6. The cause? We cannot yet say for sure what it is but starts the body cell on its wild and lawless rampage, but persistent mild irritation is known to be an exciting factor of great importance. Those parts of the body exposed most to mechanical, clinical, or physiological irritation are by far the most frequently affected.

7. In the beginning it is local and can be destroyed utterly by a competent surgeon or radiologist. The main difficulty remains still to secure this opportune time for, contrary to common belief, it is not painful in the beginning, and only becomes so when by reason of growth it encroaches or compresses or obstructs.

8. Is cancer on the increase? Perhaps—I do not know for sure. This much is true, first, that means of diagnosis have improved, therefore more are found, and second, because of the prolongation of life due to medical science, more people reach the cancer age to have cancer.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lord Inchcape, who at the age of seventy-five years has decided that it is time to begin the curtailment of his business activities, is one of the most energetic and successful business men in the world. He is giving up the managing directorship of the great Peninsula and Oriental steamship lines, although he will still retain active control of the company. Lord Inchcape started as an office boy. He is now reputed to be many times a millionaire. His business interests range from India, China, Japan, Australia, Egypt and Persia to London, Canada and the United States. His services have often been utilized by the British government, especially in connection with affairs in India. It is interesting to note that the space given to Lord Inchcape in the British "Who's Who" exceeds that devoted to any other individual.

Nuremberg.

"Nuremberg, Bavaria, toy capital of the world, is a city of the Middle Ages handed down undisturbed to the present day," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "It has a wall and a moat and a castle, crooked streets and gabled, red-tiled houses; all the satisfying quaintnesses of a page from one of its own fairy picture books.

"About the old walled city unobtrusively spread the suburbs of modern Nuremberg, a thriving industrial community of 400,000 inhabitants. Beer, lead pencils, metal wares, railway carriages, and, above all, toys are leading manufactures.

"Toys of every description have their origin in Nuremberg factories and are shipped out for the delight of the youth of many lands. From the Dutch East Indies to the Argentine, Nuremberg toys are displayed. There are metal toys, wooden toys, textile and papier-mache toys; picture books, cardboard games and transfer pictures. Besides her own factory-made toys, Nuremberg markets dolls made in nearby places, largely through cottage crafts. From one district alone come about a million dozen dolls a year.

"The toy industry of Nuremberg is said to have been begun by Protestant refugees driven out of France at the time of the Huguenot wars. The newcomers took the toy business as being an unoccupied field. In spite of French beginnings the industry has become thoroughly Germanized during the past century, however, and the Teuton quaintness of Nuremberg is stamped upon her products.

"The city owes its origin to an imperial castle built in the eleventh century upon the banks of the River Pegnitz. Artisans and merchants collected in the safe shadow of the castle walls. A mint and a market were established and the city prospered. It quickly became a trading center between Venice and the Orient on the one hand and northern Europe on the other. Her workers in wood, brass and stone, cloth and ivory became famous over Europe. Nuremberg merchant princes built florid mansions in which they lived in regal style. One of the Popes made the remark that a Nuremberg merchant was better housed than the King of Scotland. Arts, letters and sciences flourished.

"Discovery of water trade routes to India and China around the Cape of Good Hope ruined Nuremberg trade as it did that of Venice. This downfall was added to by a terrible siege of the city during the Thirty Years War, when Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden the Protestant leader, defended the walls against Wallenstein, and 10,000 inhabitants perished of starvation and disease. Patrician ruling families became more illiberal as they became poorer, and armies of the French revolution completed the havoc already begun. The town was reduced to the verge of bankruptcy and in 1806 the proud free city of Nuremburg, a city republic since the middle ages, was annexed to the kingdom of Bavaria. A following century of peace, nevertheless, made the old town the leading railway center and manufacturing district of southern Germany. The railroad from Nuremberg to Furth was the first railway in Germany, and the former is on the direct line between Rhine cities and Vienna.

"Standing today in all her quaintness of Gothic churches and pointed roofs, Nuremberg is a living monument to the glory of the arts and handicrafts of the middle ages. Here in the city's hey-day lived Albrecht Durer, the artist. Here watches were invented and called 'Nuremburg eggs.' Here still stand the huge guild houses with gables turned streetward and mansions of merchant princes with pictured stucco walls and tiled roofs backing upon the quiet flowing waters of the Pegnitz. All that was colorful and vital in the life of the middle ages centered in Nuremberg and has been passed on for today, minus filthy streets and sidewalk pigsties tolerated by an earlier time. The glorious and dirty town of the past has been washed and cleaned, and no longer are refuse sacks and dead animals hurled indiscriminately into the Pegnitz. The 'Iron Virgin of Nuremberg' and other instruments of torture repose peacefully in a museum at the castle and the moat has been turned into a park. Modern burghers of Nuremberg are content with prosperity flowing from a peaceful output of beer, pencils and millions of toys."

Scent Kills Scent.

A little trick will often gain
What other methods can't obtain.
—Jumper the Hare.

Jumper speaks truly. It sometimes seems as if life is one little trick after another. It is just as true of the little folk of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest as it is with us humans. Where skill and strength fail, a little trick will often win.

Jumper the Hare was in the yard of Lightfoot the Deer. Lightfoot and Jumper are friends. Neither is afraid of the other, as there has never been any reason why they should not be friends. Jumper, fleeing from Shadow the Weasel and Billy Mink, had thought of Lightfoot and a way in which Lightfoot could help him. Now he had reached the deeryard, and here were Lightfoot and Mrs. Lightfoot and the two young Lightfoots.

"You look frightened, Brother Jumper," said Lightfoot, staring at him with his great soft eyes.

"I am frightened; or, at least, I was frightened," replied Jumper. "You see, only a short time ago I had a very narrow escape."

Lightfoot's big eyes grew bigger than ever. "From whom?" he demanded, and his voice sounded anxious.

"From Shadow the Weasel and his cousin, Billy the Mink," replied Jumper.

"Oh!" exclaimed Lightfoot, and there was a look of relief in those big eyes. "I thought it must be some one to be really afraid of."

"Well, perhaps you may not be afraid of them, but I am," replied Jumper. "I know of no one whom I fear more. If you were no bigger than I you would be afraid of them too."

"But you are much bigger than either of them," declared Lightfoot, a little bit scornfully.

"Yes," replied Jumper, "and you are much bigger than Old Man Coyote, yet you are afraid of him."

Lightfoot didn't have a word to say to this. He promptly changed the subject. "Why did you come over here?" he asked.

"To get you to help me," replied Jumper. "I left Billy Mink and Shadow the Weasel quarreling, and they may not follow me. But if one of them should I want your help."

"All right," replied Lightfoot, "what do you want me to do? Do you want me to stamp on them with my sharp hoofs?"

"As if you could!" cried Jumper. "You may be quick in the use of those sharp hoofs, but either Billy the Mink or Shadow the Weasel would be out of the way before you could hit them. What I want is the use of your scent."

"The what?" cried Lightfoot.

"The use of your scent," replied Jumper.

"What do you mean?" asked Lightfoot.

"It's very simple," replied Jumper. "If those fellows follow me they will do it by following my scent. I can't help leaving some scent wherever I step. If I went along ahead of you, and you and your family follow, you will leave your scent and the deer scent will be so much stronger than my scent that if those fellows come over here they won't be able to tell in which direction I have gone. Your scent will kill my scent. How about it?"

"We'll do it," replied Lightfoot.

THE COST

"What is the value of this estate?" said one gentleman to another with whom he was riding, as they passed a fine mansion surrounded by fair and fertile fields. "I don't know what it is valued at. I know what it cost its late possessor." "How much?" "His soul." A pause followed this brief answer, for the man who inquired had not sought for the Kingdom of God and His righteousness.

The person referred to was the son of a godly laboring man. Early in life he professed faith in Christ, but later he obtained a subordinate position in a mercantile establishment. He continued to maintain a reputable religious profession until he became a partner in the firm. Labor increased. He gave less attention to religion and more to business, and the cares of the world choked the word. Before he became old he was very rich in money but so poor and miserly in soul that none who knew him would ever thought he had ever borne the sacred name of Him who said "Follow me." He gave up the greater good for the less. At length he purchased the landed estate referred to above, built him a castle mansion, sickened and died. He remarked: My prosperity has been my ruin; what a price to pay, to give up eternal life for the fleeting and transitory things of life, for the life eternal! We can enjoy the things of this world that God has so kindly given us in such abundance but let us not forget the "Giver of every good and perfect gift." Our days will be greater and more lasting if we look up to the Father of all in deep gratitude, then there would not have been the sad words: "My prosperity has ruined me."

LAKE TSANA.

The Blue Nile of the Sudan and Abyssinia (Ethiopia) has become an object of competition between American and British companies, each of which wishes to dam the stream for the production of power. The British would also have the dam utilized to regulate irrigation in the lower reaches of the river, in the Sudan.

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society describes Lake Tsana, Abyssinia, reservoir of the Blue Nile's waters, and the great canyon of the stream.

"In some ways the Blue Nile can be compared to the American Colorado," says the bulletin. "Both streams have eaten their way through mile-deep canyons, and have helped to build up a delta region from their millions of tons of mud and silt.

"But while the Colorado traverses a Temperate Zone, the Blue Nile rises and flows in an equatorial region. The most characteristic feature of the Blue Nile, however, is the great fresh water lake from which it springs.

"Abyssinia is primarily an extensive plateau region gashed by deep river gorges and pitted by an occasional lake depression. The greatest of the latter is the basin of Lake Tsana, and the greatest of the gorges is that cut by the waters of the lake in forcing their way down to the plains of the Sudan.

"In the eight or nine thousand foot plateau, the lake occupies a saucerlike depression at an altitude of about 6,000 feet above sea level. The lake has an average length of 40 miles and an average width of 30, and an area of approximately 1,200 square miles. In many places the ground slopes gently down, leaving considerable plains; in others the hills descend abruptly to the water.

"The plains about the lake show their tropical location as the plateau above does not. Reeds and grasses grow rankly, interspersed with palms, acacias and figs. Fever is common among the inhabitants of these relative lowlands, but cattle have become immune to ticks and diseases and flourish amazingly. In few places in the world are such fat, well formed beasts to be found. Hippopotami are numerous in and about the lake, but there are no crocodiles.

"Like the inhabitants on the shores of Lake Titacaca, South America, the natives living about Lake Tsana construct rafts and crude boats of reeds. The stalks are bound together by thongs of hippopotamus hide. The completed rafts are propelled with short paddles.

"Numerous streams feed water into Lake Tsana from the surrounding mountains and hills. In the rainy season their volume is heavy and the lake level rises several feet. The Blue Nile flows out of the lake in a relatively broad stream dotted with islands. Small rapids occur a few miles from the lake, but the first fall of consequence is situated about 21 miles from the outlet. There the waters plunge down 80 feet. Beyond the fall is a very narrow gorge. At one place the two edges are no more than 10 feet apart, and in that point the gulf is bridged by an old masonry arch built by early Portuguese explorers.

"In the 30 miles immediately below the first falls, the Blue Nile tumbles over a succession of cataracts and falls and descends in all some 2,000 feet. In the great semi-circular sweep of the river through the Abyssinian mountains to the Sudan plains there is an additional fall of 2,000 feet. It is in this section that the river has carved out its deepest canyons. It is steaming hot in these great trenches, tropical verdure flourishes, and the waters teem with crocodiles.

"The first falls of the Blue Nile is the best site for eas power development. Irrigation engineers, however, have considered the feasibility of a dam near the lake outlet which would impound more water in the lake during the rainy season and regulate its flow at other seasons."

Vilna

"Vilna, Poland, cause of the dispute between Lithuania and Poland which is reported near settlement by the League of Nations, has been a European storm center since it was first mentioned in history nearly a thousand years ago," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Before Vilna was named capital of Lithuania early in the fourteenth century, raids by hostile neighbors forced the construction of a high wall to protect its inhabitants. Later it became the battleground of Russia and Poland during intermittent wars, and the object of numerous plundering expeditions. The Prussians, Cossacks, Swedes, Germans and Bolsheviks, besides the Lithuanians and Poles, have all had a hand in Vilna's destiny.

"But Vilna has withstood its turbulent existence," continues the bulletin. "Today it has a population of about one hundred and fifty thousand and a brisk trade in lumber and grain. Lying at the confluence of the Viliya and Vileika rivers, amid the great forests northeast of Warsaw, the city has been an important commercial center since early times. A Roman trade route between southern Europe and the Baltic led past its gates and now it is the junction point of railroads leading to Warsaw, Berlin, Petrograd and other important central and eastern European cities.

"Vilna's strategic position was known to Napoleon, who made it one of his bases when he invaded Russia. Near the city is a tablet recalling the tragedy of that expedition. On one side is inscribed 'Napoleon Bonaparte passed this way in 1812 with 400,000 men.' The other side reads 'Napoleon Bonaparte passed this way in 1812 with 9,000 men.'

"Entering Vilna by the Ostra Brama, an old city gate, the traveler is impressed with the religious ardor of the inhabitants. Here men, women and children are seen kneeling on the sidewalks and in the street with their faces uplifted toward the archway. At first one wonders if the Vilnovians worship the city as the early Lithuanians worshiped their pagan gods. But closer observation reveals a small chapel atop the Ostra Brama, where a painted picture of the Virgin reposes above an altar. At certain times during the day the painting is uncovered and may be seen from the roadway below. Roman and Greek Catholics alike revere the shrine and even a non-Christian native or visitor doffs his hat as he passes under the chapel.

"The narrow, crooked, not too clean, streets beyond, solidly lined with three and four-story dwellings and shops, offer a bit of Vilna life. Instead of the agile bootblacks of our cities, in Vilna, one might be solicited by a bewhiskered veteran of three score and ten years, clad in a ragged overcoat and scarred leather boots that have long since seen better days. In his hand he carries his little wooden stool and instruments of trade. Then there are the water carriers, perhaps also bewhiskered, who clumsily stride along with their two buckets of water, one held by a wire at each end of poles which swing across their shoulders.

"Along the curb women with shawls tightly wound about their heads and shabby clothing, squat amid tubs and buckets of cut flowers which they arrange in various designs in the gutter and often some distance out in the street to the annoyance of noisy wagon drivers. Above the din of rumbling wheels on the cobblestone streets and human chatter, little news girls cry out the news of the day from their makeshift paper racks in the shop doorways. They sell papers printed in several different languages. For the latest soap or theatre advertisements one has only to locate one of the city kiosks whose surface is usually covered with placards."

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Gottheb Peckruel, night watchman at the Berkshire school in Sheffield, fainted on the witness stand today while testifying at the trial of Gilbert Stanley, manager of the school for manslaughter as a result of the fatal shooting of Peter Fulco of Great Barrington last November 26.

The night watchman swooned beside Fulco's body when he reached the scene on the night of the shooting and he was again overcome as he recalled the tragedy today. Although he was able to resume his testimony after a brief rest, his cross examination had not been completed when Judge William A. Burns adjourned court this afternoon until Monday.

MRS. F. E. FONTAINE KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRUCK AUTO

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. F. E. Fontaine, who was killed today near New Smyrna, Fla., when her automobile was struck by a train, received considerable notoriety several years ago when her daughter, Evan Burrows Fontaine, a dancer, sued Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney for breach of promise.

Miss Fontaine sought $1,000,000 damages, alleging that Whitney was the father of her child. Whitney filed charges of perjury against both mother and daughter, contending that their suit was a conspiracy to defraud, and the Fontaine suit was finally dismissed.

Later the mother and daughter were indicted on charges of perjury growing out of the suit but never were prosecuted. Miss Fontaine was reported today as being ill in a hospital at Miami Beach, Fla. Her mother was on the way to visit her when she was killed.

OPPOSED TO TRUSTEES SELLING SUPPLIES

"Sound public policy should require that no trustee or officer or any concern in which such trustee or officer is interested should furnish supplies to the state institution of which he is a trustee or officer for the use of such institution or any person confined therein, unless he be the lowest bidder for such supplies after open competition," says Attorney General Benjamin W. Alling in an opinion sent to Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon. The comptroller asked the attorney general whether Warden Henry K. W. Scott of the state prison at Wethersfield should be permitted to purchase articles for the institution or the inmates from any trustee or officer of the prison or a concern in which a trustee or officer is interested. The statute provides a fine of $50 as a penalty for any trustee or officer of a state institution who may have an interest in a contract for furnishing supplies to his institution unless he be the lowest bidder. Trustees or officers of a state institution, or a concern in which they are interested financially, may furnish supplies to a person having a contract for the erection of a building for the institution, however, says the attorney general.

A room temperature of 68 degrees is comfortable for individuals who are properly clothed, if there are no drafts and the air is not too dry.

SCHOOL CHILDREN DISPLAY THRIFT POSTERS IN CHELSEA BANK CONTEST

In the lobby of the Chelsea Savings bank is an interesting display of thrift posters made by the children in the rural schools where the Chelsea bank conducts school savings systems. As was done last year, these posters are in competition for prizes to be given by the bank, and it is noted that there is a distinct advance in the character and quality of the posters over those displayed last year.

About 60 are included in the exhibit, which the bank officials are desirous that the public should see and for which the prizes will be awarded and announced next week. Among the more familiar subjects which are used to instill the lesson of thrift through the posters are the oak and the acorn, the early bird and the worm, the pyramids, the rock of thrift and the sand of waste, the squirrel and the birds, and thrift in plain food.

Schools in which the thrift plan is promoted by the bank are in Canterbury, Lisbon, Sterling, Sprague, Voluntown, Ashford, Columbia, Franklin, Ledyard, North Stonington, Preston, Lebanon, Andover, Bozrah, Chaplin, Coventry, Hampton and Mansfield, with St. Joseph's parochial school at Baltic.

YANTIC

Miss Elizabeth A. Kempton has just returned from Washington, Connecticut where she attended the funeral of H. Siddons Mowbray.

It had been Miss Kempton's fortune to have Mr. Mowbray's criticism and friendly advice in her art work.

H. Siddons Mowbray stodo alone, unique and great in the work he has done as a mural painter and decorator.

For several years he has lived and worked at Washington, Connecticut, and here he died suddenly January 13. He was internationally known and appreciated as one of America's greatest mural painters; the only artist since the time of Michael Angelo to do a complete interior; the ceiling decoration, the pendentives, the spacing, the side walls, all details that hold all together, the gesso, the carvings, the gold and even the lighting, which he has done in the Pierpont Morgan library on East 36th street and in one room of the University club on Fifth avenue at 54th street, New York. The ceiling in the East Roo mof the Morgan library was also by Mr. Mowbray and he had just completed the decoration for the corridor in the new annex which is under construction.

Signing his confession "A Saved Man," an anonymous patron of a Minneapolis (Minn.) hotel mailed a $1 bill to the proprietor for stealing a towell three years ago.

HUDKINS MAULS HIS WAY TO VICTORY OVER VETERAN TENDLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, won a mauling ten round bout from Lew Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw veteran, in the main go tonight at the Madison Square Garden boxing show. Tendler lasted through the last three rounds with difficulty after taking a count of eight in the seventh. Hudkins scaled 149 3-4 pounds, Tendler 151.

Slightly over 11,000 fans saw the Pennsylvania veteran, who fought ten years ago as a lightweight and twice met Benny Leonard in sensational title encounters, attempt to stop the young and rugged Hudkins with left hand smashes to the head and body. Tendler was pudgy and slow at the weight and the Blonde Westerner appeared content to maul without serious intent in the final rounds.

The battle was a constant series of close range exchanges with both men playing to the body. Tendler weakened badly after holding the Ace even in the early rounds. A solid left and right hook to the body floored the veteran in the seventh.

From that point on Tendler barely evaded a knockout by clinging tight to Hudkins whenever possible. Occasionally Lew dug the once mighty left into the Nebraskan's body and slowed him temporarily.

By his victory, Hudkins earned a return match with Sammy Baker, the soldier battler, who scored a technical knockout over him last summer. The winner of the Hudkins-Baker go probably will be matched with Joe Dundee, champion of the welterweight, in a title go here.

In a ten round smel-final, Andy Di Vodi, New York junior welterweight, won a bruising victory over Charlie Rosen, home town rival, Di Vido scaled 144 1-2, Rosen 144.

The preliminary matches ended in knockouts. Routhier Parra, Chilean flyweight, stopped Tommy Minty, of New York, after 52 seconds of fighting in the seventh round of the first eighth rounder. Parra weighed 109, Minty 111 1-2. Nick Testo, of Troy, N. Y., scaling 146 1-2, dropped Arturo Scheckles, of Belgium 147, in the second round of the other.

Walter Babcock, of Jersey City, 133 1-2 knocked out Joe Namo 134 of Detroit, in the first round of the opening four round go.

ACADEMY MEET STRONG TEAM IN WILBY TONIGHT

N. F. A.		Wilby High
Jarvis	lf.	Murphy
Fagan	rf.	Dunlap
Pingree	c.	Lonergan
Kelly	lg.	Siani
LaCroix	rg.	McCarthy

Wilby High of Waterbury, one of the leading teams of the state, furnishes the opposition for the Academy this evening at the Y gym in the locals fourth start of the season. In the preliminary starting at 8 o'clock the Y Seniors meet the New London Emeralds.

Wilby is probably as strong a team as the locals will have to face this year. She has mowed down all kinds of opposition so far, losing but to Warren Harding by three points after leading the Presidents through most of the game. Among the Green and White's victims this year was the crack St. Thomas Seminary quintet of Hartford, always rated as one of the best in Connecticut. Coach Jimmy Lee had plenty of good news during the week when "Fat" McCarthy ,veteran guard returned to the squad after a prolonged absence and this boy will be in there tonight.

Should Wilby win tonight she will have totalled the greater share of points necessary for her entry in the Yale tournament in March. She will trot practically an all-veteran team onto the floor this evening. Probably the best known of these players is "Duster" Murphy, who will romp at a forward. This boy has been one of Wilby's best athletes. His third-basing on the diamond needs little comment for it was so good that he received offers from three Eastern league teams. His work at halfback on the gridiron has also drawn especial notice. Last fall it was more his fault than any of the rest of the grey-jerseyed team that Wilby won over Crosby when she entered the game as a rank underdog.

Jarvis Joins Squad

The Academy, of course, will have to show more tonight than she has hitherto this season. More scoring power is needed by the Red and White and this will probably be supplied in great measure by Lloyd Jarvis, who reported Tuesday for the first time and seems fairly sure of entering tonight's fray. Lloyd played a big part in the success of the 1926-27 quintet and that he will help greatly again this year seems fairly certain. Fagan, a newcomer, will probably get the other forward assignment. This boy has shown streaks of ability although a big weakness is in fumbling passes. Les Pingree, who has done wonders for the squad to date ought to at least hold his own at center against Lonergan one of the best pivot men in the western part of the state while no doubt Capt. Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix will show improvement.

Wilby has never beaten the Academy in the field of sport, the Red and White winning twice in football and once in baseball in their three meetings.

Fast Preliminary

The preliminary tonight finds one of the fastest teams in New London opposing the Y in the latter's game of the year. The locals looked good in their opener last week when they won from the N. S. S. Pequot easily but tonight things look a bit tougher for them. The Emeralds told wins over two of the City league in the Whaling Town, the Mebs and Mercurians.

The Y will lineup with Gauthier and Brown at the forwards, Harris at center and Grebe and Eccleston at guards.

PUTNAM DOWNS KILLINGLY IN EASY ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 20.—Putnam high hung up its sixth straight victory here tonight in downing their ancient rivals Killingly high, 35 to 17, in a game where the outcome was never in doubt. The largest crowd of the season was on hand and kept in a continual state of elation as the game progressed. It was a fighting Killingly team that went down to their first defeat of the season. Putnam played a strong defensive game and Killingly had much trouble in penetrating the strong five-man defense. Most of the scores made by Killingly came on long shots. Bove, right forward for Putnam was the high scorer of the evening.

In the preliminary game the Putnam high seconds won from Talbot's Five 19 to 14. Putnam plays Tourtellotte high next Tuesday night at North Grosvenordale.

AGGIES CLASH WITH PROVIDENCE COLLEGE TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Jan. 20—An attractive double-header in intercollegiate basketball is offered at Connecticut Agricultural college tomorrow night when the state college varsity meets Providence College, and the Aggie Freshman five clashes with the Springfield College Yearlings. The freshman game will be played first, beginning at 7 p. m., with the varsity contest following.

Eight games have already been played by the Providence college quintet, giving them a considerable edge over the Aggies in playing experience this season. Games were won from Clark University by a 42-21 score; Upsala 34-27; and Columbia College of Pharmacy 35-20. Defeats were suffered at the hands of Dartmouth by a 52-20 count; Seton Hall 38-19; St. John's 38-28; Trinity 30-27; and Dartmouth 44-26.

Albert "General" McClellan, former major and Eastern League ball player, is coaching the Providence College hoopsters for the first time this season. Previously, he directed four championship interscholastic quintets for the Salem, Mass., high school. McClellan's team uses the man-for-man type of defense in contrast to the Aggie's zone defense, and the game tomorrow should bring out an interesting comparison between these two styles of play. Despite overwhelming defeats received from Dartmouth and Springfield, Providence has a good small college five and one that should give the Aggies real opposition tomorrow.

SANGOR IS SIGNED FOR BOUT WITH DORFMAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Joey Sangor, Milwaukee featherweight, and Sammy Dorfman, of New York were matched today to appear in the 10-round semi-final to the Bruce Flowers-Lope Tenerio bout at Madison Square Garden next Friday night. Sangor recently gained prominence by defeating Bud Taylor, bantamweight champion, in the middle west.

In another 10 round bout on the same card, Archie Bell, Brooklyn, bantam, will oppose Vic Burrone, of New York.

The winner of the Flowers-Tenerio match will battle the victor of the Sid Terris-Jimmy McLarnin tilt scheduled for the Garden February 24. The ultimate survivor probably will gain a match with Sammy Mandell.

KANSAS CITY TEAM SETS NEW HOCKEY RECORD

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A world's record of holding their opponents scoreless in seven consecutive hockey games was claimed tonight by the Kansas City Plamors of the American association. St. Paul was on the short end of a 3 to 0 game with the Plamors tonight.

The Plamors blanked Winnipeg on January 3 to start the string. Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul were held scoreless in two games each. In the eight-game home series the Kansas City team won 6 games, playing scoreless ties twice with Duluth, league leaders. The team leaves on a road trip next week.

CRESCENTS TO PLAY RECS ON TUESDAY

The Taftville Crescents face one of the strongest teams of the present season on Tuesday night when they clash with the South Manchester Recreation team at Taftville. The Recs include in their lineup such men as Norris, Madden, Balseiper, Mantelli, Farr and Faulkner, all basketeers who have played with and against local clubs for the past few years.

The Crescents will have to strengthen considerably if they would take the victory from this quintet.

SEPPALA FINISHES FIRST IN LAKE PLACID RACE

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 20—(AP)—Driving his team of sled dogs in a blizzard which was a reminder of winter storms at his home in Nome, Alaska, Leonhard Seppala made the best time on today's first lap in the annual dog sled derby here. The time for covering the 15 mile course was one hour 26 minutes and 17 seconds.

The only woman contestant, Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., of Poland Springs, Me., finished in second place, more than 23 minutes behind Seppala. Several dogs raised by Seppala were harnessed in Mrs. Ricker's team.

Blizzard which raged throughout the night and part of today covered field and forest in the Adirondacks with more than a foot of snow. Driven by a high wind, the snow was so blinding that for much of the 15 miles the drivers were not able to see more than ten feet ahead.

Today's race was without a winner, as under the rules of the event the rating of the teams is based on the average time made for the two days of racing.

One of the contestants, Walter Channing of Boston, did not finish the course today, as the leader of his pack met with an accident along the course.

The times today follow:

Leonhard Seppala, Nome, Alaska, 1 hour, 26 minutes, 17 seconds.

Mrs. E. P. Ricker, Jr., Poland Springs, Me., 1 hour, 49 minutes, 2 seconds.

Hiram Mason, Jr., Tamworth, N. H., 1 hour, 50 minutes, 9 seconds.

Jaoques Suzanne, Lake Placid, 2 hours, 32 minutes, 30 seconds.

H. W. Pendergast, North Conway, N. H., 2 hours, 40 minutes, 6 seconds.

The derby, the first annual event of the kind to be held here, was under the auspices of the New England Sled Dog club.

PELTZER DISAPPOINTED AT ACTION OF COMMITTEE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany, world's record holder in the half mile run, is "very disappointed" with news that he probably will not be allowed to compete in officially recognized races during his visit in the United States.

Informed tonight that two members of the foreign relations committee of the amateur athletic union had voted to oppose sanctioning any appearances by him, Dr. Peltzer expressed hope that the other four members of the body would report favorably on the proposition.

He was greatly surprised at word of the action, saying that he thought everything had been settled when the German athletic federation granted him permission to compete in this country.

First Baptists Win

The First Baptists won from the Norwich Town Congregational quintet in Friday evening's senior church league game at the Y gym by a 19 to 3 score. Both teams were way off in their shooting while the losers added to their plight with several errors on passes.

The junior church league tilt set for the afternoon was postponed and will be played off in the near future.

This afternoon, at 3.30 two junior church league games will be played.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Plainfield Pros are now in a winning stride and they no doubt intend to stay there next Wednesday at the expense of the Boston Whirlwinds.

The Whirlwinds have two close decisions over the Pros this year, however.

It was one of the big mysteries of the season how the Whirlwinds ever were defeated so badly, 87 to 7, by the Meriden Endees a week ago. Amateur rules no doubt cut down on this team a lot but it is difficult to figure out how anything could hamper the Hub team's stellar passwork that much.

Fans are still raving about the Pros-Indians game last week. The long distance shooting by the Indians was the best ever seen in these parts. Another game will probably be played and it will surely be welcomed by all of those who jammed the hall Wednesday night.

The Danielson Towners polished off Sam Miller's club in easy fashion. Danielson is improving by big strides every time out.

The South Manchester Recs have again organized for the season and included in their lineup, are Roy Norris and Hap Madden. Norris played with Plainfield last year while Madden is one of their guards this season.

The C. F. C. shouldn't have much trouble with the Noank Crescents tonight at Noank for, aside from the sure-passing, speedy Patterson brothers this club has no players to rank with the local team.

The Church leagues are now about ready for the serious part of the campaign, after several preliminary skirmishes.

The Plainfield Buddies wish to correct an impression that they were defeated early in the season by the Jewett City All-Stars. The Buddies hold two decisions over this team, it is reported.

Preliminary game rivalry seems to be cropping up around eastern Connecticut. Danielson's second team and the Buddies started it the other night at Danielson and no doubt these clubs will meet again. It's too bad that Taftville hasn't a prelim team to rank with these two clubs for then there would be a "little three" of eastern Connecticut basketball to rank with the Pros, Towners and Crescents.

Yale meets Brown at Providence tonight and the two Hellers ought to make trouble for Old Eli.

DELANEY SCORES TECHNICAL KAYO OVER HUMBECK IN SIXTH ROUND

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, Conn., scored a technical knockout over Jack Humbeck, Belgian heavyweight champion, here tonight when the referee stopped the bout to spare the Belgian further punishment. Humbeck's left eye was completely closed and with the right fast closing, he was having difficulty in seeing his opponent. Delaney had given away 21 pounds to his opponent, the former weighing in at 178 as against Humbeck's 199. The referee's interference came in the sixth round.

In the fifth round Humbeck began to feel the full weight of Delaney's attack. In this round, Delaney closed Humbeck's left eye with a series of stinging left jabs and knocked him down with a right smash to the jaw for a count of eight.

Although Humbeck's heavy swings found their marks on Delaney, a trickle of blood from Delaney's nose indicated the extent of the damage they could inflict.

In a fast eight round semi-final, George Manolian, of Boston, was awarded a decision over Joey Knapp, of New York city. Jimmy Connolly, of Brockton, was awarded the six round verdict over Pete Chico, of Boston in a preliminary and Al Walker, of New Haven won on a foul in the second round over Jeff Clark, of Florida in the four round preliminary. Joe Hartnett, of Halifax, N. S., won over Pete Bianca, of Clinton, in six rounds.

BALTIC INDS. WIN FROM ACES IN EXTRA PERIOD

In the second overtime period the Baltic Independents scored three baskets to win 34 to 30 over the Melrose Aces at Baltic Friday evening. The game was close from start to finish with the Independents leading 20 to 13 at half time. In the second half the Aces started to overtake the Independents and at the final whistle the score was tied at 26 each. In the first overtime period each scored a basket making it 28 all. In the second period the Andrews and Blanchettes broke through to score three baskets while the aces scored one making the final score 34 to 30. The summary:

JOHNSON FORFEITS HIS BOND OF $2,500 TO COURT

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Bonds of $2,500 posted by Jack Johnson, former Negro heavyweight champion of the world, to insure his appearance in court today for a hearing on his debtor's petition were forfeited when the former champion pugilist failed to appear.

Johnson filed his debtor's petition some time ago when an eastern jewelry firm brought suit to collect $2,500 it charged Johnson owed on $11,000 worth of jewels purchased for his former wife in 1922. In forfeiting the bond, the court indicated it would entertain a motion to set the forfeiture aside of Johnson appeared within a few days.

MICKEY CONNELLY HAILED AS SECOND McGOVERN

Mickey Connelly of Patterson who gives battle to Pete Acquin III of the Coast Guards at New London next Wednesday night is being acclaimed a second Terry McGovern. Connelly has fought about 35 battles during his brilliant career and has yet to see the referee raise a hand in the ring other than his own. Many of his 35 victories have come by knockouts while the others have been by margins so wide that there was no room for doubt. Mickey has that fighting temperament so essential to a successful ring career. Besides this he has aggressiveness and remarkable stamina which keeps him throwing punches from bell to bell with speed that is bewildering, not only to his opponent but to the fans. He is 20 years old and Irish, what more can you ask in a fighter.

In a close game at Baltic on Friday evening the Baltic Maroons took a close game from the Mystery Five 26 to 23. It was nip and tuck all the way and the outcome was always in doubt. Depot of the Maroons was the star. The Mystery Five put up a strong battle and showed some mighty fine basketball.

SIX BASEBALL MEN RECEIVE THEIR LETTERS

The six lettermen now in school from the state championship Academy baseball team last spring received their letters Friday morning at the weekly assembly in Slater hall.

Capt. Lloyd Jarvis, Capt.-elect Morris Goldblatt, John Greene, Ralph Gibbs, Lester Pingree and Edward Hamil were the boys honored. For all but Gibbs and Pingree it was their third baseball letter while for Pingree it was his second letter, he having earned one in basketball last winter. Gibbs gained the creditable distinction of earning a major letter in his freshman year at the school.

These boys are expected to form the backbone of this year's team.

Wiggins And Byrne Draw.

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis heavyweight and Jimmy Byrne of Louisville, fought ten rounds to a draw here tonight. K. O. Christner, Akron, knocked out Joe Burke, Detroit heavyweight in two rounds.

BOXING JABS

Young Pecheeni, local featherweight, who meets Johnny O'Keefe of Hartford at the boxing show at the New London Lyceum next Wednesday night is in top-notch shape for his bout. O'Keefe is by far the best boy that Pecheeni has met in some time.

Al Beauregard topped off his training Friday for his bout at Holyoke on next Monday night. Al looks mighty good and will come in at about 122 pounds which is better weight for him than the flyweight class. It is hoped that Beauregard gets better treatment than Sheik Leonard did last Monday night.

Speaking of Sheik Leonard, the local Blond Boy, is doing his own business these days which eliminates the middleman's profit as it were. Sheik is anxious to book bouts for himself in the near future. Sheik always gave the crowd their money's worth.

Jack Delaney seems to be a popular boy in this section of the state judging from the number of phone calls received at the Bulletin editorial rooms asking for results.

The Pastime A. C. is lining up a feature card for their amateur show the first of the next month. Matchmaker Quinn is planning to have a Bridgeport team compete against some of the Eastern Conn. boys at this show.

Hartford tied Norwich's record of knockouts at an amateur show Thursday night. It is hoped that Mark Dunn, A. A. U. solon, was present at the bouts. Dunn told Quinn at Bridgeport that nine knockouts at one show was altogether too many.

Putnam has a pretty snappy amateur card lined up for the show to be held there on Jan 27. The boxing team from Worcester includes some of the best amateurs in New England and the local boys that will appear against them will make a name for themselves with victories

PLAINFIELD NOSES OUT WARWICK IN OVERTIME

APPONAUG, R. I., Jan. 20.—Plainfield High nosed out Warwick High here tonight in an overtime peroid 21 to 19. It was a slow game with defensive work predominating.

At half time the teams were on an 8-8 tie and at the ednish of regular playing time they were deadlocked at 13 all. In the overtime Davignon tossed in a field goal for Plainfield which was followed by a Warwick player scoring on a foul, making the count 20-19. However, Davignon made things a little safe by throwing in a foul for the final score.

Davignon led Plainfield in scoring while Congdon, Warwick's captain, was high scorer for his team.

PELTZER MAY BE BARRED FROM ATHLETIC COMPETITION

BOSTON, Jan. 20—(AP)—Joseph B. MacCabe, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the National A. A. U., and Guestivius T. Kirby, of New York, I. C. A. A. A. representative on the board, have voted not to allow Dr. Otto Peltzer, crack German middle distance runner, to compete in any track meets in this country during his present tour of American colleges.

The four remaining members of the committee, Daniel J. Ferris and Joseph A. Reilly, of New York, Avery Brundage, of Chicago and Robert S. Weaver, of Los Angeles, are being polled by mail and their votes, which may override his own and Kirby's, are expected within a few days, Chairman MacCabe said today.

ANOTHER SOCCER GAME ON SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon the J. B. Martin soccer football club will clash with the fast traveling Cottrell A. F. C. eleven of Westerly in the second game of the season at the J. B. Martin grounds.

The visitors come to town Sunday with plenty of experience, having played together for the past few seasons, and so far this season they have only been defeated once! They have thrice defeated Jewett City this season and as the locals have also defeated Jewett City the game is looked forward to as being one of the nip and tuck variety.

The locals, realizing that they are up against a tough assignment, have been out practicing daily and will also hold a two hour practice session this afternoon.

Tommie Addison, who refereed and every half hour. The kick off will be at 2.30 p. m.

The lineups will be as follows:

Cottrells A. F. C.		J. B. Martin
J. Milne	Goal	E Murphy
T. Thorpe	Right Back	A. Headen
C. Kenyon	Left Back	W Gley
J. Marriott	Right Half	E. Eccleston

kept the game well under control last week, has been given the assignment again this Sunday. F. Laycock of Taftville and J Douglas of Westerly will act as linesmen.

As a fairly good crowd attended the game last Sunday it is hoped that a larger crowd will attend this Sunday. There is trolley service to the grounds

POETRY

"They're Gonna Wear Curves in the Spring"

O, ladies, have done with your diets,
Step up to the nose-bag, my dears,
And signal the waiters to bring you potaters,
While I give Dame Fashion three cheers.

Come out of that celery complex,
No grief should a pound or two bring;
Let your avoirdupois be the chief of your joys,
For they're gonna wear curves in the spring.

Lay off from those trick callisthenics
No more need you roll on the ground
And writhe in contortions to flatten out portions
Which nature intended for round.

But bring on your fudge and your bonbons
Eat pancakes or any old thing,
No longer you hafter resemble a rafter;
They're gonna wear curves in the spring.

So here's happy days to you, ladies,
And a most pulchritudinous year.
May you all blossom out 'till you're stylishly stout
Fore the bathing-beach seasons draws near.

Sure, it's gonna be tough on the thin ones,
But think of the joy it will bring
To Tubby and Shorty and Fair-Fat and forty,
They're gonna wear curves in the spring!

—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Window Box

Upon my somewhat sunny ledge
With partial glimpse of the sky,
A morning glory took the pledge
To grow and bloom—and not to die.

I put the seed to earth in May
With ivy plants in pretty layers;
I watered it each sultry day
And sprinkled it with little prayers.

In June a verdant shoot appeared:
I gave it trellises to climb on.
And toward the sky it curled and veered
And height was what it spent its time on.

The Summer days were loud and bright.
And dust was on the waving leaves
And insects gnawed the stem at night
And Death hung bat-like from the eaves.

Defying all, it burst in bloom
Just as it reached the upper story,
And while the morning filled my room
The folks upstairs got all the glory.

—E. B. W., in Life.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Bill—"Aw, I wish I was dead."

Ted—"Well! Did she marry you or did she refuse?"—Detroit News.

One—My husband beat me terribly last night.

Tother—Well, it's about time you would know how to play bridge—Pathfinder.

Father—I want to tell you when I was your age, son, I didn't tel any lies.

Son—How old were you when you started, Pop?—Brooklyn Eagle.

Visiting salesman—"What became of that portable garage of yours?"

Merchant—"I tied my dog to it the other day, but, unfortunately, a cat came by."—Good Hardware.

"What do you regard as the really great achievement of your career?"

"Getting back into the United States capitol for the coming session," answered Sen. Sorgham.—Washington Star.

"We have only one complaint against our cook."

"What is that?"

"We can never tell whether she is singing happily at her work or whether she has burnt herself and is in pain."—Tit-Bits, London.

"Mrs. Grump seems to take a positive pleasure in anticipating trouble."

"Yes; you see in that way she manages to enjoy many sorrows that never really come to her."—Montreal Herald.

A bob-haired, scantily clad flapper was making her application at the pearly gates, and St. Peter was putting her through her category.

"What was your occupation?" he inquired.

"Men called me a gold-digger," she tittered.

"I'm sorry—but on account of the paving we can't let you in here"—Wall Street Journal.

When first introduced into England by the Dutch, about 1610, tea brought from $15 to $20 a pound.

The city of Kobe, Japan, has outlined plans to spend $61,000,000 in the next thirty years to modernize its streets for traffic.

Sir Christopher Wren's tomb in St. Paul's cathedral, of which he was architect, bears the simple epitaph: "If you are seeking my monument, look around."

Women taxpayers are hard hit in Neustadt, Thuringia. Not content with levying a tax on shingled heads the municipality has decided to impose taxes on silk stockings, patent leather shoes and on the carrying of canes by women.

Giving evidence in a court case in London recently, Detective-Sergeant Madden of the Scotland Yard finger-print department, stated that his bureau had taken more than 250,000 finger-prints since 1911 without a single error of identification.

"Sherlock Holmes" is the name by which one of the twenty new 1400-horse power electric locomotives built for the London Metropolitan railroad, will be known. The association lies in the fact that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous detective had his apartments in Baker street, West London, where the railroad has its terminus and headquarters.

After standing for many years without a name, the statue of King Charles I, at Charing Cross, London, is to bear a tablet. The government has informed the Royal Martyr society, that the offer of the society to present a tablet suitably inscribed as been accepted. Many American tourists have mistaken the statue for that of George Washington which stands in another corner of Trafalgar square.

Three 2,000-year-old Roman coins, worth nothing at face value but priceless as relics, have been presented to the Toledo Museum of Art by Thomas Winsop. The coins were found by Winsop, hidden in a crucifix brought to this country from his mother's home in Switzerland seven years ago. Winsop said the crucifix in which the relics were found had been in his mother's possession about sixty years. He did not know the history of the image before those years.

Germany's last mail coach has gone into the discard. The onward march of the automobile spelled the doom of this institution. The last mail coach served a number of villages in the province of Hanover. It was nearly a century old and regarded as a curiosity. It was regularly pointed out to tourists, and treated by the populace with a feeling of almost of reverence. Its disappearance was keenly regretted by the old folk in the villages which it served to link up. They do not take kindly to the noisy, odoriferous, high powered automobile which has taken its place.

BIG POOLS FURNISHED MUCH OF THE ACTIVITY IN YESTERDAY'S MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—(AP)—Stock prices today made further progress along the road to recovery. Trading started off at a slow pace, but gathered momentum as the session progressed. Pools undoubtedly furnished much of the day's activity, although active public speculation was apparent in several specialties, and there was a fair investment demand for some of the high grade rails and industrials.

Credit conditions continued to be the most absorbing topic in speculative circles. Reduction in the call money rate from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent., with a plethora of funds available at the lower figure, was offset by a slight stiffening in the short maturities in the time money market. 60 to 90 day bills being quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 3-8 instead of 4 1-8 to 4 1-4. Likewise, the decrease of $32,000,000 in brokers' loans was counter-acted by the further liquidation of government securities by the federal reserve banks.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further improvement in general business and decreased unemployment. Bank clearings were below those of a week ago, but above those of the corresponding week last year. The "Nickel Plate" railroad, the first to report its December earnings, showed net operating income of $1,219,919 last month month as against $788,425 in December 1926.

U. S. Steel common advanced another point to 148 in reflection of the recent increase in commodity prices. A brisk demand also developed for some of the independent steels, which have met the steel corporation's increase and are expected to show good first quarter earnings. Vanadium moved up 3 points and Republic 2 1-4, but the latter lost nearly half of its gain.

Hupp Motors, in which William C. Durant is reported to have a large interest, was bid up more than 3 points to a new peak at 35 7-8. Mack Trucks, Chrysler, Graham-Paige and Willys Overland preferred moved up a point of the record high. American Car & Foundry, American Railway Express, Austin Nichols preferred, A. M. Byers, City Stores B, International Business Machines, G. R. Kinney, Macy & Co., Montana Power, National Biscuit, National Lead and Westinghouse Electric all closed 3 to 10 points higher.

Southern Railway, Mobile & Ohio certificates ran up to a new peak at 159 1-2, broke to 138 and rallied to 144, off 5 3-4 net. Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and Illinois Central recorded moderate gains.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary. Japanese yen broke 25 points to 46.64 cents, but most of the other losses were nominal. Sterling cables yielded slightly to $4.87 3-8 and most of the continental currencies lost a point or two.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices advanced about 1 1-2 cents a bushel on buying influenced by threatened damage to crops in the northern winter wheat area as a result of the colder weather. Cotton yielded slightly in reflection of unfavorable trade news from domestic textile centers. Coffee quotations fluctuated within narrow and irregular limits, and sugar quotations held fairly steady.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

A PERSON'S FINEST ENDOWMENT POLICY IS ABILITY TO WORK

GREETINGS FROM SISTER STARLIGHT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: How are you all this fine morning? I am well and so are all the little folks.

What a funny winter we are having! I think it is as bad as last summer, with rain most every Sunday. It makes our country roads very bad and hard to travel.

How many of you sisters have been making rugs this winter? I have made three so far and am thinking of braiding another one before the winter is over. I just like to braid rugs. I think they last longer than the crochet ones.

I see that one of the Sisters has had a pleasure trip to the Devil's Hopyard. I had the same pleasure a few years ago and would very much like to go again. How many of you have noticed the old Cadillac on the premises? That car was in use when my boys were working there.

Lucy Acorn: How are you, and why do you not write any more?

Clip: Have been expecting to see one of your letters in print.

I think the Editor thought I was in the land of the missing, for I see he has given my pen name to another. Let's hope she writes oftener than I do, for I enjoyed reading her letters. In fact, I enjoy every one of the letters and hope the Editor did not think I was a slacker and did not deserve my pen name, but have been busy most of the time. (The signature of the letter referred to should have been Starbright and not Starlight.—S. C. Editor).

With best wishes for a happy New Year to all.

STARLIGHT.

FAITHFUL MAILMEN

Dear Editor and Corner Members: Well, we did have a page full of nice letters Saturday, didn't we? How good it is when we have a few minutes to rest to pick up The Bulletin and find The Corner page full and overflowing. What interesting letters, helps and good recipes we do have, and above all the many good laughs we get from the letters.

Necia: I was all alone when I read your letter,but how I did laugh, and I think I felt better after, for I had a poor day Saturday. Pat wasn't going to go until he knew where he was going, was he? Yes, I think it would do a lot of us good if we would stop to consider some things.

Aries: Very sorry if I gave the impression that I mistrusted my mailman. On the contrary, I have the most efficient mailman in the service, I think. No matter what the weather or how bad the roads, our old faithful is here before 9 a. m. as a rule. He is as courteous and accommodating as he possibly can be, and is also good natured and pleasant, which means a whole lot to the people who have to do business with him every day. When I think of the miles of country roads that man has to travel every day, and knowing those roads as well as I do, I wonder he can be as pleasant as he is, and I for one hope he will be with us for many a year. And the best of it is we have a substitute carrier who is very nearly his equal. No one could resist that good natured boyish grin. Our mailman has put himself out many a time to deliver our mail. I've known him to walk over two miles in order not to slight us (and that's more than can be said for some other others), and that not in nice summer weather either, but when the thermometer registered around zero and the snow was piled up all around. That's what I call service. All honor where honor is due. Wherever my letters went, I am positive that they never came into my mailman's hands.

Well, Crimson Rambler and Maple Leaf, where are you? Can't say you are snowed in for an excuse.

They are telling of last summer being a summerless summer. I wonder if this winter is going to be a winterless winter? But perhaps before this is in print we will have it. There hasn't been a week but what I have seen dandelions in my yard.

Aries: I guess a great many do R. S. V. P. at our meetings. Aren't you coming this winter? Try and come for the anniversary meeting. I suppose it is hard for you to get away.

Sister Ready: You shall have that coffee in time for next meeting. Hope you haven't had any more mishaps. The jinx must surely have got you.

What gorgeous sunsets we have been having! And some sunrises, too. That's the beauty of living on a hill—we get the benefit of all the beautiful sights.

I wish to thank a Social Corner Member for the lovely little calendar.

READING MATERIAL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am sure we are all glad for the fine weather that the new year has ushered in. It does not seem like winter at all. As a special subject I would like to consider the thought on "reading material." In these days there is a great variety of books, magazines and papers of all kinds to choose from, and according to our personal tastes and inclinations. What may suit one fails to interest another, which is perfectly natural. But even so, there is much material either helpful or harmful, especially to young people, which influences their minds and character, one way or the other. It seems to me such a waste of time for anyone, at any age, to read for hours some books or papers that have little or no value, nothing to be learned, and nothing to retain afterwards. A few months ago, while I was away on my western trip, I observed a young lady of 17 years who was reading stories every spare minute she could. So absorbed, she neglected many necessary duties for herself and mother. I wondered then if her reading would benefit her at present or hereafter for the amount of time she was giving to it. I would not be understood that we should avoid good mirthful, cheerful reading, by any means, for those types are helpful, but would remember the old saying, "too much of a good thing is good for nothing," and place a suitable limit. In contrast to the young lady I have just referred to, I will mention another illustration. This one is an elderly lady who has passed her four score and three years. In conversation with her on the subject of reading material, she spoke in this way: "I am glad now that I always selected good reading when I was young, and all my later life, for I enjoy remembering so many good morals, incidents of history, traits and characteristics of some of our great leaders, both men and women, of our country." She has also devoted much time in reading and studying Bible literature. She not only developed a good mind and high ideals of life and true character, but can give to others the benefit of what she has learned by wholesome instructive reading. We can all enjoy a visit with one who can talk on something that is worth listening to, and surely reading is a great education. I heartily support Eveline Burr in what she says regarding books. We have all learned many little morals from our early school books which will never be erased from our memory. Those impressions in young childhood carry their influence on and onward. To us who have had the privilege of another school period with our children we have found it interesting, for they have repeated those simple stories, with a deeper meaning, which appear in the juvenile readers of today.

I wish to thank the Social Corner Member for my potted calendar. I appreciate it thoroughly.

Hope the new year will bring added success to the Social Corner page. Best wishes to every sister for happiness and prosperity in 1928.

JENNIE (Club No. 1).

GREETINGS FROM ANNE D

Dear Friends: I will begin this short letter by thanking the member who sent me the very pretty calendar for 1928. It also reminded me that I had not written to the column in a long time. I have only attended one social in the last four or five months, as it was not convenient for me to go on the days they came, but that one was very enjoyable.

Ann Tenna: In one of your letters you spoke of a farm not far from your home where the present owner had set out some black walnut trees. Many are the times I have visited there when a child, playing with my cousins. One of the greatest pleasures we enjoyed was trying to fly kites. If the wind blew good and hard we would have fine luck; if not we would go into the house and patiently wait until another day. Those were some of the happy days of my childhood. Now it will not be hard for you to guess who I am.

Are we not having an unusual winter? It is so mild we can imagine Spring is almost here. Maybe cold and snow will come later to freeze us up. My husband received a letter from a friend in Clearwater, Florida, who told us he was enjoying the climate there and also of his fine garden with every variety of vegetables growing at the present time.

Happy New Year to all.

ANNE D

CONDEMNING OTHERS

Dear Social Corner: The other day I was looking at a Moose magazine. All the actresses had their mouths open. When I was a little girl my mother would say when she caught me with mine open, "Shut your mouth, only idiots go round that way."

I always think how silly we look. Look in the glass and open your mouth just enough to show your teeth and then—well we do, don't we?

Thanks for the calendar from the Social Corner Member. May he or she live to spend many more. The verse is the wish of all of us.

Many moons have gone by since I have realized real happiness. But we have to take whatever is sent. No way to turn from it. So what is the use of dwelling on the past.

Condemnation. The word reminds me of the woman who condemns without hearing and without mercy another member of her sex.

Would all her own actions during a lifetime bear the strong light of scrutiny? A man pronounces a severe verdict against his fellow man over whom he is set in authority. Is there no blot on any page of his life? It passes understanding the effrontery of some men and women presuming to weigh in weak human scales the deeds of others. For them it was written "Judge not that ye be not judged."

Here is woeful knowledge. A man walks three miles an hour, a horse trots seven. Rapid rivers flow seven, slow rivers flow four, storms move 36, hurricanes 80, sound 1143 a second, electricity 280,000. There are 2750 languages. A barrel of pork weighs 200 pounds. A ton of coal—well only the coal dealers can answer that question. Some times its more and some times less. It depends.

An acre is 4840 square yards and 640 acres make a square mile. To measure an acre allow 200 feet on each side. This makes an acre within an inch.

Sixty drops make a teaspoonful.

Zany: you are the limit. Give us more and don't let Twice Twenty get the inside track.

Bay State: My badge has arrived. Many thanks. Here's to the stars and stripes of the United States of America that never trailed in defeat.

RURAL DELIVERY'S GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Many thanks to the Social Corner member who sent me the fine desk calendar of 12 potted plants in full bloom. It hangs in my desk in plain sight and it will remind me it belongs to the Corner family for the year of 1928. Well this is leap year and the girls have something to do to catch high flyer Lindbergh.

Necia: The Irishman's epitaph was fine. He wanted to be on the safe side.

Nonsopretty, when the good old summmer time comes again perhaps I can attend a Social Corner picnic again. It is a good place to go, they all seem so friendly.

Artificial Flowers: I was much interested in your letter in the Corner in regard to the Watkins murder case. If you have the Windham County Transcript of last week you will find in North Sterling news one of my items of the murder and the last public hanging in Windham county.

With all kinds of good wishes for the great Corner family I remain very sincerely yours.

CLUB NO. 5'S FINE MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Wish to thank Social Corner Member for my pretty bouquet calendar. Just what I was wishing for. Many thanks. Club No. 5 met at Buckingham Memorial Jan. 4th with 62 present. The usual fine dinner was served by our genial hostess Snowflake with Kasha, Aunty No. 1 and others as helpers. The Friendly Voice gave us a fine program. Blackeyed Susan entertained us with music which we enjoyed very much. Resolutions for the New Year were read and discussed. Sister Elva is to be hostess at our next meeting. I shall be glad when Bridge is at liberty to meet with us again as we miss her at our meetings. Am afraid Joan is forgetting us, as we have not seen her for several meetings.

Best wishes for Social Corner members and a happy New Year to all.

WURDY BELLE

GIFTS FOR A KITCHEN SHOWER.

Dear Corner Folks:—Rather nice weather we are having just at the present time. I wish to thank all who sent me cards and greetings at Christmas. They all carried messages of friendship and good cheer.

I am sending a novel way of presenting gifts at a kitchen shower for a bride-to-be. It is in the form of a doll. The necessary articles may be purchased at any five and ten cent store, such as a wooden spoon, potato masher, dish mop, dish towel, two paring knives, a couple of forks and a couple of yards of baby ribbon of the bride's favorite color. The face of the doll can be drawn on the back of the spoon bowl, and the dish mop can be placed back of this to represent the hair, then the potato masher stood up behind so the lower part forms the feet. These three articles are then tied securely together with a cord. The two knife handles are tied together with the points in opposite directions and fastened on for the arms, with a cork on the point of each for the hands. For the dress the dish cloth is draped around the doll tying at the neck, waist, and arms with the ribbon. It will be found a very useful and amusing doll, and these articles are things that are used daily in every home.

Happy New Year to all and thanks for very pretty calendar.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

AN OLD SONG WANTED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have not written for a long time, so thought I would get busy with my pen today. As I am settled in my new home now, I feel I have plenty of time to write a few lines. Was looking over my paper and failed to see None-So-Pretty among the rest of the writers. I am interested in her letters. I always look for them. I hope she will get busy and write this week. Hope she is well.

Calla Lilly: Why don't you write? Would like to hear from you. Haven't had my Lizzie registered yet. Will be up and see you later. Have you been up to see None-So-Pretty lately? I was up once and am going again as soon as I can.

Eman: How are you these days? Hope you are fine. How is Mr. B.? Hope he is fine also. Will be up to see you again in a few months.

Hillside: Made some of those Rhode Island Johnny cakes. They are fine. I never made them that way before but will make plenty of them now, as johnnycakes are one of my favorite dishes.

None-So-Pretty: Did you say you knew the song The Winds That Blew Across the Wild Moor? If you do will you please send it in? If not, will someone else do it? Have asked several young people, but no one knows it, so I guess I will have to try the older people. I think some of them will know.

Best wishes to all.

PROVIDENCE ROSE.

STOPPED BY A CHIMNEY FIRE

Dear Social Corners: Well, I haven't written in such a long time thought I would try and write a few lines. I am kept quite busy with four little ones to look after but am in hopes of having lots of help when they grow older. The oldest, only 4 1-2, washes the dishes for me now. That is quite a little help.

I suppose Club No. 6 had a good time and plenty to eat, as usual I was all ready to come but the chimney got afire and we had quite an exciting time at home. By the time the chimney was quieted down the bus had gone. I was awfully disappointed, as I haven't been in a long time. The Mr. isn't working now, being laid off for a while, so he was going to take care of the children.

Country Sister: I suppose you will be down to shake your feet Saturday night.

Necia: Am going up to Country Sister's next week, if nothing happens. Hope to see you while there.

Sumac: When I get the old flivver to running again this spring I am going to try and get down to see you and Milky Way.

Kochia: I do enjoy reading your letters. I suppose you and your mother are in the best of health. I can remember you when I was a girl at home. One incident I can remember now—the time you gave me an awful slap on the face.

Let's hope you never lose your temper again like that. As space is getting scarce, will stop with best wishes to all the Social Corner members.

AN URGE BY AUNTY NO. 1

Dear Editor and Corner Members, one and all: I don't want to be a slacker so will try and begin the new year right by The Corner page. I wish to thank the one for my lovely calendar. I think by the sound of the different letters that there can't be said there was any partiality shown. So far we all seem to be living in the land of flowers. I think they are lovely, and I thank you.

The last year has made so many changes, some very familiar faces missing; some gone on just a little while ahead of us to their reward, and so many of the old attendants at the gatherings that don't come now. We miss you and wish you would make it one of your New Year resolutions to attend the club meetings, and also write more often than I do. This is a busy world and we are going too fast. But must keep up to some extent. In a little while and I will be more than busy when our spring work begins, but I love the work and it agrees with me, and I love to help Uncle all I can. You know we must do something to keep the wolf from the door.

Fat Contributor: You see my letter now, but I won't promise when you will see another. Why don't we see a letter from you once in a while? Wake up! I wish to thank all who sent me cards during the holidays. A Happy New Year to all is the wish of

A HOLIDAY VISIT

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: First of all, I want to thank the sender of the lovely calendar which I received. It is the first time I ever had sent me 12 potted plants, and every one so lovely, all at one time. I am a great lover of plants and that struck me just right. I also want to thank all who sent me cards and gifts.

I left home the Friday before Christmas to spend the holidays with my son in Bristol and landed in a good snow storm. The ground was just white. I had sent a letter on Wednesday to have someone meet me Friday and found on reaching there I had arrived before the letter, which came in the last delivery Friday afternoon, but my son had telephoned to Bristol, learning that it was a very busy time with the letter carriers, so I was fortunate to have my grandson meet me. The Christmas tree was held up until the arrival of my son and daughter, who came Sunday morning. We all had a lovely time and Monday morning we all went to Hartford to another daughter's home and again had a lovely time and lovely presents, so you see I am getting to be quite a sport. As the year is still young, feel that it is not too late to wish everyone a Happy New Year and a prosperous one. Best wishes to all members of the Social Corner.

CHATTY LETTER FROM PEGGY ALDER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It has been some time since I have written a Social Corner letter so thought I had better get into line and write one.

Kochia: No signs of snow up this way. I always look for your letter to see what is going on down that way. I am not able to tell you very much about the school house you asked about, but think Rural Delivery could tell quite a little about it. Mr. Peggy thinks it is about eight miles from here. I have always heard it called Checkerberry school house. It burned down several years ago. Not long before Aunt S. passed away she visited the place as she used to attend school there. She located the place where she thought her desk used to be, and stood there and told us stories about her school days. Then we visited the cemetery near by and found the grave of the man that taught school when she attended school there, but am not able to recall his name.

She called our attention to the place where Mr. Walkins used to live, and told us about his killing his wife. My grandfather had told me about the time he was hung and where it happened, but I didn't know before that he lived at North Sterling.

I wish to thank the Social Corner Member for the calendar received last night. It is certainly handsome and I never saw one like it before. I appreciate it very much.

Peter Prose: How come you don't ever write? Would you like to have some olives?

Azile: I am going over some day, and we will talk things over.

Lilac Lady: I looked for you during vacation, sorry I didn't see you. I suppose you were busy like the rest of us.

Harry E: Glad you had a good day for your trip.

Nonesopretty: Spring will be here some time, perhaps we can visit more then.

Votami: How about a Social Corner letter?

All those in trouble of any kind have my sympathy, and I wish all a happy and prosperous New Year. It is rather late but none the less sincere.

PEGGY ALDER, Club. (No. 4.)

GREETINGS FROM HARRY E.

Dear Social Corner: Here I am, Peggy Alder, just as I said I would. I wonder if Votami has written, too.

Hope you are feeling better now, Cherry Blossom. Butterfly knows who you are now and I didn't tell her either. Did you get my letter?

Nelly Grey: If my head wasn't tied on I would forget that, wouldn't I?

Am sending my fudge recipe. It is real good. Ask Peggy Alder.

Fudge: 3 Tablespoons cocoa, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup puffed rice.

Mix cocoa, sugar, butter and 3-4 cup of milk and boil. Add the 1-4 cup of milk and cook until it forms a ball when dropped in cold water. Remove from stove, add vanilla and puffed rice. Beat; pour into buttered pan and cool. By adding milk after boiling the fudge will be more smooth and of a finer grain. I make this real often.

Gingham Girl: Haven't seen any letters from you lately. Now you aren't working you can find time to write.

Moses Wife: Didn't you think the bride looked lovely? I had a card from her from New York city. She also sent Baby Barbara a cute little plate and cup. It was metal, painted cream color with a picture of a little girl on each. I hope you get down to see me some time. Hope to see you at some Social Corner picnic sometime, anyway.

Nonesopretty: Well I haven't been to see you yet but I am coming sometime. Perhaps some time with Peggy Alder. Come over and see me.

Greetings and best wishes to all.

HARRY E.

GOOD BREADS FOR SANDWICHES

Dear Sisters and all: The following recipes may be used in making different breads for sandwiches or for ordinary table use, which I like very much myself.

Raisin Bread: 1 cake compressed yeast, 1 1-4 cup milk, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 cup shortening, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 1-2 cups flour, 1 1-2 cups raisins. Scald milk, cool and when luke warm add yeast and 1 1-2 cups of flour. Beat well and let stand until light. Then add the other ingredients and knead thoroughly. Let rise until double in size. Divide in three equal parts, let rise and bake.

Oat meal bread: 1 cup oatmeal, 2 cups boiling water, 1-2 yeast cake, 1-4 cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup sugar or molasses, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 quart wheat flour. Pour the boiling water on the oat meal and let stand until luke warm. Then add the yeast which has been dissolved in the lukewarm water. Add the other ingredients, stirring together with a spoon. Let rise until light. Bake in a moderate oven.

Old Fashioned Walnut Bread: 1 1-2 cup graham flour, 1 1-2 cup white flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup walnut meats, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 1-2 cup milk. Sift the flours, salt and baking powder together, add the molasses in which a little soda has been stirred. Then add the crushed walnut meats and sufficient milk to make a drop batter. Bake in bread pan 45 minutes in a moderate oven. When spread with jelly or butter, this makes tasty sandwiches.

Best wishes to the editor and all the sisters.

THE BROADCAST FROM CUBA.

Dar Cornerites: I had the pleasure of "listening in" today (Monday) to the Pan-American congress at Havana—a message of good will and international co-operation—and heard every word of President Coolidge's address. This was the first time that the people of the United States had been addressed by their chief magistrate from a foreign country. It was certainly good, and every word came in clear and distinct from WEAF.

A Quaker lady suggests the following cosmetic. For the lips—truth, for the voice—power, for the hands—charity, for the figure—uprightness, for the heart—love.

A contributor sends the following taken from his great grandfather's scrap book of 1782:

If cloudy Candlemas day in leap year be
And the woodchuck his shadow cannot see,
Back to his ground-hole he goes to stay,
For Wintor will last 'till All Fool's day.

Here is a Russian Story:

A widow put up a costly monument to her late husband and inscribed upon it—"My grief is so great that I cannot bear it." A year or so after, however, she married again and feeling a little awkward about the inscription, she solved the difficulty by adding one word to it "alone."

My sympathetic heart goes out today to one of our nearest neighbors who has lost a kind and loving father. Another grand old man has gone to that "Beautiful Beyond."

PLEASED WITH CALENDAR

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: I would like to thank A Social Corner Member for my beautiful potted plant calendar. I have had a calendar for [illegible] three years and I look forward [illegible] each year.

I think most of the members of Club 4 must be taking a winter nap. I have awakened from mine and now I hope some of the others will.

Peggy Alder: I am looking forward to that visit.

Azile: Would you like some candy? If it isn't too late, I would wish everyone a happy and prosperous New Year.

LILAC LADY.

PLEASED TO SEE CLUB NO. 4 GROWING

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long time since I sent a letter for the page, but I could not seem to get one written. First, I want to thank A Social Corner Member for the calendar sent me. I have never seen anything like it, such a unique idea. I must tell you what my little 4 year old neighbor said when she saw it. She thought it was pretty but wanted me to "take the flowers out and put something else in the basket!" I asked her what I should put in it and she said my watch! She is a ray of sunshine to us and we enjoy her and her remarks.

Ann Tenna: I have enjoyed your letters; think I called at your home once with Mrs. Kelley when she took me riding. Didn't you stay with her a while once? I lived the other side of the fence.

I am glad to see there are so many new members of Club No. 4. I am interested even if unable to attend the meetings. Here is a thought that came to me in a letter:

"Every day is the beginning of a new year, so today is to be a happy new year, and every today the same—just happiness for today."

Let's try for it; if we fail one day, start anew the next.

ROBERTA (Club No. 4).

REQUESTED

Dear Readers of the Social Corner: Have you ever thought that a man who deserts a friend in trouble is a coward and a poltroon.

That's a half truth. A half truth, like a half brick, can be thrown further and hits harder than a whole one. "I once deserted a friend in an hour of trial." That's not a confession. It's a boast.

I was reading a letter written by Roe Fulkerson. He said: "With five other friends I was asked to act as pallbearer at his wife's funeral. In that last sad half hour before the ceremony he stood at the head of her coffin and, looking down into her pale calm face, he cried aloud in his agony: 'She never knew how much I loved her!'"

Why, in the name of Allah, in the name of Mohammed the Prophet, in the name of every houri in paradise in the name of all the good wives on earth, hadn't he told her how much he loved her?

For twenty years he had faced her at the breakfast table, had met her again at dinner, had long, intimate domestic chats with her as they sat alone around the fireside after the children had been put to bed. With twenty years of such opportunities he had let her pass into the valley of the shadow without telling her.

I never had any use for him after that. He wasn't the fellow I thought he was. I did for him the physical service which the season required, but mind service I will never render him again and his.

The man who lives beside a wonderful wife for twenty years and lets her die without knowing how much he loves her is little less than a criminal. The man or woman who has a friend for twenty years and lets him or her die without knowing how much he liked her is the same.

Do your wife and mine know how much we love them? I am not talking about a casual kiss, the little pat of approval on the arm or things of that sort. I am talking about an actual outright statement to her of the love which is really in our heart for her. How long isit?

At our elbow is a telephone. On the other end of that wire is a candy shop. How long has it been since we sent our wives a box of candy except or her birthday or wedding anniversary?

At the other end of the wire is a florist. Suppose we call up the florist and send her a bunch of her favorite flowers, unexpected like? Oh, yes, I remember the story of the man who took a bunch of roses to his wife. She cried because she thought he had come home drunk. Whose fault was it?

She is on the other end of the wire, too! Why don't we call her up and tell her we were thinking about her and loving her and just wanted to tell her what a nice girl she is? It will surprise her, of course, and she may faint, but she will come to and be the happier for it.

We mustn't think that fur coats and the diamonds we give her now can ever make up for the love we used to give her. Women are like that. They do not like to swap a sweetheart for an inexhaustible supply company, and that's what we are becoming.

There's the telephone, old top. At the other end of that wire are flowers, the candy, the silk stockings and the woman we have loved so long. Let's be good boys and strut out our stuff.

WE ALL LOVE LETTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I see the letters are getting very scarce for the past two weeks. We all love to get letters. There is something about them that seems to warm our very hearts. What pleasure it is to mother to get a letter from her children. She looks for the mail from day to day. She gets more thrills out of a nice letter than she would from a movie show, and I'll bet on it. I don't think that the most of us mean to be selfish, but we are so absorbed in our work that the days and weeks and even months slip by very quickly, while the dear folks way back home worry so much they get sick, waiting for that letter we were going to write. Neglect is a comon thing with us all. That is why we have so few letters.

If we rejoice in getting letters I guess we will have to write more. I know I have been a slacker for some time, but haven't even been missed, I guess. I want to thank the Social Corner Member for my lovely calendar. What could be nicer than a potted plant each month for the whole year?

I wish all the Social Corner sisters and the Social Corner Editor a very happy new year—the best they ever had.

I had some nice candy Christmas and it was so good I asked how it was made. I have just made some and it is more than nice, so I thought someone else might like to try it.

Nice Candy: Two pounds brown sugar, 1 can condensed milk, 1 cup milk, little butter; boil until it forms a soft ball in water; stir all the time it is cooking so not to burn. When done remove from fire, add 1 teaspoon vanilla, take out in the cold (I put mine on a stone step) and stir until it gets thick, then put in walnut meats and turn in buttered pans. Don't think there is a mistake by using a can of condensed milk and also one cup of milk. Try it and see how nice it is, or make one-half of it.

Mrs. K.: My address will be the same as before, only my street and number. They have made another change.

Lottie: How are you?

ANNA Z.

ECONOMICAL USE OF OLD SWEATER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Perhaps others have old sweaters that are old and out of style but in which yarn is still good. If such is the case, why not wash them in a nice warm mild soapsuds and rinse twice in warm water, hang on a line on a bright clear day with a good breeze blowing?

When dry, unravel and wind into balls and knit into mittens or wristers for the little folks. Then color if necessary or knit into toques for children. Here are my directions for mittens: Cast 15 stitches on two needles and 18 on one if fine needles are used. Knit 2 plain, purl 1 on each needle till wrist is 2 inches long. Then knit 3 plain, purl 1, 1 plain, widen 1, 1 plain, 1 purl, then knit remainder plain. Widen 1 on next needle and 1 on next, knit 5 plain, purl 1, knit 3, purl 1, knit remainder plain. Repeat, only every 4 times round widen 2 between purls till you have 11 stitches between purl. Take 3 off on a short piece of yarn of another color, cast on 7 stitches and knit plain to end of little finger. Put same number stitches on each end of needle, knit 1 narrow to within 3 of end. Repeat every 3rd round till 6 or 7 remain. Knit once around between narrowing. When only 3 remain on each needle break yarn and pull through the stitches. Thread darning needle and fasten. Pick up stitches for thumb, 13 stitches on 2, 8 on 1, knit required length and narrow off.

Thanks to A Social Corner Member for pretty calendar and thanks to all Social Corner sisters for cards.

VISITING AND ENTERTAINING

Dear Editor and Corner Members: Winter now has passed into its last half, and the weatherman has certainly been most kind to us all. Only two light falls of snow have visited this section. These remained only a short time, being taken away quickly by rain.

Sunday to my surprise, during the afternoon, what should roll up to my door but a beautiful sedan. Then two men made their appearance. One of the brothers proved to be a schoolmate of mine some 35 years ago when we attended the village school here. At that time their father was one of the village blacksmiths. Well, did we talk? I'll say so! For many old-time memories were brought forth. The boys after leaving this town in '93 went into business and both have married and each has a happy home and children. As the older one said: What more could a man wish for? Health, business, a happy home, even if there is no wealth, and all of us readers will agree that they were about right.

Today when I picked up the morning paper my eyes rested upon a long paragraph of the life of "Henry Jones," who has just passed away at his late home in Jewett City. Mr. Jones was one of the pioneer drivers of the overland stage between here and town and mine. During those 25 years of driving the mail coach he drove two of those years for my father, who had the contract. But the coach line of horses has passed away and autos have taken its place. During the past week one of my chums since childhood invited me to visit him in his new home in Westerly, and there I found still more changes, for I found him alone, with only a loving wife to cheer him on. His father, mother and brother were at home whenever I had visited him before. Now they have crossed the Bar, long before they really should, and he himself had moved to another section of the city. So little do we realize what changes are at hand.

Potlatch: Many moons have come and gone sonce a letter from you has appeared. I only hope no severe changes have befell you out in Seattle. I know you are a busy person and last I knew you were planning upon another trip to the coast.

While in Westerly I had the pleasure to see the picture of the Dressed Parade and heard the cadets' band which was with the picture.

Kindest regards.

KOCHIA.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR

Dear Sisters, one and all: First I want to thank A Social Corner Member for my lovely calendar. What a big heart and a good memory the member must have to send so many so I say again, Thank You for It.

I missed being at the last two meetings. Grandpa M. kept me home both times. The first time he hurt his knee getting on the trolley. That was soon over. The second time in January he needed attention for high blood pressure, so I just took care of him and he is ever so much better.

I watched 1927 go out sitting up all night with a sick son. My first New Year caller was our doctor but as all seem to be on the mend I am hoping that the old saying of bad beginning means a good ending.

Scotties and Mr. S: Your visit was enjoyed Sunday. In the evening a surprise visit by two more friends made a very pleasant day.

Necia: Your letter and cemetery verse was O. K. The first part with more added to it can be found in this old part of the City Cemetery on Oak street in the lower part of yard. Others also with just as quaint sayings.

Bay State: Why the hold off? We learned at Sunday school from Joan's mother as our teacher a text: Do unto others, etc. Son hasn't forgot Joan. How are your flowers? My daffies are two inches out of the ground.

Golden Glow: Bumble Bee U. C. E.: I missed seeing you. I hope I can be on hand Feb. 7 if my family keeps well and weather is good.

Cady: I was sorry to miss you as we haven't met for some time. Let hubby look after store again and come often. The change will do you good.

Best wishes to each and everyone.

CALL ON LILY

HOW TO LAUNDER LINENS

Dear Social Corner Editor: A reader of The Corner desires to know how to launder linens and how to have sufficient quantity for the necessary changes.

Few housekeepers realize the prompt returns that comes from a small degree of weekly attention given to the linen.

To have sufficient quantity for the necessary changes, to see that it is put into the laundry at the proper time, to replenish when the stock becomes depleted, these are the usual items for consideration. But there are other vital points that demand thought and watchfulness; and it is upon these details that the conservation of your linen really depends.

First, the strict avoidance of washing powders is the primary rule for the laundering of linen. The weakening of the threads, resulting from the use of these destructive substances, is inevitable at an early stage in the life of the linen; and the immediate and complete ruin of tablecloths and napkins is the outcome when such so-called "helps" are not thoroughly dissolved in the water. Thus it is not only unsafe but actually harmful to use anything but clear warm water, with an abundant supply of mild pure soap and the usual blueing. These combined with careful handling, only a moderate amount of rubbing and a thorough rinsing in several waters comprise the simple precautions to take if you want your linen to last its normal length of time.

The overuse of starch in the washing is another mistake that often does harm, as the stiffness is apt to cause bruising the creases, which will eventually result in a break in the fabric.

When linen is put away not to be used for some time, all the starch should be removed, not only because of the brittleness it causes, but also because it will make the linen turn yellow. Another point to be considered in this connection is that linen should be kept in a dry, cool place. Heat causes a drying and brittleness of the threads which ultimately means destruction.

Much may be said also about the method of ironing linen. For while pressure is essential to bring out the pattern, an over-amount is likely to develop a cracking in the folds. The linen should be well dampened and, with the exception of lace trimmed or embroidered pieces, should be ironed thoroughly on both sides until perfectly dry.

When it comes to the creasing, the slightest pressure should be used, for it must be remembered that the process is necessary only because of convenience in putting the linen away and that any undue stress at these points has a serious effect upon the fiber. Some housekeepers fold all the napkins by hand, simply pressing them gently with the fingers.

Another rule to be kept in mind in ironing linen is to move the iron with the threads—never diagonally. This system is usually applied to straight-line articles without much thought, as, for example, in pressing square tablecloths and napkins. It is in the ironing of round pieces that disaster follows a rotary or diagonal movement.

The round lunch cloth to be successfully ironed must be placed upon the ironing board with the threads parallel with and at right angles to the board. Then the iron should pass over it, up and down, or back and forth, lengthwise of the board.

In ironing round doilies or oval trayclothes, the same principles apply, and remember, also, that where there are embroidered patterns, a bath towel should be first laid on the board, and the linen should be ironed only on the wrong side.

A cause for great dissatisfaction is the breaking of the hem stitching on towels, and while this may not be overcome entirely it may be deferred many months or perhaps a year or two, be careful attention to the matter of ironing. As a rule the laundress brings the iron down forcibly toward the end of the towel which means an unnecessary pulling on this weak point. To avoid this strain iron crosswise of the hem.

L. T. H. I thought that was my old friend. Many changes that is true but we still admire your pluck. I have forgotten your address please write.

KITTY LOU.

PUT YOUR FAITH IN 1928

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: We have entered upon another year since last you heard from me, but I mean to do my bit even if not as interesting as some. Necia thinks the Corner page grows more empty all the time, so we must try and do better this year. Some very good people tell us the whole world is on the down grade at the present time, but let us not believe it. The world isn't I'm sure of it. Let us believe with all our heart and soul that 1928 will be the best and happiest year that has so far dawned upon our earth, and let us do our part to make it so.

I must thank the Social Corner member for the pretty calendar. It is hanging just where I can look at it anytime and think of the sender.

True Blue: How are you progressing with your part? Hope Red Rose is having no trouble. If so call me up; we want that surprise all right.

Country Sister: Don't forget that box.

Necia: Shall I se you before the next meeting which will be the 14th of Feb. valentine's day? I think it would be very nice if you could get together before then and compare notes; what say?

Sister Ready: Have you resolved this year the same as you did last?

I want to thank all who sent me cards and gifts at Christmas. It is so nice to be remembered. Best wishes for the Social Corner welfare.

SCOTTIE

Dear Social Corner Members. I want you to try these cooking suggestions and see if they do not provide a change that will be pleasing.

Block Island Turkey: One cup codfish, cut small, to three cups of raw diced potato. Cover with boiling water and cook below the boiling point until the potatoes are tender—about 15 minutes. Pour into a strainer, drain thoroughly and return to the kettle. Mash well, add one-eighth teaspoon pepper and heat. Add enough milk to make the consistency of mashed potato. Heap on a buttered glass baking dish, leaving "points" standing up as a meringue. Put in a moderate oven to brown. While it is browning make a medium white sauce—using, three tablespoons of flour and 1 1-2 cups of milk. Season with salt and pepper and two hard cooked eggs which have been sliced.

Turkey's Farewell Appearance:—Break the turkey carcass in pieces, removing all stuffing. Place in kettle with bits of meat that may have been left over. Cover with cold water, bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer two to three hours. Strain, remove fat, season with salt and pepper. Two outer stalks of celery cooked with the carcass gives additional flavor. Serve with salted crackers.

Corned Beef Hash: Put two cups chopped potatoes, add two cups chopped corned beef and onion to taste. Season with salt and pepper, moisten with milk (water can be used). Put in a hot greased frying pan, stir until well mixed. Spread evenly then place over a very slow fire to brown; the time required being about 40 minutes. Turn and serve on a hot plater. Garnish with parsley and serve at once.

Apricot tapioca pudding is made like apple tapioca, substituting one cup of soaked dry apricots for the apples.

Maryland Eggnog: Eight quarts milk, six eggs, one cup sugar one pint rum extract. Beat the yolks, add sugar and rum extract. Cook three minutes in the top of a double boiled. Then add three beaten egg whites the milk and the remaining egg whites, beaten stiff. Grate nutmeg over the top and serve. This has been used in one family for over 160 years.

GUESS WHO.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Members: I have been a reader of your letters for seven years and have enjoyed them immensely. I attended one of your meetings some time ago and I have often wondered since then how it would seem to be a member of such a jovial band. I have decided that if you will accept me I will join your ranks as

SILLY MILLY.

GREETINGS

To the Editor and Social Corner Friends: I wish you all a Happy New Year, and I wish to think the Social Corner Member who sent me the novelty potted plant calendar.

SATURDAY EVE (Club 4)

SOME OF OUR WINTER BIRDS

Dear Sisters: One of our members has requested me to write a letter about birds, and as it seems timely I will talk a little about some of the winter birds, although it seems to me that Winter Robin or Chickadee should be the one to write on this subject. It is much easier and pleasanter for most of us to study birds and their habits in summer than in winter, when we may expect

"Snow after snow, and gale and hail,
Gaunt trees encased in icy mail,
The glittering drifts so hard
They take no trace
Of scared, wild feet."

A real naturalist will be out even in such weather and on his return be able to talk entertainingly of the things he has seen. Frank Bolles, Dallas Lore Sharp (a new book of his has recently been published) and others have written of winter woods, fields and birds. These books are good to read aloud to the family as they sit in the glow of an open fire on a cold winter's night. They bring back the spirit of youth to those who can only go by proxy on long, invigorating winter tramps.

People who live in the country have the advantage over others when it comes to the study of birds. James Ludlow says: "Knowledge of nature ac nest—a deep cup lined with thistledown—in a peach tree. They do not nest until late summer, after most birds have reared their young. He sings as he flies and makes a beautiful picture in his yellow and black clothes. A week or two ago when I was in the country a bird alighted near me. Presently when he flew I noted the undulating flight, accompanied by the unmistakable notes of the goldfinch, but instead of being bright yellow and black he was sparrow colored. Nevertheless it was our some little friend only in winter dress. Humans sometimes change the color of their gowns, and so do some of the birds.

ANDREW DAVIDSON, OF NEW LONDON, FOUND DEAD FROM HEART ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 20.—Andrew Davidson, 63, of 59 Willetts avenue, where he boarded at the residence of Mrs. Peter Peterson, died suddenly this morning, undoubtedly while he slept, death being caused by heart disease. He is survived by a brother, John Davidson, this city. He was a painter by trade. Mr. Davidson was apparently as well as usual yesterday, for he was not complaining of illness. He was about the house last night and retired at his customary hour. When Davidson failed to appear about 8 o'clock this morning, his brother went to the former's room and found him lifeless in bed. It is believed that Davidson suffered the heart attack and expired immediately for none of the occupants heard any sounds indicating that Davidson was calling for assistance. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified of the death of Davidson and rendered a verdict of death from a heart attack.

In this letter I have only been able to mention a few of the 50 kinds of birds that spend the winter in northeastern United States. If you are interested in the subject, maybe I will write again about some of the others. Meanwhile I would like to hear from others on this subject.

Evelyn Burr: I am reading "Rambles in Colonial Byways," by Rufus R. Wilson. Think you would enjoy it.

THE FRIENDLY VOICE.

USES FOR KEROSENE.

Social Corner Members: Dear Mother Preston is a party just after my own heart. I think I should have to stop my work a great many times if it wasn't for kerosene. While it is not my middle name, it certainly helps to execute the prize winning performance. I wash my clothes by just dipping the bar of soap in a pail of kerosene. I have it setting in the tubs by the side of the pail and it is really wonderful how the dirt vanishes, just like dew before the sun. Kerosene will drive out ants, take snuff, powdered cloves, mustard mixed with kerosene and it will drive them so fast that you are never troubled with them again. To disinfect a bed when the unwelcome guests arrive make a paste with soap and kerosene. Whiting powder mixed with kerosene is wonderful for cleaning silver. I have used kerosene to wipe off furniture when my polish had vanished. If the clock stops just put a few drops of kerosene on a piece of cotton, place in the bottom of the clock and nine times out of ten you will find your clock running in the morning. To remove chewing gum from children's clothing it is fine. It will dissolve the gum and you can wash it clean. Take the blue printing out of bags, soak it in kerosene. To oil your kitchen floor take one cup of kerosene, one cup linseed oil, one cup of turpentine, mix all together and rub into floor after it has been washed to perfection. When your shoe polish hardens put a bit of kerosene in it. A teaspoon of kerosene will keep your starch from sticking. Kerosene on a burn will take the fire out. Place a few drops of kerosene in the top notch of your umbrella, it will last quite some time. There are a great many more ways to use kerosene but I want to send in my recipe for veal loaf, which I think is excellent.

Veal loaf: Boil three pounds of veal until tender. Boil the liquor down to one cup and add an envelop of gelatine. A little sage salt and pepper to taste. Stir all together and turn into mold. This is fine for luncheon.

Mock Oyster Stew: Put one can of corn and one cup of celery through the meat grinder. Now put on to boil in one cup of water. Boil ten minutes, add one pint of milk, salt and pepper to taste and small piece of butter. Eat with oyster crackers.

Ann Tenna: You beat me making the Kitty Kats. I think you did fine. I am pleased that you liked them. I think they are too cute for words.

Prune Kernel Pudding: two cups prunes, one cup milk, stone prunes, take out kernels from the two cups of prunes, chop, lay down in a small pudding dish with one cup of the prunes—then cover with milk and let stand at least one hour. Then bake in a slow oven (it is wise to set the pudding in a pan of hot water as for custard) for about 3-4 of an hour. This is good hot or cold.

Peach Kernel Sponge: one cup of chopped peach kernels, one-half cup each of flour and sugar, one and one-half cups of milk, one table spoon butter, three eggs, one teaspoon of vanilla. Scald the milk; mix together flour and sugar, add the milk gradually, stirring until smooth and thick Cook over hot water for ten minutes, heat in butter and cool Add the egg-yolks well beaten, the dates and flavoring, and fold in the whites whipped stiff. Turn into a buttered baking dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake 30 minutes. Serve with hot lemon sauce.

I don't think the sister ever read any of my recipes in Dr. Chase's recipe book, although it is a fine book. My mother used it. Wishing you all a happy New Year.

CLUB NO. 1'S JANUARY MEETING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Readers: Many thanks for accepting me as one of you. It is just a little thrill, isn't it, to find your letters printed among the rest for the first few times? I attended Club No. 1's meeting at Willimantic Jan. 11 in Chamber of Commerce hall and surely enjoyed it. Everyone was so very cordial and it seemed so homelike. Betsey Bobbett and her helpers superintended the fine dinner that was served and made everyone welcome. The tables were prettily decorated and a pleasing entertainment was given by some of those present. A feature was the telling of embarrassing moments that had been experienced by different members. Some of them were very funny and were enjoyed when recited more than they must have been when experienced. Black-eyed Susie favored with piano selections.

Our next meeting will be held in the same hall Wednesday, Feb. 8, with Frances and myself as hostesses. We will try to entertain as well as Betsey Bobbett did and hope a large number will come and help us have a successful and enjoyable meeting.

With very best wishes to you all, I am

JUST JILL.

STARTING NEW YEAR RIGHT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines to kindly thank the editor for the yellow slip I received. It made a fine Christmas present for me. Then I took the dollar and made a second present out of it.

I thank Social Corner Member for the very pretty potted plant calendar that was sent me. It is very much appreciated.

Didn't Effie M. give us a fine time at the Christmas gathering of Club No. 1, and Betsy Bobbett did the same at our New Year's meeting. With a large crowd and a lot of fun going on, we started the New Year with a joyous time.

Mary France: I missed you very much and hope your cold is greatly improved.

Nema: Your letter you wrote me was much enjoyed, especially the way you ended it.

Neighbor Eveready: You are missed this winter, also the Southington Sisters.

Moving Pictures At Y. M. C. A.

At four o'clock Sunday afternoon the public, 14 and over, are invited to see the short and impressive moving picture feature titled, "Forgiveness."

This is a story of two debtors: one is a man though richly dressed lacks the money to settle his large obligations, and is greatly puzzled as to what to do. The king orders punishment, but upon the man's urgent pleading, finally relents and dismisses him. We next see a hut where a poor old woman is preparing a frugal meal. Her husband comes in tired and discouraged and while they are eating the forgiven debtor appears and mercilessly demands payment of the poor man's debt to him. The old man pleads vainly and his wife rushes to the neighbors for help but they arrive too late to prevent his being cast into prison for the debt.

As a result of the forgiven debtor's injustice, the king orders him before the court again and has him flogged and cast into the same old cell with the poor man he has wronged, and the poor man shows his fine spirit by an attempt to comfort him and to tend to his wounds. The picture is one of unusual impressiveness and carries a touching lesson. In addition to the above two interesting reels titled, "The Moonlight Sonata," and "Macbeth."

Between the reels Edward A. Prentice will give a brief and timely talk. Hugh Kinder will furnish appropriate music for the service. A free will offering will be taken.

Broadway Theater.

Tenement houses and streets, a luxurious apartment, fashionable cafes and a boxing arena provide the varied and picturesque locale for "The Sweet-Head," the feature photoplay selected for Sunday evening's entertainment at the Broadway theater. Featured in the cast are Ralph Graves, Eugenie Gilbert, Mary Carr, Mildred Harris, Johnnie Walker and Tom Dugan. Briefly the story concerns a young man who takes up prize-fighting in order to obtain money needed for an operation to cure his mother. With success comes a neglect of his duties and until he comes to his right senses again, there is not a dull moment in the whole picture.

In accordance with the policy established by the Broadway management, of bringing the best attractions available to Norwich, the show booked for Monday is absolutely and unqualifiedly a real big-time vaudeville bill. The headliners appearing on the program give promise of presenting a show that will be talked about for some time. "Aeronautics of 1928," with eight people and a truck-load of special scenery, present a trip around the world of song and dance. Princess Winona, a real American Indian, together with a company of five people entertain with bits of music, mirth and melody. Lester Irving Trio comes to the Broadway after a week's engagement at Keith's Palace theater in New York and offers a routine of gymnastics bound to please even those not caring for that form of entertainment. Smith and Boatner, two dark-clouds from Dixie are highly amusing with their southern dialect and comedy. Manning and Walsh are seen in a very funny comedy selection called "The Ups and Downs of Life."

The feature photoplay brings to the screen Jack Holt and Dorothy Revier in "The Warning." The story is woven around Los Angeles' Chinatown and is replete with mystery, thrills, action and boasts of a wonderful love story.

After seeing the show at the Broadway for the first three days of the week it can readily be seen why the Broadway is playing to capacity audiences at all times. The entertainment offered tells the story.

Palace Theater.

A lively night club with all its gayety and hilarity is the background of one of the important sequences in "The Romantic Age," the Columbia drama of modern youth which will be shown for the last time at the Palace theater today.

A particularly effective bit shows a police raid on the club, and the consequent lively haul in jazz hounds and flappers, as well as liquor.

Alberta Vaughn plays the feminine lead, a flapper who forswears her jazz companions and their heotic pleasures for the love of an older man, portrayed by Eugene O'Brien. Robert Florey wielded the megaphone.

Sandow, America's greatest police dog who appears in the co-feature "Avenging Fangs," has gained a host of admirers during the showing of this feature. Sandon is perhaps the most intelligent dog now working in pictures. He goes through his pace like a veteran trouper and no human actor can equal his amazing ability to express the various emotions.

Episode three of "Melting Millions" will be shown today and the Kiddies Frolic will be held at the matinee as usual.

Palace Theater.

Having been soldiers, sailors, firemen and aviators, all with hilarious results, Walter Beery and Raymond Hatton have become mountain climbers and Swiss yodelers.

In the new characterizations, in which they will be seen at the Palace theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, their antics are of the same laughable quality that endeared them to the public in "Behind the Front," "We're In the Navy Now," "Firemen, Save My Child," "Now We're in the Air."

As in the case of all good comedies, the plot is simple. Beery and Hatton are first seen as waiters in a Brooklyn restaurant, Beery as the head waiter and Hatton as the plain garden style of waiter. War reverses their situations. Beery is a private buck in the rear rank and a kitchen police and Hatton is a second lieutenant.

The war sequence opens at the armistice, with the soldiers rushing for home but Beery is left behind, detailed by Lieutenant Hatton to look after the future Mrs. Hatton. Beery looks after her by marrying her, after he has obtained a job as an Alpine guide and Swiss yodeler.

His yodel, which can hardly be registered by the lighter makes of yodel meters, wins him a lusty fame and distinction, but his bride wins him only grief and complications. There are snows ides, landslides, blizzards; everything peculiar to the Alps, including the innkeepers and the dogs that search out lost climbers with a keg of wine on their necks, is merrily kidded.

"Wife Savers" is a whirlwind comedy that accelerates from two to 50 laughs a minute in the first 100 feet. It should be seen by anyone strong enough to laugh constantly for approximately one hour.

Strand Theater.

For real genuine interesting entertainment, go to the Strand Sunday night and see Charles Chaplin's dramatic production, "A Woman of Paris," starring Edna Purviance. This is one of the real treats which are so often sought, but so rarely seen in pictures. This poignant drama of life carries one through a phase of Parisian life, following the career of Marie St. Clair as though one had known this interesting character oneself. In brief it is a story of a woman's heart, carrying with it the supreme problem of the ages, proving that humanity is not composed of heroes and villians, but of men and women, and all their passions both good and bad have been given them by God. Even to the end, which is utterly human—reasonable—the aftermath of a molten, passionate much-tried soul, "A Woman of Paris" gives a certain something for the spectator to take away from the theater, something big to think about. Chaplin has managed to express himself through other actors in a way that is remarkable. The cast includes Adalphe Menjou, Lydia Knott, Betty Morrisey and others.

Helen Holmes, the queen of the gleaming rails is now starring in another railroad melodrama, "The Train Wreckers." Miss Holmes plays the part of Helen Kingsley, daughter of the president of the Central railroad. She outwits a gang of crooks and with the aid of a passing "knight of the road" escapes in an automobile with some illegal contracts, thereby aiding the man she loves. Later she rescues her hero from an ice bin and the villian who caused him to fall into the refrigerator perishes in a train wreck and Helen and her lover are re-united, with the grinning "night of the road" also receiving a money reward.

GREENEVILLE

Mrs. Arthur Mathews will celebrate her 32nd birthday at her home 64 Tenth street on Saturday, January 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brady of Prospect street spent Thursday in Providence.

Mrs. William Mallon and Mrs. James Johnstone spent Friday in Willimantic the guest of Mrs. Johnstone's mother; also of Miss Eleanor Seward, who is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital.

The World Wide guild girls of the Third Baptist church held a very successful food sale at the store of William A. Maine of Central avenue on Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. The doughnuts, pies, cakes and cookies found ready purchasers and a goodly sum will be added to the treasury as a result. Mrs. Elmer Mulkin, guild instructress, was chairman of the affair and had as helpers, Miss Jennie Sebastian and Mrs. Bruce Blackstone. In February the guild is planning for a Valentine social with Miss Doris M. Lund and Miss Elinor M. Howard on the committee. The money received from these different affairs will be sent to the guild headquarters to be used for missionary purposes.

The Men's club of the Third Baptist church held its first meeting of the season in the chapel on Friday evening. It is hoped to build up a large men's society as the meetings continue on succeeding Friday evenings and to be a help socially to a large number of men in the community.

Mr. Albert Haydon of Margerie street, who fractured a rib in a fall downstairs about two weeks ago, is slowly recovering at his home.

Mrs. Mills has returned to her home on Sixth street after spending sometime in Danielson.

Mrs. Harry Conklin spent Friday in New London, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gadbois of Truman street.

Phillip Belliveau has returned to his home on North Main street after spending a few days with his uncle, Camille Belliveau of Somersville, Conn.

Many local young people attended the Academy football dance at the school Friday evening.

A good deal of excitement was caused in the village yesterday by the efforts of several men to bring to earth a cat, which had become treed on a large willow. The cat had been in the tree since early morning and for some unaccountable reason seemed unable to get down. As the tree is the abode of several tame squirrels, which are fed by the people in the neighborhood, many different methods were used in the attempts to extricate the cat from its high perch, but the rescuers finally decided that the cat would have to come down of its own accord. About half-past four Horace Woolley, a clerk in the nearby grocery store, procured a ladder and successfully brought down the cat to the ground. The poor thing evidently was suffering from the cold for the weather had become much colder during his stay in the air, but although rather stiff in his joints was able to "get away under its own power." The squirrels are now back in the tree and the villagers do not think that that cat will bother them any more.

Fred Ellis of Preston was a business caller in town Friday.

Miss Charolette Geer, a student at Miss Charlotte Geer, a student at the Willimantic State Normal school, is spending the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Geer of Prospect street.

A surprise party was held at the home of Jacob Goldblatt on North Main street Friday evening with twenty invited friends present. Singing and dancing were enjoyed by all. Music for dancing was furnished by means of radio and victrola selections. Refreshments were served during the evening. Among those present were Harold and David Goldstein, of Jewett City, John Walsh of Plainfield, Jacob Navick of New London and Harry Gilman of Colchester.

GRANTS DIVORCES IN TWO UNCONTESTED CASES

Two divorces were granted here Friday by Judge C. L. Avery in uncontested cases heard before him in the superior court.

Ida Robbins Peck, of Mystic, who married Eugene Peck, now of Willimantic, in New London on July 15, 1907, was granted a divorce from him on the ground of desertion since Sept. 3, 1923.

Also on the grounds of desertion, Mary Baca Belcher, of Preston, was granted a divorce from James H. Belcher, formerly of Norwich, now of parts unknown. They were married June 8, 1918, and she alleged desertion on Jan. 1, 1920. Mrs. Belcher is an employe of the Norwich State hospital and testified that she and her husband separated when she found out after the marriage that her husband had been previously married and had five children.

Decision was reserved in the following cases heard by Judge Avery:

Ruth Robinson Bishop, of Waterford, against William G. Bishop, former sailor, now of parts unknown. The couple were married Nov. 1, 1923, and desertion was claimed from July, 1924.

Frances A. B. Dupont against Noah Dupont, both of North Stonington. They were married Dec. 14, 1923, and desertion was claimed by the plaintiff from 1922.

Rose A. Cook, of this city, against Blair F. Cook, whose whereabouts are unknown. Intolerable cruelty was alleged from a date shortly after they were married on March 1, 1925.

Mary Esty Benefield, of New London, against Joseph B. Benefield, former Coast Guard sailor. Desertion was claimed from December, 1924 and the couple were married on July 2, 1921.

Ella Bryant, of New London, against Jesse Bryant, also of that city, who is now serving a year's jail sentence for aggravated assault. The couple were married Sept. 22, 1923, and intolerable cruelty was alleged by the plaintiff to have been practiced by her husband almost continually from a date soon after the marriage. Both are colored. Bryant, crazed with liquor or drugs, ran amuck with a loaded revolver on Hill street several weeks ago and nearly shot Patrolman George McCaskey. In the superior court a week ago, he was sentenced.

BACK TO JAIL TO SERVE ANOTHER SENTENCE

Robert McGee, formerly of this city, who was released from the New London jail Thursday, is back in jail to serve another sentence. He completed a six months sentence in New London Thursday and Friday started another sentence of 10 days.

McGee was presented in the city court Friday morning and pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of $10 from Mrs. Rose Chioda, at her store, No. 43 North Main street, August 2nd last. The original charge against McGee in the local court was assault and robbery but as Mrs. Chioda demurred to testifying against him the charge of theft was substituted.

McGee took the money from the cash register in the store. Mrs. Chioda claimed the amount taken was $15 but McGee stated that it was only $10. He denied striking Mrs. Chioda, claiming that all he did was to push her from the door when she attempted to lock it after he had taken the money. He was convicted in New London on a charge of stealing a watch from a bathhouse at Osprey beach.

PALESTINIAN PROGRAMME FOR JUNIOR HADASSAH

The Junior Chapter of Hadassah this week held a novel cultural meeting, which was known as a trip through Palestine. It was very cleverly conducted by Evelyn Moyel, cutural chairman, and Rivy Rosenberg. Invitations were sent out in the form of passports. Palestinian pictures were displayed about the room which made one feel as though he were in a Palestinian city. The chairman and her assistants read an interesting paper that described the cities and views of the country. A chorus of Hadassah girls sang Hebrew songs accompanied by Ettalea Jacobson. Palestinian fruits were served to the audience and an enjoyable evening was spent. The committee in charge was Evelyn Moyel, Rivy Rosenberg, Mildred Charron, Eva Hertz, Sarah Stamm and Leah Bloom.

CAN DEDUCT DAMAGE FROM INCOME TAXATION

A decision of prime importance to the 23,125,000 automobile owners throughout the United States has just been rendered by the U. S. board of tax appeals of the internal revenue bureau, and is being called to the attention of the motorists of the country by the American Motorists association through its national headquarters at Washington.

The effect of the decision is that if a motorist sustains damage to his automobile, as the result of an accident, he may deduct such losses in the computation of his income tax. This is true, under the decision, the association points out, whether the vehicle, at the time of the damage, is being used either for pleasure or business purposes.

The association pointed out, however, that the loss can only be deducted from the tax return in the event that the motorist is not compensated for his loss by insurance or otherwise. In figuring their 1927 returns the motorists are urged to bear the decision in mind.

SUFFERED ECZEMA THIRTY YEARS RABALM HEALED

"I have been a sufferer from eczema for over thirty years," says William Johnson, 6 Hodgkins Street, Gloucester, Mass., "and during that time have received treatment and tried many remedies without obtaining even a little temporary relief. A few months ago I was using Rabalm for neuritis with wonderful results, and discovered to my great astonishment that wherever Rabalm was applied, there was a marked improvement in my skin. The eczema irritation was relieved at once, as it had never been before, and ever since, I have not only been comfortable but all signs of the trouble have been gradually disappearing, to my great satisfaction."

Rabalm is the result of a scientific effort to find an effective remedy for eczema, to stop pain and itching, heal blisters and restore beauty to skin. A white, stainless, pleasant-smelling ointment, Rabalm will not stain clothing and has no disagreeable medicine-cabinet odor when used on the face. Two sizes, 50-cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists.

LABOR TO DEMAND BEER PLANKS IN PLATFORMS

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor will demand of both major political parties the inclusion of 2.75 beer in their campaign platform.

This announcement was made late today by President William Green after the executive council of the federation had heard the plea of the United Brewery workers presented by Joseph Overfeld.

The federation for several years has favored "real beer" as a step toward temperance, it was said, but this will be the first time that the demand has been framed in time for inclusion in the legislative program to be presented to the major parties during their election year conventions.

The Los Angeles convention last year went on record as favoring an amendment of the Volstead act.

DISMISSALS IN $1,000,000 BEER CONSPIRACY CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 20—(AP)—Charges of implication in the $1,000,000 Morton Grove beer conspiracy case were dismissed against six of the thirteen defendants by Judge James H. Wilkerson in federal district court here today.

Those against whom charges were dismissed included Thomas F. Walsh, president of the Gilt Edge Brewery company, John Kappman, brewmaster, and Oscar Gebbler, consulting brewmaster, all of Lawrence, Mass., the others were truck drivers.

The government closed its case with the introduction of samples of beer taken from the cars seized at Morton Grove in 1925. Those involved in the indictment included the Boston and Maine railroad where the shipment originated. The road, however, obtained a severance. Three former prohibition agents and four other men who are accused of stealing part of the beer after it was seized will be tried later.

U. S. DELEGATES OPEN TO FRANK DISCUSSION

HAVAN, Jan. 20—(AP)—The United States delegation to the Pan-American congress wil interpose no difficulties to an open and frank discussion of American policies in the Caribbean and in Latin America generally.

It was said authoritatively today that should other participating countries urge such a review the United States mission is quite ready to say to the assembled representatives of the 21 Latin-American republics that Washington feels there is nothing to hide, nothing to regret in this government's policy in that connection.

Although in reality the American delegation is not sharing itself in co-operating with other missions in all of the varied activities which the Pan-American congress covers very little of this is visible to the casual observer.

CRIMINAL ACTION OVER NEW YORK STATE CENSUS

Report Made to Gov. Smith Recommends Prosecution of Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp For Maladministration—Dr. Walter Laidlaw and Two Women and a Man Also Are Involved—Dr. Laidlaw, Who Brought Charges Against Mrs. Knapp, is Charged With "Lobbying"—The Census Cost $1,200,000—Mrs. Knapp is Dean of Women at Syracuse University and Was the First Woman Ever to Be Secretary of State in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 22—(AP)—Criminal action against Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, far maladministration of the last state census, Dr. Walter Laidlaw, who brought the charges against her, and two other women and a man engaged in the enumeration, is recommended in the report to Gov. Smith of Randall J. Le Boeuf.

Mrs. Knapp is dean of women at Syracuse university and was the first woman ever to be elected secretary of state in New York. It was as secretary of state that she had charge of the 1925 census.

The census cost $1,200,000 and Dr. Laidlaw charged that large sums of this money went to Mrs. Knapp's relatives and others who did no work commensurate with the pay they drew. After the charges were made Gov. Smith appointed Le Boeuf to investigate Mrs. Knapp's administration of the census, which was done at public hearings.

The Le Boeuf report, a document of 10,000 words, in speaking of Dr. Laidlaw, recommends that the attention of the grand jury be directed to the fact that he was interested in promoting legislation in which his corporation, the Cities Census Committee, had a vital interest. His acts, the report said, were "generally those of a lobbyist," but he did not register as a legislative agent as required by law.

The three against whom action is recommended besides Mrs. Knapp and Dr. Laidlaw are Mark Stern, deputy secretary of state under Mrs. Knapp, Anna A. Little, auditor in the secretary of state's office, and Julia M Ryan, chief clerk of the state civil service commission.

Investigation, the report states, indicated that Mrs. Knapp removed census records from her office when she retired, and that she placed upon the census payroll many persons who received substantial salaries but did no work for the state. Her action, Dr. Le Boeuf reports, "can not be explained away on the ground of incompetence, unfamiliarity with public office, or the result of bad advice."

"The giving away of state funds to persons she knew were not entitled tothem," the report states, "is not to be lightly regarded, but when those funds are traced to her own possession and used by her for payment of her own bills, there is but one recommendation to be made. To tolerate such acts because of consideration for Mrs. Knapp as the first elected state official of her sex would be repugnant to all principles of justice."

Action against Stern was asked on the ground that he prepared payrolls containing names of persons not working on the census; turned over to Mrs. Knapp checks in which she was especially interested, frequently cashed the checks with the knowledge that the indorsement was written by Mrs. Knapp and not by the payee, and turned the proceeds over to Mrs. Knapp.

Anna A. Little's prosecution asked on charges that she improperly charged expense accounts to the census fund, some of them being used for pleasure trips of her own, taken with Mrs. Knapp. Julia Ryan, the commissioner reported, signed the name of the civil service commissioner to payroll certificates of 149 individuals whose appointments had either been approved at lower salaries or had not been approved at all.

"It is recommended," the report stated, "that civil action against Mrs. Knapp, arising from her wrongful distribution of $197,000 of the census funds, be delayed pending the criminal proceedings recommended against her, if she is not compelled through fines in the latter proceedings to return to the state such portion of her wrongful expenditures as she is able to pay, then the attorney general should institute civil action against her."

Noting that Dr. Laidlaw had announced his intention of completing statistical tabulation based upon the census figures, Commissioner Le Boeuf said, "Dr. Laidlaw should be warned against printing and selling for the profit of his corporation any tabulations based upon the census. If this warning is ignored it should be brought to the attention of the district attorney.

"Mrs. Knapp's negligent and incompetent supervision during the entire period of scientific tabulation of statistical data based on the census figures," the report stated, "made valueless the half of that work which was finished. No confidence may be placed on its accuracy, although the actual enumeration of inhabitants was substantially correct."

tonight. It was known that a special committee of university trustees had been formed to consider her case, but further information was lacking pending a possible official announcement by Chancellor Charles Wesley Flint.

CATHOLIC PRIEST PRAISED PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Roman Catholics who attended the 11:30 service of St. Augustine's church here today heard an ordained Presbyterian minister praised by Rev. Father Joseph Ganley. Father Ganley, basing his sermon on Dr. Van Dyke's book "The Otherwise Man," declared that "although Henry Van Dyke is a Protestant minister, Catholics and all Christians can learn much from his book. It shows that Christ is found through works of charity and love towards our fellowmen." Father Ganley further said that Dr. Van Dyke was a man "who understands God and must be close to his heart." Rev. Dr. Van Dyke, who was ordained in 1879, is an author of note. He was professor of English at Princeton from 1900 to 1923.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Death during a pistol duel, which followed the first quarrel they ever had, today ended the life-long friendship of Joseph Di Caprio, 55, a car inspector, and Tony Gregorio, 46, a carpenter.

Joseph grew jealous recently when Tony went back to Italy and returned with a bride. The evenings they usually spent together became fewer.

Last night, Tony gave a party. Afterward he and Joseph quarreled, the first time, Joseph's son, Ralph, said, they ever had. They finished the argument with bullets and died early today of their wounds.

Tomorrow they will be buried together in a double funeral.

LIQUOR MANUFACTURER KILLED BY GAS EXPLOSION

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 22.—(AP)—A liquor manufacturer was killed at Farmington, near here, today when natural gas exploded as he struck a match upon entering a secret room constructed under a pig pen on his farm. Thomas Slatt, 38, was the man killed.

Authorities said they believed a hose, used to run gas into the plant, had become disconnected.

The blast was so strong that the concrete walls of the hidden chamber were blown to pieces, and fire which followed destroyed an adjoining barn, together with pigs and farm implements.

EFFORTS TO LOCATE MRS. KNAPP FAILED

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 22—(AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state will not be in this city, her home, when Commissioner Randall J. Leboeuf's report of his investigation of her administration of the 1926 state census is made public, according to all information available here.

It was reported that she had left the city by train at 10:16 o'clock this morning for Boston, and was due there at 7:25 tonight. All efforts to locate her today failed, and it was said at the house where she had been staying for the past six weeks that she had not been there for two nights. Occupants of the house told the Syracuse Post-Standard that she had gone to Massachusetts, where relatives live, and would not return here.

Possible action of the authorities of Syracuse university, where Mrs. Knapp has served for several years as dean of the college of home economics, toward seeking or obtaining her resignation, was clouded in doubt

FRENCH NOTE ON THE TREATY TO OUTLAW WARS

PARIS, Jan. 22.—(AP)—That aggressive wars alone can be condemned generally and beforehand by treaty is the position maintained and reaffirmed by the French government in its latest note to Washington concerning the suggestions recently made by Secretary Kellogg for a treaty to outlaw wars. The note is published in all Paris newspapers today with unanimously favorable comment.

The greater part of the note is devoted to a detailed explanation of why France considers her obligations as a member of the league of nations of such paramount importance as to make it impossible for her to enter into treaties that conflict with league policies granting the territorial integrity of members.

Inasmuch as this latest note is interpreted here as equally definite in its emphasis on the American destroyer to outlaw war without specifying aggressions and that the treaty signed by all the principal powers, many observers here feel that abandonment of the negotiations may result. The note however contains assurances that France welcomes any suggestions to the league with a general condemnation of all war. This action on the part of Foreign Minister Briand is regarded in other quarters more optimistically.

No reply is expected from Washington before the end of this week.

MISS GRACE POOLE, SHORT STORY WRITER, ASPHYXIATED

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A short story writer and a man she tried to aid financially by giving him evening work, died together from asphyxiation when the man accidentally broke a gas pipe, police said today after reconstructing the probable events of a double tragedy.

Others residents of the lower east side house in which Miss Grace Poole, short story writer, formerly of South Mountain, Pittsfield, Mass., liver, said that she had hired Wilhelm Fredericks to build some book-cases for her, because she sympathized with his inability to obtain steady employment as an architect.

The bodies of the two were found today in Miss Poole's apartment. Police believed that Fredericks, seized with an attack of vertigo as he worked late Saturday night on the book-cases, had grasped the lead gas pipe and pulled it loose in his fall. Miss Poole, in her own room, apparently had been overcome while trying to reach a window.

"WAR TALK" OF NAVAL OFFICERS "SHEER MADNESS"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Recent "war talk" of United States naval officers, coupled with their demands for a larger navy, prompted a statement by Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee today that such activity was "sheer madness."

Calling attention to the recent advocacy by Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, for virtually a billion dollar navy building program, and the declaration yesterday of Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, that the United States faced an early and "inevitable war" with its commercial competitors, the Idaho senator called upon the taxpayers to make themselves heard "before this mad policy becomes fixed."

Secretary Wilbur had no comment to make today on the Plunkett statement, nor would he indicate that he would have anything to say later. Senator Borah described such declarations as those of Hughes and Plunkett as "mischievous to the last degree."

Cosgrave Sound For National Capital

Irish Free State Party is Scheduled to Meet President Coolidge Today.

ABOARD THE MANHATTAN LIMITED, EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Fired with enthusiasm for Chicago, its mayor and its citizenry, but slightly fatigued after his 24 hour visit to the Illinois city, William T. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Free State, was travelling toward Washington tonight where he is to spend the next four days.

Mr. Cosgrave, his aide-de-campe, and three other members of the executive council of the Irish Free State, who landed in New York on Friday, are scheduled to meet President Coolidge tomorrow afternoon. The introductions will be made by T. A. Smiddy, Irish Free State minister to Washington, who is traveling with the party, which includes Lieut. Gen. Diarmuid O'Hegarty, secretary of the executive council; Desmond Fitzgerald, minister for defense; Joseph P. Walsh, secretary of the department of external affairs, and Colonel Joseph O'Reilly, aide-de-campe.

The party is due to arrive in Washington at 8:50 a. m. tomorrow. It left Chicago at 10:30 a. m. today.

"There is no city so libeled as Chicago," Mr. Cosgrave told an Associated Press correspondent aboard the train. "I never saw such order, such perfect control of traffic, such marvelous buildings and such cordial people. The Irish there are tip top Americans.

"You ask me about that libelled man, Big Bill Thompson. If I were not in the habit of discounting much, I would have thought before I came here that he was a tough and a roughneck. He is a kindly, big American, who is full of enthusiasm for his country and its history, is bubbling over with the idea of making Chicago the greatest of American cities by connecting it with the sea."

He paid tribute to Michael Faherty, president of the Chicago board of local improvements, at whose invitation Mr. Cosgrave's visit to the United States for the first time was largely due. Faherty, he said, is a typical Irish-American of the sort who have contributed much towards the upbuilding of the country. He said he was "very much pleased" with Faherty's speech at a dinner last night, tendered by the Irish Fellowship club of Chicago.

"Mr. Faherty's address was entirely unexpected and I am glad the American people have been told Ireland could arrange her own affairs."

After lunching in his private car, Mr. Cosgrave was ordered by Dr. John J. Killen of Chicago, his honorary physician for the American tour to retire for a nap.

"He has had almost no let-up since he landed in New York," Dr. Killen said, "and then he's been meeting so many people and shaking hands with them and you know how an Irishman grips when he shakes hands. But Mr. Cosgrave is in excellent condition."

Prior to boarding the train, Mr. Cosgrave and his party attended mass in one of the oldest Catholic churches in Chicago.

He was particularly pleased with the singing of Irish ballads, including the "Shamrock of Ireland" by the choir and the Irish atmosphere of the St. Patrick's church.

Before his call at the white house tomorrow, Mr. Cosgrave will attend a private luncheon to be given by Col. William Donovan of the "Fighting 69th" regiment, New York National Guard. Tomorrow evening, the Irish Free State leader will dine with Vincent Massey, Canadian minister to Washington. On Friday and Saturday, the visitors will be in Philadelphia. Their itinerary calls for their departure for Ottawa, Canada, next Sunday. Members of the party said they might visit Atlantic City next Sunday morning.

WASHINGTON PREPARING TO ENTERTAIN COSGRAVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP)—Elaborate preparations are under way here for the entertainment of William T. Cosgrave, president of the executive council of the Irish Free State, who is expected to arrive from Chicago tomorrow for a four-day visit. The program includes a luncheon at the white house with President and Mrs. Coolidge and a number of dinners and receptions at various legations and embassies.

President Cosgrave will be the dinner guest of Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan tomorrow and President Coolidge will receive the visitor at the white house at 5 o'clock. In the evening, the Canadian minister, Vincent Massey, will give a dinner in his honor.

Fire Destroyed a Block in Union City

Twelve Families, Including 50 Children, Were Forced to Flee.

NAUGATUCK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Fire which broke out shortly after 3 o'clock this morning destroyed the Union City post office and a block containing 12 stores and 12 tenements in the center of the village. The damage is said to be in the neighborhood of $100,000 only partially covered by insurance. The 12 families, including 20 children, were forced to flee from the building into the severe cold only scantily attired. The fire is said to have started in the rear of a dry goods store conducted by Frank Wisinski.

For four hours the Naugatuck fire department under the direction of Chief Timothy Fitzgerald fought the blaze. Chief H. Heltman, of the Waterbury fire department and company from that city arrived shortly after the fire started and assisted until the blaze was under control about 7 o'clock.

Patrolman John Cullinane, while making his rounds discovered the fire and turned in the alarm. He then went through the building which is owned by John Linsky and awakened the sleeping tenants and assisted them to safety. The fire spread rapidly and a general alarms was turned in and aid sought fromy Waterbury. Because of a $16,000 fire at the residence of Joseph Martone on Tracy avenue in Waterbury only one company from the Brass city could respond.

The Linsky block was completely demolished by the fire which soon spread to the building in Union street owned by Adam Zapatka. Only the walls remained standing in this building when the fire was extinguished. Soon after the flames started a number of explosions, some of them loud and others muffled, were heard. Some were of the opinion that these were from stills while others said that it sounded more like burning of cans of varnish and paints in a paint store fire.

The burning embers from the fire were carried by the wind a considerable distance some of them landing on the roof of St. Hedwig's church, the Polish Roman Catholic church on Golden Hill street. The exterior of the church nearest the fire was badly singed but the damage is not great.

Postmaster Walter E. Brown, of Naugatuck, was among the first to reach the scene. He stated that the loss of mail matter is not known but is not expected to be great. All of the mail in the office with the exception of three pieces of parcel post is kept in an 800 pound safe. The safe today was removed from the ruins in the cellar.

THREE HIGHWAYMEN HELD IN BONDS OF $5,000 EACH

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 22—(AP)—Three men identified by Walter Strylewski, of Ansonia, as the trio who on the night of December 28, held him up in a lonely section of Allingtown and robbed him of $140 in cash, a good watch and chain and a check, are being held here in bonds of $5,000 each for a hearing Saturday.

The men, who gave their names as Louis Irena, of Hartford; Gilianti Tancrede and Salvatore Girgenti, of Utica, N. Y., were among seven picked up by police here last week. The others, also held in $5,000 bonds are Marion Hobbs, Bennie Colonna and Yero Carmelo, of New York city and Charles Falcone, of Utica, N. Y.

Strylewski said he was positive of his identification of Girgenti because the latter is cross-eyed; of Irena because he is pock-marked, and of Tancrede because he is exceptionally short in stature.

LATIN-AMERICAN DELEGATES APPROVE DECLARATIONS MADE BY G. F. HUGHES

HAVANA, Jan. 22—(AP)—Widespread approval from Latin-American delegates to the sixth Pan-American conference was expressed today in response to declarations by Charles Evans Hughes, head of the United States delegation, of American policy toward Latin-American countries, as outlined in a speech last night before the American chamber of commerce of Cuba.

Dr. Carlos Cuadra Pazos, president of the Nicaraguan delegation, said, "Mr. Hughes' declarations of last night vindicate the widely denounced policies of the Nicaraguan government and ought to convince our critics of the justice o fthe United States' efforts to establish peace in Nicaragua."

Dr. Pazos believes Mr. Hughes did not enunciate any new policy of the United States government, as, he believes, the same frank admission of fact has marked all its recent dealings in Nicaragua and Haiti, where no action has been taken without the invitation of the people of both parties. He believes the United States will act in Nicaragua just as it did in Santo Domingo, and those who have sought to inflame Latin America against the republic of the north can now find no further base for their attacks.

"Mr. Hughes' address clarifies an unfortunate misinterpretation prevalent in America and elsewhere. He squarely faces the issues as they exist and, without reservation, defines not only the attitude of his government but also the convictions he himself espouses. Such clear pronouncements are certain to find sympathetic response from all fair-minded peoples," Dr. Pazos said.

Fernando Denies, chief of the Haitian delegation, expressed full accord with the views of Mr. Hughes, wherein he finds the keynote of the spirit and practice of the Pan-American union. He especially endorsed guarantees by the United States of "Domination by none and equality for all nations of the Western Hemisphere."

From Mexico comes enthusiastic endorsement of the delineation of American policy. Dr. Julio Garciar, head of Mexico's contingent, expressed full accord with Mr. Hughes' remarks. "In no part can his speech be criticised," he said. "In it one finds equality and justice for all nations. We know Mr. Hughes not only for his astuteness, but for his fairness."

Apparently mention of Nicaragua elicited no surprise from the Mexicans. Dr. Garcia stated that "Nicaragua is a well known problem and one that is in the process of solution."

Dr. Jacobo Varela, Urugayan minister in Washington and chief of his country's delegation here, acclaimed the Hughes' speech as "the true explanation of the United States' intentions in Latin America."

From Raul Fernandez, leader of the imposing Brazilian representation, only the highest notes of praise were heard.

SENATE MAY INVESTIGATE NICARAGUAN SITUATION

Both Republican and Democratic Leaders Are Dissatisfied With Views Expressed by President Coolidge at Pan-American Conference—Senator Borah Has Announced That It is Probable Some Action Will Be Taken This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The truce between the administration and the senate on the Nicaraguan question is definitely at an end now that President Coolidge has outlined before the Pan-American conference at Havana his views as to relationships between the republics of the western hemisphere.

Both republican and democratic leaders said today that while the chief executive and Secretary Kellogg were visiting the conference there had been a mutual understanding that the senate would do nothing to embarrass the administration, but they declared that what they believe was the failure of the president to outline a real Latin-American policy made it desirable for the senate to act.

The precise manner in which the senate is to move on this question is for the future to determine as there are several schools of thought on the subject. There are those, largely republican independents, who want a thorough-going investigation into the whole Nicaraguan situation with a view to speedy withdrawal of American marines.

Naturally, the administration senators want to let the matter rest as it is, but this does not meet with the view of Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, and ever the more conservative of the democratic leaders. They want an inquiry that may assist in the outlining of a policy.

Senator Borah said today that it was his own view that a senate investigation should be with the purpose of working out "something constructive and something helpful to a better understanding with the Central American countries."

The foreign relations committee chairman said the facts were already pretty well known, but such democratic leaders and members of that committee as Swanson, of Virginia, and Pittman, of Nevada, hold that before the committee can formulate any helpful plan it must ascertain the precise nature of the understandings and agreements which the administration has entered into with the Nicaraguan leaders.

The whole subject is to come before the foreign relations committee at its regular meeting next Wednesday at which time the Wheeler, Heflin and other relations touching upon the Nicaraguan situation are to be discussed. If the committee is authorized to go forward with an inquiry it undoubtedly will invite Secretary Kellogg and other state department officials before it.

Chairman Borah today outlined his views as to what the committee should do in this formal statement to The Associated Press:

"It is probable that some action will be taken during this week relative to the resolutions for an investigation into the affairs of Nicaragua now before the foreign relations committee. The committee has not formulated its program and I am unable to state therefore the extent and scope of the investigation.

"I am of the opinion, however, that the committee will enter upon their investigation with the view of trying to work out something constructive and something helpful to a better understanding with the Central American countries. We know already pretty well what the facts are and the question is what if anything can be done to insure a better relationship and a more harmonious co-operation in the future and what if anything the senate can contribute to this program.

"The congress is the war-making power and is necessarily interested in all matters that relate to the use of the army and navy. The committee does not desire to investigate merely to embarrass but it does not desire to shirk its duty in the premises."

SUBJECTS TO COME UP IN CONGRESS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22— (AP) — Straightening away on the real work of the session, congress this week will furnish a greater profusion of acts than a four-ring circus.

Religion, Al Smith, Nicaragua, disfranchisement of the Negro in the south, the Teapot Dome oil scandal, and the S-4 disaster are among the subjects which will supply the fuel for senate debate and committee hearings.

While the house is devoting itself almost exclusively to the drab task of perfecting and passing the independent offices and war department appropriation bills, its committees will furnish some lively proceedings with attacks on the administration's flood control tariff questions, and a decision by the military committee as to what should be done with Muscle Shoals.

The senate tomorrow is all set for one of its real-old-fashioned field days. Heflin, of Alabama has given notice that he will "take the hide off," the mayor of Montgomery, Ala., for his attack upon the senator in his telegram inviting the democratic senate leader, Robinson, of Arkansas, to visit the Alabama capital, and make a speech on religious tolerance.

BRANCH OF THE FASCISTI LEAGUE IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 22—(AP)—Fascism made its official debut in Bridgeport today when 200 local Italians attended the inaugural banquet of "La Sezione Fascista of Bridgeport" at the Seven Gables Inn today. Principles of fascism were discussed by Dr. F. Macaluso, secretary-general of the Fascisti League of North America and other disciples of fascism in America. Those present cheered and applauded whenever the name of Benito Mussolini was mentioned by any speaker.

Dr. Macaluso declared that two types of Italians came to America from the native land; one type to remain here and become permanent residents and citizens, and the other type which came here temporarily with the thought of some day returning to the native land. He asserted that the Fascisti league was for both groups, and that while it directed its members to be good Italians and American citizens, it also wanted to assimilate those Italians who intended to return home with the present government and social system in Italy.

Since the local chapter was organized five weeks ago it already has 70 sworn members.

The other speakers included Harold Lord Varney, managing director of the Italian Historical society of New York city, Alfred W. Burdick, Bridgeport city clerk and Vice Consul Chevalier Pasquale De Cicco, of New Haven.

LINDBERGH SHOWS SIGNS OF GREAT NERVOUS STRAIN

CHRISTOBAL, Panama, Jan. 22—(AP)—America's favorite flyer is very nervous and "may crack under the strain" in the opinion Col. Arthur Fisher, commandant of France field, where Col. Lindbergh is now a guest.

On Lindbergh's vacation trip for a week's hunting and fishing in the mountains, Col. Fisher said the noted flyer was unable to sit still, read, or rest, like the other officers on the trip.

While Lindbergh was in Mexico City it was noted that on Christmas day, when left alone, he frequently picked up books in the library of Ambassador Morrow, as if to read them, only to put them down again shortly.

However, nervous though Lindbergh may be on the ground, he is all right in the air, according to Col. Fisher. The good will flyer is said to have expressed a wish to be allowed to do the flying on the trip and let some one double for him the social activities that are the lot of a popular ambassador of good will.

THREE CRITICALLY BURNED WHEN OIL CATCHES FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 22.—A flash, a flare of fire, an alarm and an ambulance was about the sequence of events that wrecked a home and put the three members of a family occupying it in the Day Kimball hospital late Saturday night. The badly burned persons who figured in the sad affair are Joseph Caron, a man about 50 years of age, his wife, Rose, and their daughter, Lillian, a child of 10.

The Caron family occupied an apartment on the second floor of the Joseph Dion house on Furnace street, the property formerly known as the Wetherell place.

About 10:30 Saturday night while the little girl was having a bath, her father refilled a glass bottle holding about three gallons that was part of the equipment of an oil-burner system that had been installed in the kitchen range. The bottle contained kerosene. In replacing it, with the outlet down so that it would drip the oil gradually into the burner, Mr. Caron, according to the accounts obtained by Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department and others in intimate with the affair, dropped the bottle on top of the hot stove, in which the burner was operating. The bottle broke and the mass of oil it contained instantly flashed into flame.

In no time the little apartment was a shambles. Groping about in the flame and the dense smoke, the flash having set the place afire, Mr. and Mrs. Caron, both badly burned, sought out their daughter. Injured and terrified as they were, they had difficulty in unlocking the door leading to the stairs that would let them down to the street, and by the time they did get out they were subjects for hospital treatment.

This afternoon Mr. Caron's condition was so serious as to cause doubt of his ability to recover from deep burns that cover his face, arms, chest and shoulders. Such a large area of bodily surface was burned as to make the possibility of his recovery doubtful. Mrs. Caron is burned about the face, hands, neck and chest and is pitifully hurt, but her chances of recovery are regarded as better than is held out for Mr. Caron. The little girl also has severe and extensive burns, her face and arms being involved.

An alarm was pulled in from Box 14 at the corner of Franklin and Furnace streets immediately after the accident. Firemen were quickly at the Caron house.

Dr. F. P. Todd, called to attend the injured, ordered them taken to the hospital, and the ambulance came for them from Putnam. All of them were suffering grievously. Firemen and others who saw them were filled with pity. With blackened faces and skin hanging from their arms and hands like cobwebs, groaning and suffering intensely, their agony left a great depression upon all who saw them.

No water was used by the firemen, who suffered a bit on their own account from the intense cold, the mercury being down to 10 above zero at the time the alarm came in and with a piercing wind making the winter night even more bitter than the low temperature alone could have done.

JAMES MORAN HAS HIS FACE BADLY SCALDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 22.—Another unusual accident just before Saturday midnight sent James Moran, night man at the Danielson garage, to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, with his face scalded and with a question as to whether his eyesight had been ruined.

Servicing a car that had just come in frozen up from Providence, Mr. Moran went into the basement of the garage and procured a quantity of boiling hot water, which he poured into the radiator. Having done this he was peering into the radiator through the cap opening when the driver of the machine started the motor. This put the water pump into action and it shot a stream of boiling water into Mr. Moran's face, scalding him and blinding him. He was given attention by Dr. F. P. Todd and then hurried to the hospital. This afternoon an eye specialist came from Worcester to make a particular examination of the injured eyes.

Relatives and friends from Danielson were at Plainfield Saturday morning to attend the funeral services for George Miller. Rev. John H. Landry was celebrant of the high mass of requiem at St. John's church, the funeral congregation being a large one. The bearers were Duffee Pechie, S. Beaulac, Anthony Audette, Charles Sney, John Dion and Dennis Charon. Burial was in St. John's cemetery, Rev. Fr. Landry conducting the committal service. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

All of last week's stories about budding rose bushes, dandellon blossoms, freshly grown green grass and robins being about had to be hurriedly placed in warm quarters Saturday to save them from freezing solid. Old Man Winter, probably tired of being kidded about not being on his job, swooped down on this section of southern New England with one of the real cold snaps of the season. The mercury went tumbling. The wind howled out of the west. At 6 o'clock Saturday night the thermometers were registering 10 degrees above zero in Danielson, and there they held until well into this forenoon. However, 10 above was about the coldest reliably reported in Danielson, though from nearby territory came tales of even zero weather. A swing of the wind into the south this afternoon brought a promise of more moderate weather for Monday.

There was some rather nifty dancing at the state armory Saturday evening, when, as a feature of one of its regular week-end dances, the Service battery staged a competative fox trot, and thereby added zest to the occasion. Of all those who came out to show the full assemblage how good they could dance Miss Anna Stoneki and Wilfred Auger, Putnam, were declared the best by the judges and were given an award, in gold. Second honors went to Miss Stella Saber, of Jewett City, dancing with Nicholas Cardello, of Providence.

Hopes of the ice men to get their annual harvest during February were heightened today. With 48 hours of real cold weather in the record at sunset tonight, ponds from which the ice is cut were frozen over and old Jack Frost was sticking right to his job of making it grow heavier. Twice before this winter in this vicinity, ice has formed to the thickness of about six inches, only to have prolonged spells of mild weather come along and melt it away again. It has been a discouraging season for the ice dealers, but they are pinning their faith on late January and February weather to give them sufficient cold to make the ice that about everyone will be calmoring for next summer, not to mention the all the year round demand from many customers.

Killingly will be represented this week at the union agricultural meetings to be held in Hartford by cattle, swine and sheep breeders, dairy, poultry and fruit men. The meetings are to begin Wednesday and will continue through Friday.

At Wauregan the Wauregan company is installing a quantity of new looms in the weaving department.

George O. Fredette, of New Bedford, returned to his home today after a visit with relatives in Danielson.

Announcement has been made of the marriage, on January 11, of Miss Ethel Avery Exley and Orville Baker, both of Brooklyn, where they are to make their home.

This afternoon, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord preached at a service at the Congregational church in South Killingly, his subject being the Human Law and the Higher Law.

The Tatapoochie Camp Fire girls have a meeting scheduled for Monday evening.

Thursday evening recently elected officers of Mary A. Livermore tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, are to be installed at their quarters in G. A. R. hall.

March 13 is announced as the date for the annual inspection of the officers and men of the Service battery and their equipment.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer, of Worcester, was a guest today of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carl Witter.

Members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the eWstfield Congregational church have a meeting scheduled for Wednesday afternoon.

Lulled into carelessness as the result of the weeks of spring-like weather, numbers of motorists paid the penalty of frozen radiators and damaged motors yesterday and today, when extreme cold weather prevailed.

Relatives from Danielson, were at Ekonk this afternoon to attend the funeral of Arthur Gallup, 21, who died as the result of an accidental gunshot wound and consequent loss of blood. It was a hunting accident.

Mrs. C. J Armstrong is to have the members of the Ladies' Prayer league at the Baptist parsonage for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The next step to be taken to collect overdue personal taxes in Killingly will involve summoning those who owe such money to court, and there are many such.

Reports covering the past year will be given Thursday evening when the Westfield Congregational church has its annual meeting, in conjunction with the monthly Church Family night.

Night work is being done at the Ballouville plant of Powdrell and Alexander, as also is the case at the two mills of the company in Danielson.

The season has continued to be so open as to permit of considerable work being done on the highways of Killingly, an unusual thing in January.

From Eastford comes the information that state officers from the Danielson barracks have been checking up as to the unauthorized taking of cord wood cut on a state forest reserve in that section

PUTNAM

COLD SNAP PRODUCES SKATING ON PUTNAM PONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 22—When the mercury took its quick drop on Saturday evening, it gave the outdoor sports the treat that they have been waiting for along time. The ice on Peery's pond froze to a good thickness and on Sunday many of Putnam's skaters were seen on their way to the rink for a bit of exercise on the skates. The cold wave also brought joy to the city ice companies, since yesterday was the first day that the water in the ponds passed from a liquid to a solid. The summer's supply of ice will now be cut before the robins are seen around on the lawns looking for their breakfast.

MISS DELIA RYAN, NORWICH NATIVE, DIES IN CHURCH AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 22—Miss Delia Ryan, about 70, died from heart disease today, for while attending mass at St. Joseph's church, she succumbed to that disease. So far as is known, Miss Ryan, who had been employed as a maid by Mr. and Mrs. George H. Palmer for many years, had been a valued employe of the Palmer family for 50 years. She left the Palmer residence on Pequot avenue about 10 o'clock to attend mass. She apparently was in sound health for she had not complained of feeling ill when she boarded a trolley car. A short time after she had been seated in a pew, men and women near Miss Ryan noticed her swoon and partially collapse. Several men went to Miss Ryan's assistance and carried her to the vestibule in an endeavor to revive her. Dr. George P. Cheney was summoned, but when the physician arrived at the church Miss Ryan had passed away. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified and pronounced death as due to chronic heart trouble. He ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment. Miss Ryan had been in the employ of the Palmer family since her present employer was a youth, and her efficiency and faithfulness highly appreciated, her death causing deep sorrow to the members of the household and her friends.

She was born in Norwich, a daughter of Michael and Bridget McNamara Ryan of Thamesville.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. J. H. Corcoran of Clairemont avenue, Norwich, Mrs. James Weston, of Illinois, a brother, Joseph F. Ryan, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. She also leaves several nieces and nephews.

MISSING NORWICH CAR WAS FOUND ABANDONED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 22.—John Rydel, 159 Hickory street, Norwich, drove an automobile owned by Adella Postrawski of the same address, to New London Saturday evening and went to Potter street where he parked it. He remained absent about three hours and when he returned the car was missing. He went to police headquarters and reported the theft, saying that the auto was a Velle sedan, 1923 model, painted blue and carried Connecticut registration, N-2721. The police of Norwich, Westerly, Hartford, Middletown and New Haven as well as the state police at Groton and Centerbrook were notified of the theft. While a lookout was being maintained for the stolen auto it was found abandoned shortly before midnight here, after the users of the car had concluded their ride.

Two New London stores are going out of business, one of them among the oldest established business houses in the city. The store of H. D. Barrows, Bacon block, State street, for over 30 years doing business on that street, closed its doors Friday night and Saturday it was announced that the stock had been sold to a Hartford man and would be disposed of at an administrator's sale. Mr. Barrows died about a year ago and since then the business had been conducted by Peter Fournier, a stockholder of the corporation. The other store to suspend business was the grocery store and meat market of Monroe Wallwork, Williams street. That store finished business Saturday night and it is understood, that a chain store will lease the building and shortly open a grocery business.

The New London police have been requested to institute a search for Helen Milewski, 16, formerly of Johnston avenue, Jersey City, who is missing from home and who has continued to keep her whereabouts a mystery to her mother. MARTIN SOCCER TEAM WINS SECOND GAME, BEATING COTTRELL TEAM, 3 TO 1

The J. B. Martins beat the Cortrell A. F. C. soccer team of Westerly Sunday afternoon at J. B. Martin park by 3 to 1.

The Taftville boys looked real impressive in winning from a much more experienced team. It was a well played game, both teams going at it hard all the way.

The Martins outplayed their opponents for the greater part of the team. The entire team worked well under pressure, they had the ball down in Westerly territory for more than half the time but they were a bit erratic when near the scoring station. Westerly's work, especially on shots was below par. It was reported that three substitutes were being used and probably that accounted in part of the visitors not showing the form that gained them three decisions over the Jewett City favorites this season.

Both teams scored in the first half. Westerly counted on a nice shot by Walker, the outside right while Taftville scored with Bjork making good on a penalty kick. Play during the half was fast with high-grade play in evidence throughout.

Things went along then in the second half with no score until nearly 30 minutes, or three-quarters of the period had gone. Then Taftville started another of her attacks on the Westerly goal with Pepin and Decelles working the ball nicely down the field. Hargreaves took a pass and booted one sharp and true for the score.

Hargreaves again scored about five minutes later with a riflelike thrust that eluded Milne at a corner.

A fair sized crowd turned out considering the cold weather.

For the Martins, Eccleston, Joubert, Hargreaves and Pepin all did well while Walker and Cameron were good for the losers.

Next week the Martins go to Jewett City for a return contest with the Jewett City Favorites and the following week they play the Ledyard team.

The summary:

Milne	Murphy
goal
right back
Paul	Gley
left back
Williams	Seidel
center half
Blight	Eccleston
Graves	Joubert
left half
Walker	Hargreaves outer right
Houston	Pepin
inner right
Cameron	Decelles center
Gibson	Krauss
inner left
outer left

Scoring—Bjork (penalty shot), Hargreaves (2), Walker. Referee Addison. Linesmen Laycock and Douglas. Time 40 minute halves.

SOCCER NOTES

The crowd at J. B. Martins game Sunday was smaller than the preceding week but the quality of play was better.

A league would go a great way toward promoting the sport in this section.

A week from next Sunday the Martins play home again meeting the Ledyard eleven and that should be a treat for local fans.

A real hard-fought battle ought to be in evidence at Jewett City next Sunday when the Martins and Favorites meet for the second time.

Westerly presented a slightly shifted lineup yesterday because of the absence of three men.

Eddie Murphy is doing a nice job at goal for the Martins. But one shot has eluded him in the two games.

Johnny Joubert seems to be a hard worker for the Taftville club.

CORNELL TOPS EASTERN COLLEGES IN BASKETBALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)— Cornell hoopsters directed the eastern intercollegiate basketball array today with two games won and none lost in what has shown signs of becoming a freakish campaign.

The Princeton quintet, which was runner up to Dartmouth in the championship last season, has matched Yale's slump by taking a double setback.

After being victor over the Penn Five twice last winter, the Tiger was finally cornered in his lair by a crippled Quaker machine furnishing one of the week's upsets. Dartmouth added to the woes of the jungle-towners by whipping Princeton by 36 to 20 Saturday night.

Although the Columbia team triumphed over Yale by a narrow margin, the New Yorkers took a severe lacing at Ithaca in the week end tussle by 36 to 21.

The conquests by Columbia and Penn have given each member of the eastern wheel at least one victory.

Fodder, Yale center, continued to lead the individual scorers with a present total of 35 points but he is being hard pressed by Layton, Cornell forward, and Heep, Dartmouth center, both of whom are tied for second honors with 30.

The standing of the teams is as follows.

Cornell	2	0	65	45
Dartmouth	3	1	85	78
Yale	2	2	97	96
Penn	1	1	47	47
Princeton	1	2	94	84
Columbia	1	3	89	127

SOCCER LEAGUE MAY BE FORMED IN EASTERN CONN.

Formation of a soccer league for eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island now seems a certainty. Although no definite steps have been taken as yet it is planned to get together soon. Several games have been played in eastern Connecticut this season and the sport now seems to be coming back after remaining dormant for some time.

The new league will probably be composed of the Jewett City Favorites, Cottrells and Bradfords, of Westerly, R. I., J. B. Martins and teams from Danielson, Plainfield, or Ledyard.

Whether this league will operate this season it is not known.

No More Dog Races.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Lack of attendance at dog races, due, track officials said, to lack of betting, has brought the announcement that last night's card would complete the meeting of the St. Petersburg Kennel club this year.

From an opening crowd of 2,000, attendance dropped to about 150 last night.

During the meeting, officers found no indications that book makers were operating.

WINDHAM NOSES OUT SOUTH MANCHESTER QUINTET

Breaking an undefinable spell, Windham did the seemingly impossible on the Manchester basketball court Friday night and defeated the Silktown high school by one point, the final score being 19 to 18. That one point, however, was enough to give the team, the rooters, in fact the entire school, the biggest thrill ever furnished by athletics. Through fast playing and some strategy which reflected the coaching of Coach Thomas A. Callaghan, Windham struck Manchester's vulnerable spot which had remained a mystery for years. Windham's victory came as an especially exciting climax, as the locals had to overcome a three point lead within the last three minutes of play. Mingled in a banner crowd of about 1,000 were about 400 Windhamites and when the final whistle blew on the great victory it was the signal for an uproar and cheer that neared pandemonium. Captain Eddie Nichols, high scorer of the game, and his team were swept from the floor and sported about on the shoulders of the rooters.

Manchester went through the acid test game with five players; Kittel, the fast Boggini brothers, Keeney and Dowd, while Windham used its regulars; M. Heller, Captain Nichols, Saba, Monast and Tinker and one substitution, the small but mighty "Artie" Meikle, who is the most recent of his tribe to carry on the traditions of athletic supremacy.

As a send off to a lucky day the Windham High school girls defeated the Williams Memorial girls of New London on the local floor Friday afternoon by a score of 37 to 27, thereby making full atonement for a defeat suffered in New London when the teams first met. The flashy Windham forward, Grace Palmer, accounted for 33 of the 37 points, scoring 15 goals from the floor and three foul baskets.

DELANEY SAYS TUNNEY IS NEXT AFTER HEENEY

NEW LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, retired light heavyweight champion, will accept only a match with Gene Tunney if he defeats Tom Heeney, of Australia on March 1, according to Joe Jacobs, manager of the Bridgeport sharpshooter. Jacobs declared this morning before returning to New York after a visit here that he will turn down any proposal by Tex Rickard to match Delaney with the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Johnny Risko bout.

Delaney would have nothing to gain by defeating either Sharkey or Risko, Jacobs said. Heeney fought a draw with Sharkey and holds a decision over Risko.

Delaney and Jacobs stopped over here last night on their return from Boston where the Bridgeporter stopped Jack Humbeck, Belgian champion, Friday night. While here they attended the coast guard boxing show as guests of Commander H. D. Hinckley, superintendent of the Coast Guard academy, and Thomas E. Donohue, president of the National Boxing association, and athletic commissioner of Connecticut. President Donohue said that the National Boxing association will endorse Delaney as the logical contender for the heavyweight title if he defeats Heeney.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED AT RECS-TAFTVILLE GAME

A packed house is looked for when the Taftville Crescents line up against the Manchester Recs Tuesday evening at Parish hall. The Crescents in this team, have their strongest opponent on the home floor to date this season.

The Recs only last week banded together for this season but their work in past seasons need not be commented upon. On their lineup will be Roy Norris, last year with the Plainfield Pros, Hap Madden, with the Pros at the present time, Balsleper, Mantell Farr and Faulkner. The last three players appeared here earlier in the season with All-Manchester and administered the only defeat this season to the Crescents on their home court. Balsleper, the other member of the team, is a former Manchester High star, and is well known on the court throughout Conn.

The Crescents will present the lineup that walked all over the Lawrence Felting CCo. last week, namely, Mondi Normandin and Brown at the forwards with Roland Harris at center and Capt. Eccleston and Jim Murphy in the back court. Gauthier and Coleman will be held in reserve.

PITTSBURGH FIVE HAS PILED UP SCORE OF 445

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22. —(AP)—The University of Pittsburgh basketball team, which has piled up a total of 445 points so far this season in defeating leading eastern and mid-western quintets, has hopes of leading the country in collegiate scoring honors. Pitt's opponents have scored 282 points.

Thirteen games remain on the schedule, including tilts with Army, Colgate, West Virginia, Notre Dame, Penn State and Washington & Jefferson.

MANDELL WILL DEFEND TITLE FOR MULLEN

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP)—A promise to sign for a lightweight championship match as soon as the opponent is selected was made today by Eddie Kane, manager of Sammy Mandell, to Promoter Jim Mullen.

"Mullen has been working on a list of contenders for some time," Kane said, "and I gave him my word we would sign with him as soon as he reached terms with a worth-while opponent. As far as I know, no date has been set, as neither boxer is signed up yet. Mullen may have in mind putting on the bout on February 26."

Kane has no further comment to make on the warning given by the National Boxing association, that Mandell must sign to defend his crown quickly or be suspended, except to say that, since promoters had made him no offers, he went out and hunted up a promoter himself.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—With two first basemen in their hands the Washington Senators may shift George Sisler to the outfield for the coming American league campaign and keep Joe Judge on the initial sack.

At the time he made the purchase of Sisler from the Browns, Bucky Harris, youthful pilot of the Senators, had in mind the possibility of using the erstwhile St. Louis star in the outer defense.

If Tris Speaker is allowed to go elsewhere, as now seems likely, there will be an even stronger argument in favor of trying Sisler in the outfield. Goose Goslin is a fixture in left field but Sam Rice isn't getting any young and Ganzel, promising Southern association recruit, may not be able to continue the fast pace he struck up at the close of last season.

At first base Judge is considered a better defensive man than Sisler who has never been as sure on ground balls or low throws as he was before stricken by eye trouble five years ago.

Sisler has had considerable outfield experience although he became a fixture at first base ten years ago. In his first three years with the Browns, 1915 to 1917 "Peerless George" divided his time between the pitching box, outfield and first base.

Speaking of outfields, Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, an odd collection of talent—a regular trio that bats from the right hand side and another set in reserve that takes a southpaw stance at the plate.

When he was pilot of the Louisville club McCarthy had a reversible collection of outfielders of this sort but he isn't likely to try the same experiment with the Cubs for the reason that the right-handed batters happen to be Riggs Stephenson, Hack Wilson and Kiki Cuyler. These three are regulars, under most and all circumstances.

Of McCarthy's left-handed batters Earl Webb, a real slugger, is the most likely to break into the line-up. The two other, Joe Kelly and Cliff Heathcote, are reserve ballast.

All the Boston Braves, troubles aren't over, now that they have acquired Rogers Hornsby as the infield keystone. Eddie Farrell, the short-stopping dentist, who also went to the Hub from New York, is understood to have joined the ranks of players holding out for bigger and better salaries this season.

With the high-priced Hornsby to pair with around the middle bag Farrell evidently feels his services will be of much greater value to the Braves than otherwise.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The C. F. C. start their weekly home games tonight in meeting the Nuggets from Noank. Next week they intend to have the Hartford Central Baptists as the opposition at the Y.

The C. F. C. are looking for games with fast teams hereabouts.

The Taftville Crescents ought to get plenty of trouble tomorrow night in the Manchester Recs. The Crescents have won three and lost three to date but their percentage ought to get some kind of a big shaking up this week with three games scheduled.

The Taftville Whirlwinds, the speedy little five that plays prelims to the Crescents' games will hook up with the New Britain Phantoms in the near future at Taftville. The Whirlwinds are putting up some good games and they ought to be able to give the Hardware City crew, state champs in the junior class, a real go.

The Hartford Knights of Lithuania pulled a novelty stunt Saturday night. First the squad went to Torrington where they stacked up against All-Torrington. The first stringers went in and played the first half out. They then left for Collinsville where they had a regularly scheduled game in the Farmington Valley league with Collinsville Town team. The first team played all the way here and won by 52 to 38. In the Torrington game the firsts were behind by four points when they left but during the second half the "seconds" overcame this lead and won by two points. Sort of killing two birds with one rock, as it were.

It looks like good games all around eastern Connecticut this week. All of the home clubs appear to have strong teams booked.

ACADEMY LOSES TO WILBY HIGH QUINTET IN ONE-SIDED GAME

Wilby high of Waterbury gave the Academy a convincing beating Saturday night at the Y gym by the score of 31 to 13. The visitors had an advantage and the lead nearly all the way, leading by 14 to 4 at the half.

However, funny as it may seem, the Academy showed better Saturday night than they have all season. They were opposed by one of the first-line clubs of the state and that Wilby would win was the consensus of opinion before game time. Win they did, but at times the locals gave them all kinds of trouble.

However, the Red and White could not seem to hold an even tenor in their ways. They started off with some nice basketball, fell into the rut after about three minutes and stayed there until the second quarter, when for most of the time they battled Wilby even.

They kept up their play of the second quarter for a time in the third period only to again go under and let the Waterbury club pile up their one-sided score. In the last period Wilby used subs and the Academy was still in a slump for the subs played on even terms with them for the last four or five minutes.

Jarvis Plays Well

Lloyd Jarvis, with only three days of practice, came onto the floor and furnished the best game of the evening for the locals. His dribbling and cutting gave Wilby a lot of trouble during the evening until Lloyd was ejected on four personal fouls. He ought to be a big help later on. Les Pingree, again led the locals in scoring, with six points but he was not the Les of the other three games. Although he outscored his three rivals, still he seemed to be experiencing an "off" night, especially in the shooting line.

For Wilby Capt. Duster Murphy was much of their offense. He sank ten points, four field goals and two fouls and most of his baskets were on spectacular shots.

The Academy had the lead only once and then only for about 30 seconds. Buck LaCroix sank a foul in the first minute of the game but Murphy threw in one from half the length of the floor to send Wilby ahead for keeps soon after. Wilby ran up six more points before Jim Kelly threw in one from midcourt to put the score at the end of the first quarter at 8 to 4.

The Academy came back in the second quarter and gave Wilby some real stiff going for awhile before slipping a bit towards the close of the period and letting her into six more points at the half. The Academy missed plenty of chances to score, especially in the closing moments while Wilby converted the majority of her opportunities.

Les Pingree missed three foul tries during the period which would have brought the locals up to within a point of the Brass City quintet.

Wilby made a runaway of it after the first moments of the third period, leading at its conclusion by 25 to 6. Jim Kelly scored the only Norwich points with a long field goal.

In the last period the Academy outscored the opposition by a point, 7 to 6, but too much damage had been done in the third quarter, especially.

The Academy has no regularly scheduled game for this week but an effort is being made to bring the New London Bulkeley Independents here Saturday night.

Y Loses to Emeralds

In the preliminaries the Y made it an All-Norwich "off" day by losing to the New London Emeralds 37 to 29 and in a Senior church league game the Central Baptists won from the Gamma club of the Greek Orthodox church.

The Emeralds looked mighty strong in beating the locals although the Y was handicapped without Roland Harris. Edmond at right forward for the winners led the scorers while Griffin, also of the Emeralds and Yerrington were next best with 10 points.

Providence Beats New Bedford.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 22.—(AP)—A hard kick by Eddie McGuire that snapped the ball past Goalie Blair, of New Bedford, in the first of two overtime periods, gave Providence a 2 to 1 victory over New Bedford in a first round Lewis cup soccer match here this afternoon.

The victory gives Providence a one goal advantage in the first round play, the game between the two teams at New Bedford Saturday having stood at 1 to 0 for New Bedford, when after 59 minutes of play the referee ended the game on the ground that the pitch was dangerous.

Uranie Wins Grand Prix

PARIS, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Grand Prix D'Amerique, a blue ribbon fixture of the trotting session, worth 150,000 francs, was won today by Uranie, eight-year-old mare, from a field of eleven starters including some of the best trotters in France.

The winner negotiated the 2,500 meters in three minutes, 33 1-5 seconds over an extremely slow rain-soaked track. Ulysse was second and Tienneval third. Even money was placed on Uranie.

Despite bad weather 50,000 attended.

ILLINOIS A. C. BELIEVES PELZER WILL COMPETE

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—(AP)—Officials of the Illinois Athletic club's annual indoor track meet today expressed confidence that the foreign committee of the A. A. U. would approve by a four to two vote, the entrance of Dr. Otto Pelzer, world's champion middle distance runner from Germany, in the handicap meet here Feb. 10. A meeting has been proposed for tomorrow in New York of the four eastern members of the committee by Daniel J. Ferris, secretary and treasurer of the A. A. U. and a member of the foreign committee. If Dr. Pelzer's entry is assured, the I. A. C. will match the half mile champion against Ray Conger and Johnny Sittig at 1,000 metres, in the Chicago Riding academy.

JIMMY QUINN WILL BE MATCHED AGAINST DEVINE AT PUTNAM

If Harry Devine, claimant of the New England amateur featherweight title, can make the weight he will in all probability be pitted against Jimmy Quinn of this city at the amateur bouts in Putnam on Friday night. Devine was finalist when Bat Battalino won the national title and since Battalino's desertion of the amateurs Devine claims the New England title. A victory for Quinn over Devine would secure for the local boy recognition as a contender at the national amateurs which are held annually in Boston.

Other local boys who will appear at Putnam are Frankie Adams, who will meet Grenier, Al Kozisi, Johnny Kop and Eddie Busch. The majority of these boys are working out at the Pastime A. C.

FELDMAN NOW HEADS STATE LEAGUE SCORERS

WATERBURY, Jan. 22. —(AP)— George "Kisky" Feldman, of the Bristol Endees, heads the individual scorers of the Connecticut State Basketball league for the first week of the second half season, with 19 points according to the official records released today by Secretary O'Donnell. Feldman, who played with Hartford in the first half race celebrated his return to the Bell City quintet by scoring 14 points against Waterbury, Saturday night and added five more today in the second game of the series with the Tabs.

Carrington, Waterbury's star shooter, trails Feldman with 14 points while Crowley, of Bristol is in third place. Herm Cohen, who topped the scorers in the first half season has seven points for the one game his team the New Haven Atlas played in the first week.

New Britain and New Haven won their opening games, Meriden and Hartford being the victims.

NABHOLTZ WINS EL PASO OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

EL PASO Tex., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Larry Nabholtz, unattached professional from Cleveland, Ohio, came from behind to win the second El Paso open tournament here this afternoon. He nosed out MacDonald Smith, of Great Neo, N. Y., by a single stroke, sinking a 12-foot putt on the 18th hole for a total of 293 for the 72 holes.

Smith also came from behind to get second money, forging ahead of Bill Burke, of New York, and Al Espinosa, of Chicago. Nabholtz won $1,000 and smith $700.

Four players who shot 295 tied for third place—Bill Burke, Al Espinosa, "Wee Willie" Martin, of Los Angeles, and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of Chicago—divided the $800 offered as third, fourth, fifth and sixth places.

NEW HAVEN EAGLES NOSE OUT BOSTON TIGERS

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The New Haven Eagles defeated the Boston Tigers 5 to 4 tonight in a Canadian-American Hockey league game here, marked by the expulsion from the ice of Coutou, defense man for New Haven, who was given his third major penalty in the league.

George Redding, of the Boston team was carried off the ice unconscious when struck over the head by Coutou's hockey stick. A fist fight followed when a Boston player mixed with Coutou who police chased from the ice. Several stitches were required to close the wound in Redding's head.

The Eagles outplayed the Tigers up to the last period when the Tigers rallied to score three points.

BRUINS LOSE TIGHT GAME TO COUGARS

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins, leaders in the American section of the National Professional Hockey league, went down to defeat before the driving onslaught of the Detroit Cougars, 3 to 2, in a hard fought game that went into two overtime periods for decision here tonight.

George Hay, Cougar star wing man, scored the winning goal. Johnny Shepherd and Frank Foyston netted the other Detroit goals.

Hitchman and Galbraith scored for the Bruins.

Centrals Win Preliminary.

The Central Baptist church won a fast game from the Greek church in a church league game, the score being 27 to 19. The game was full of thrills and exciting moments. Both teams played exceptionally clean and fast. McCrum was the high scorer of the night with 14 points while Economus was a close second with 10 points. This makes one lost and one won for the Centrals while the Greeks can boast of the same percentage.

C. F. C. vs. Noank Tonight

The C. F. C. meets an old rival in the Noank Nuggets tonight at the Y gym in the first of their weekly home clashes. This club should give the locals a lot of competition for they have been running up quite a rep in the southeastern part of the state. Last year they won from the C. F. C.

The locals will lineup with Brown and Capt. Lambert at the forwards with Neil at center and Moberg and Ludlow at guards. A Senior church league game will furnish the preliminary.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Two Plays Under Duwell Auspices.

"Meet the Wife," "Hell Bent For Heaven." What does it all mean? Every where, one is confronted with these odd expressions. On automobiles, in store windows, by the roadside, in the newspapers, wherever you look its the same thing. "Meet the Wife," "Hell Bent For Heaven." Evehy thing must come out, so must this secret. These two puzzling expressions are the titles of the plays to be presented at the Palace theatre, Thursday and Friday nights, Jan. 26-27, by the Phidelah Rice Players, under the auspices of the Duwell A. A.

Well, we are acquainted with the Duwell club, but who might the Phidelah Rice Players be? The Rice Players are a group of noted players, each a graduate of the Yale Dramatic school, organized to present the best plays for the people, not of a single city, but of the state. For the past three years they have been producing a series of the leading plays with remarkable success. The Phidelah Rice Players take their name from the founder, Mr. Rice, dean of the Leland Powers school of "The Spoken Word," Boston. Mr. Rice has been with this organization since it was founded and has selected all the plays with the purpose of bringing the outstanding comedy and dramatic successes of each season.

Never before having played a city of the size of Norwich, their coming here is being made possible only through the efforts of Miss Grace Benjamin of this city, who has won distinction throughout the east as a concert manager, having made bookings for some of the world's leading artists.

Coming direct from Boston, the Rice Players will open here on Thursday night with the production, "Meet the Wife," a hilarious comedy in three acts. A great Broadway success, said to be one of the funniest of farces ever written, "Meet the Wife," as presented by the Rice Players will make the Norwich theater-goers want to return to the Palace Friday night to see "Hell Bent For Heaven." This play is a strong drama, full of humor, depicting the life and feuds of the Carolina mountain people, won the Pulitzer prize in 1925, running for two seasons in New York.

For further information regarding the Duwell's first venture into the show game watch the papers.

The sale of seats starts at the Palace theater box office this (Monday) morning. Reserved seats 75 cents and $1, general admission 50 cents.

All the prospective clubs are in Illinois except Hannibal, in Missouri and Keokuk, Iowa.

The new circuit is to be a class D league with a $2,000 salary limit, a five rookie rule and 13 player limit.

Scholastic clashes during the week slow up a bit as the mid-year examinations near.

Durglass Rewards Backers

NICE, France, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Durglass, four-year-old son of Durbar, winner of the Epsom derby, provided a profitable holiday for British visitors to the Riviera by winning the grand prix at Nive five to two.

Money wagers by tourists from across the English Channel forced the odds down from an opening of ten to one. The winner is owned by Arthur Veil Picard and was ridden by Frank Romain.

JEWETT CITY

HEALTH OFFICER'S REPORT HAS VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 22—The report of Health Officer G. H. Jennings is of interest, as it appears in the borough report.

There were 11 cases of lobar pneumonia reported, a much larger number than usual, one case of bronchial pneumonia, four cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, four cases of scarlet fever, three cases of whooping cough, two cases measles, one case cerebro-spinal meningitis, one case gonorrhea, two cases mumps and six cases chicken pox.

Expenses for control of communicable diseases $33, nuisances $9, dumps $6, all other unclassified $15.40, total $63.40.

Few wells are in use. Several reported unsafe have been abandoned. The use of reservoir water is almost universal. Samples of this water have been sent to the state laboratories and found safe for domestic use. Inspection of the reservoir is satisfactory. The unusual amount of rains have kept the reservoir nearly full.

As stated in the town report—strong effort is being made by the state board of health and the dairy commissioner to improve the milk supply in Connecticut. This state has been the dumping ground of other states of tuberculous cattle. Of the cattle tested 40 per cent, nearly one-half, had tuberculosis. Children may acquire tuberculosis, and often do by using milk from infected cattle. To reach this condition of better milk three things have been proposed to have all milk dealers licensed, to have all herds tests for tuberculosis or to have the milk pasteurized. Two public meetings were held to consider this question; the town officers and borough officers and most of the milk dealers were present. A representative of the state board of health and the dairy commissioner addressed the meeting. No definite action has been taken." About 1,000 quarts of milk are daily sold, of this about 33 per cent is from credited herds or is pasteurized.

No clinics held in the borough. The small attendance for the last year did not warrant their continuance. Suspected cases are taken to the Norwich clinics. Three corporations have each a trained nurse in their employ. Two confine their work to the mill hospital, one besides the hospital work visits the families of employes when sick. The district nurse has been continued under the same conditions. A committee appointed by the town is in charge. The expenses for this nurse are met by the Metropolitan and John Hancock Life Insurance companies, the Red Cross chapter and the town. The two nurses have made over 5,000 visits to the sick during the year.

The percentage of school children in the borough protected by vaccination is about the same, 33 per cent. The number protected from diphtheria by the toxin-antitoxin treatment is slightly larger. Two small a number to take advantage of the remedies furnished free by the state to become immune from two dangerous diseases, small pox and diphtheria.

The present dumps are about filled. It is doubtful if they can be used the coming year. A new site should be secured as soon as possible.

Very special business will be transacted at K. of C. tonight.—Adv.

The death of little Anna Connell, 4, on Saturday, has brought great grief to the family and many friends. She was the daughter of William and the late Florence Jackson Connell, and was born in Greeneville, December 4, 1923. Her mother died at her birth. When she was two weeks old, her aunt, Mrs. William Raill brought her to her home here. She has been the pet of the family and neighborhood. She never knew the lack of a mother's care and love for no greater devotion could have been given her. During her illness of three weeks, caused by an infected mouth, two graduate nurses were in constant attendance. She leaves her father, a brother William, and sister Florence, the last named being a student in the Baltic Academy of the Holy Family, her home being with her aunt, Miss Nellie Connell of this place. Another aunt, Mrs. Emelien Dufresne and her uncle Edward Connell live in Jewett City. William Jackson of Norwich Town and Arthur Jackson of Greeneville are uncles of the little girl and Mrs. Walter Field, of this place is a great-aunt.

Finn's tonight The Gorilla, with Charley Murray. Leach's orchestra.—Adv.

The annual meeting of the Jewett City Cemetery association was held Friday evening at the home of Arthur M. Brown. The directors re-elected were: A. M. Brown, A. R. Young, G. H. Prior, J. E. Phillips, F. I. Ray, F. C. Whiting, E. E. Gilbert. The officers reelected were: J. E. Phillips, president; vice president, E. E. Gilbert; secretary and treasurer, A. M. Brown; G. H. Prior and R. J. Guy auditors. F. I. Ray was re-elected superintendent. It was voted to enlarge the receiving vault. There is in the working fund a balance of $1,383.59. The premanent fund which was increased by a bequest of $5,000 by the will of David Hale Fanning, is now $14,450.94.

The borough election comes today, Jan. 23, the polls opening this afternoon.

The Fire company established a record Saturday for answering alarms. Three of these were still alarms. At 11:30 a. m. ten gallons of chemical were used to extinguish a chimney fire in the tenement in the Blancnard block on North Main street, occupied by F. D. Eccleston. At two p. m., the same amount of chemical was used for a chimney fire at the home of Charles Sweetser, in Lisbon. At 6.45 p. m., sparks issuing from the Rioux block chimney on Main and Soule streets, caused a report and investigation.

At 7:20 p. m., a whistle alarm called the men to the Jewett City hotel barn. Fire had started in three places on the roof and the grass about the barn was afire, probably started by sparks from a chimney. Foreman Boucher had three hundred feet of hose laid, but no water was turned on.

It was reported Sunday that the fence guards on both sides of the road just beyond E. B. Cheney's home in Lisbon had been knocked down by the erratic actions of an automobile, sometime during the night. At Branch Hill, the same crazy wriggle ended its career. The machine, a Maxwell touring car, had a broken windshield and head lights, the front jammed, blood plentifully bespattering the whole affair. No one was seen around the machine. At noon Sunday, a Buick wrecking machine came and towed the wreck away—not to Jewett City. The matter was not reported in this vicinity, it is said.

MR. HUGHES AT HAVANA

As a member of the United States delegation to the Pan-American conference at Havana, it was expected that sooner or later that Charles E. Hughes would be heard from in a manner which would be expressive of the attitude of this country.

Except to evidence the intention of this country to continue its display of good will to the republics of South and Central America there has been no opportunity for him to be heard as yet in the conference itself. He has nevertheless addressed the American chamber of commerce at Havana and on that occasion he made the most of the opportunity to set forth the aims of this country in general and the objects of certain moves in particular.

When he declared, "It is the firm policy of the United States to respect the territorial integrity of American republics. We have no policy of aggression," he set forth what has been repeatedly stated but the statement came at a time when it carried added significance, for at the same time he pointed out that it is also our policy "to encourage stability in the interest of independence."

The United States is anxious that these republics should be independent but in order to assure that they should have a stable government and conditions which should go hand in hand with an independent government. They should have the strength to stand by themselves and maintain themselves without the danger of being swallowed by some power which has a policy of aggression or which is forced to adopt one because of uncontrollable weaknesses on the part of republics which cannot control themselves.

With no designs upon any neighbor, with the desire to help when and wherever it is necessary, the United States has gotten little thanks for its costly efforts in many instances. Nevertheless it is convinced that there is justification for its altruistic endeavors in behalf of independence and peace and good will will continue to be manifested in the firm belief that it will eventually result through cooperation in stronger and more prosperous republics. Mr. Hughes simply but pointedly set forth in a comprehensive manner the policy of this country.

GENERAL GOETHALS

During the days when the Panama canal was under construction and in those years immediately after, the name of George W. Goethals held a commanding place among the engineers of this country and the world. Through the masterly direction of that gigantic task, one which had been undertaken by others without success, a waterway across the isthmus was accomplished.

General Goethals was called in to handle that job at a critical time. President Roosevelt well measured his ability and the utmost confidence was placed in the engineer who had gained a reputation in this line of work. It was the greatest thing of its kind ever attempted and while there were others who rendered invaluable service, the credit cannot be denied General Goethals for the results obtained.

There were not only great engineering problems to be solved, even to the alteration of plans, the widening of the canal and the locks but there was that bigger problem of fighting disease in that region. General Goethals when forced to deal with it picked a successful fighter in the person of General Gorgas whose work as chief sanitary officer was of the greatest value. Not only was the Canal Zone cleaned up but it was made a livable place, and that was a big factor in accomplishing the completion of the canal.

As an army official the canal job was the crowning feature of General Goethals' career, though he was a valuable instructor and engineer in other government work and gave valuable service to the government, not only during the war, but following his retirement from the army was an engineer whose advice on large projects was freely sought, one of particular prominence having been the Holland tube under the Hudson river. The name of Goethals will however be indefeasibly connected with the Panama canal.

CONNECTICUT APPLES

Everyone is familiar with the claim as to what "an apple a day" will do. It at least has served to center a greater amount of interest about the apple, and for that reason the apple producers ought to be happy. It has furnished publicity for their business which could not be beat. But have they made the most of it.

The executive secretary of Apples for Health, Inc., in a statement before a body of horticulturists, set forth that the public is not eating as many apples as formerly. This he attributes to the growers and he lays the trouble to lack of advertising.

It is attributed to judges at fruit shows that each state produces apples that will stand the test with those grown elsewhere. That is, of course, where the best of a state's fruit should be expected to be found, but it is an unfortunate fact that such fruit is not obtainable by the fruit eaters. The effort to get good fruit at a price within the reach of the average pocketbook is by no means an easy one.

There were the days when a reasonably large supply of the so-called native fruit, not grown for any particular market, was to be had. It could always be said that it was to be had in a larger amount than could be sold. Then came the days when those who made a specialty of fruit growing entered the market. They boosted interest and sales through advertising until it has gotten so that such varieties are about the only ones that are marketed. Quite a search has to be made for native apples, or Connecticut apples, and yet if we believe the fruit judges, or do a little investigating for ourselves and make comparisons, Connecticut is able to produce apples that will please the palate and make the eaters wonder why more of them are not to be found in the market.

Such apples will speak for themselves if they get the chance, but they lack the opportunity in most instances. Such apples would be demanded if it were known that they could be had, but they are not advertised and they do not get the marketing attention that do those from some other sections. In the meantime business that Connecticut needs, should have and could get goes elsewhere.

HIGHWAY BEAUTIFICATION

When that conference opens in Waterbury next month for the purpose of considering the beautification of Connecticut highways, there is certain to be assembled individuals and representatives of organizations who are much interested in attaining such a goal. When that conference gets underway there is bound to be a large number of people throughout the state who will be interested in the deliberations and such action as may result.

Connecticut highways are being used as they were never used before. Greater numbers are traveling over them and the mileage of state roads is being increased each year. There are those who use the roads solely as a matter of business. How much attention they give to the scenery is a question. But there is a large proportion of the road users who are mindful of the attractiveness or the unattractiveness of what they are passing and if there should be a census of views that is little question as to which would be preferred.

There's certainty that the detrimental, and in some instances dangerous, effects of the signboards along the highways is deplored. In the scheme of betterment with the elimination of curves and grades many trees have to be removed. These are sacrifices in the name of progress, but the possibility of replacement is not to be lost sight of, even though it requires time. The sooner such replanting can be started the quicker the desired results will be obtained.

It is not to be expected that such work will hold up or make impossible needed highway extensions, but wherever something can be done to increase the attractiveness of the state's highways there is certain to be a development of interest and a stronger appeal made to that large army of tourists which gives heed to such things and which grows larger each year.

We have good reason to give heed to the appearance of our highways, but as has long been demonstrated there is opportunity for individuals or towns to make valuable contributions in this respect separately or in cooperation with state efforts. This is particularly true of those highways which are much used but not yet under state control.

THE COSGRAVE VISIT

It was five years ago that the Irish Free State government was established. Since then it has continued to progress though with plenty of the trials and tribulations which always accompany such newness. Nevertheless it has made much headway and conditions are far better than they were.

Among other things it has sent a representative to the United States and this country has appointed a minister to the Free State and in view of the good relations existing between the two governments it is quite in keeping with the situation that President Cosgrave, the first head of the new government, should make a visit to this country as a call of courtesy.

The receptions which he has received since his arrival are only what were to be expected. He has made a great fight for his government and he has a host of friends in this country who are not only eager to welcome him on this side of the Atlantic, but who are anxious to hear the story which he has to tell of the last five years and also to learn of the hopes and plans which he has for the future of that state where there has been so much trouble and so much blood shed, and where even now all is not a bed of roses.

It is certain to be a visit of unusual importance for those who have kept in such close touch with the events which led up to the establishment of the Free State government and those who have as closely followed developments since that time, although President Cosgrave fully understood long before this that all of his friends were not located on the other side of the ocean.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

When cleaning a stove rub soap under the finger nails to protect them from the blacking.

Bizarre pillows add a touch of individuality to the living room.

When using the telephone during a thunderstorm avoid touching any other metal object.

Beets and carrots will keep all winter if buried in sand.

A cotton tea towel will last longer than one of all linen, but it will not dry the dishes as quickly.

Use celery leaves for seasoning.

If the kitchen table is too low have it set on blocks of wood hollowed out to fit the legs.

Empty the carpent sweeper on a damp newspaper to prevent the dust from scattering.

Wax the bottoms of your rockers and they will not make marks on the hardwood floors.

Those spots on the light felt hat will usually disappear if rubbed gently with fine emery pa er.

A piece of rubber tubing over the ends of the sink faucets is a great protection against chipping pieces from glasses and dishes.

When a wallpaper needs patching, tear the paper irregularly and apply; the edges will be less noticeable than if the paper is cut with the scissors.

To prevent new pie dishes, etc., from cracking, put them in cold water, bring to the boil and leave them in this water till cold. They can then be taken safely into wear.

Never bang the oven door when cakes are being baked; cold draughts always prevent a cake rising properly.

The extra expense of covering the shelves of kitchen cupboards with white oilcloth, instead of paper, is always worth while, as they are so easily kept clean.

If a chimney is damp a fire will not burn readily. When this is the case roll up a piece of newspaper lightly, light it and allow it to burn as it goes up the chimney, just as the fire is lighted.

IN THE BRIDE'S KITCHEN.

If you are just accumulating your kitchen utensils, take a tip from an old housekeeper. There is no pot for pot roasting like the iron Dutch oven of your grandmother's time. It has an iron lid that fits snugly and retains the savoriness of the meat you are cooking as no other kettle does.

AN UNTIDY APPEARANCE.

Have a rack for your kitchen towels and don't have them drying on the backs of chairs in between meals. The cellar-way or kitchen shed is a nice out-of-the-way place to locate the rack, and still is handy.

TO KEEP IT SOFT.

After using a chamois, it should be carefully washed in warm soapy water, pressed carefully on a flat surface to dry. Do not hang it in the air or place it on a radiator, as this will make the skin hard and dry.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A glass of milk before retiring is soothing to tired nerves.

If you have difficulty in remembering to take medicine, set your alarm clock each time for the next dose.

Hold a piece of ice in your mouth for a few minutes before taking nasty-tasting medicine. It will take away a lot of that bitterness.

Hands tending naturally to dryness should be regularly treated with some nutritive cream, while the color can be much improved by suitable preparations, rubbed in after the final rinsing and before the drying. Red hands benefit considerably by gentle massage. Apply some cream or oil to make the working fingers slip easily, then begin well above the wrist, rubbing the flesh firmly until it glows.

The commonest scalp trouble among both men and women is dandruff. The scalp is always throwing off these little flakes of skin and if they are not removed they soon make a thick crust that shuts off the free circulation of air from the scalp. This condition is not only unsightly, but it destroys the health of the hair and invites infection.

AVOID TIGHT ELASTICS.

Do not use tight elastics for legbands on children's rompers or bloomers. If the legs are short and not too full, they can be finished with cloth bands or straight hems that do not restrict circulation. If the full type of leg is used, a knitted leg band may take the place of the elastic band.

DAINTY BISCUITS.

Try cutting out biscuits in very small rounds, then brushing the top of half of them with a little rich milk and placing the rest on top of these to bake. When cooked these dainty biscuits are attractive in shape and easy to open and butter. Serve them for afternoon tea, or with salad at an evening party.

USE THERMOMETER.

Use a thermometer in rib roast of beef and avoid guess work. The thermometer is thrust into the thickest part of the rib roast. Beef is rare between 130 and 150 degrees Fahrenheit, medium between 150 and 170 degrees, and well-done at about 180. Take the meat from the oven at once when the desired degree is reached.

EXTENSION CORD.

An electric extension cord is useful in so many ways. It is most helpful to attach to the vacuum cleaner and save loosening and changing from one outlet to another.

By attaching the long cord to a fixture near the head of the stairs, you can clean several rooms without changing the cord. You will find it useful too, to keep that water pipe from freezing that goes under the porch floor. Extend a light bulb to lie against the right angle bend in the pipe on cold nights.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Paris evening gowns, afternoon frocks and capes repeat the emphasis laid on fringe, laces and gold embroidery for trimmings.

New tea-time frocks, of more than a little formal dignity, employ black lace for yokes and kerchiefs in true Spanish manner.

A jade green-black sharkskin in two tones combines effectively with matched kidskin for an oblong pouch purse. It's clasp is marcasite.

Party frocks for little girls are delightful when made of pale blue crepe dechine embroidered upon the front with tiny windmills and Dutch figures in white silk.

Daytime dresses employ the swathed hip-line to emphasize the boleros they affect. A midnight blue satin one has its bolero edged in cut steel in intricate design.

Evening gowns with the bodice portion of lace or heavily beaded chiffon and the bottom tiers of tulle, or other contrasting material, give a two-piece frock effect.

The garment that consists of brassiere and corset combined may be a thing of beauty if it is made of lace over heavy net and reinforced over the hips by heavy silk webbing.

Close in the wake of silver fox has come a vogue for badger for the trimming of fall and winter coats. This fur, with its sprinkling of gray forms a most attractive trimming for garments.

Quite the newest things in town are coasts and dresses made of natural color kasha, which have a stunning design printed upon them in brown. These coats and dresses are meant for southern wear.

Skating sets for little girls, consisting of cap and muffler made of knitted wool, are gay with all-over design of multi-colored wools.

For the girl who has time to wear them, they are delightful, these afternoon frocks of lace, chiffon or a combination of the two. The tight hipline and irregular hemline do much to make them very becoming.

CLOTHES FOR SPORTS.

When it comes to skating, skiing and tobogganing, caps are the ideal headgear, but the ones which will be worn this winter are unlike any caps known to man or woman previously. One helmet for tobogganing is of knit wool in jagged lightning pattern in blue on white. It has a huge pompom at the top and leaves only the mouth, nose and eyes exposed. Another cap is of black velvet and looks exactly like the caps worn by locomotive firemen.

TWEED FOR SPORTS.

A suit of black and white tweed is the perfect costume for sports wear, particularly when it consists of a plain short coat and skirt, with a hip-length cape to wear when the wind is high. The cape fits snugly over the shoulders and has a band of squirrel around the neck and down both sides to the hem.

LAPEL FLOWER REAL.

The demand for change which is omnipresent in American life has given new profits to the florist. The boutonnieres worn on the new coats now are composed of real flowers. For months and years the real blossoms have been less popular than the artificial ones, but the urge for change has brought back the real to displace the artificial.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Always go over the curtain edges with a hot iron after removing them from the stretchers. They will look much more finished with all the pin marks pressed out.

If light colored hosiery is stained from black shoes, put a little borax in the water. It removes stain and makes washing easy.

To remove cocoa or chocolate stains, soak in cold borax water before washing in tepid suds and drying in the sun.

Wash baby's angora bonnet in warm water to which soap flakes have been added. Rinse in clear water the same temperature. Ring bonnet out in a turkish towel, shake well, pull into shape and hang by the corners to which the bonnet strings are sewed.

Stains from chocolate or cocoa are composed of fat, resinous coloring matter, fibrous material, starch, sugar, and sometimes milk solids. None of these stains are set by hot water, so if the material is washable, soap and hot water compose the only treatment necessary. Wood alcohol made alkaline with ammonia also is effective. If the fabric is not washable, grease solvents such as wood carbon tetra-chloride, benzene, and others, will dissolve the fatty part of the stain, and the remainder can be removed by hydrogen peroxide.

FRESH TEA.

Before making tea, empty the tea kettle and fill with fresh cold water. Previously boiled water will never give the nice flavor that freshly boiled water will give to tea.

A LARGE ENVELOPE.

The businesslike housewife has a large folder in which bills are put upon their receipt. Then they are always paid in time to prevent unpleasantness, because they are never mislaid and forgotten.

WHEN TO ECONOMIZE

Use only the yolks of eggs when making custards. The whites do not improve the custard and can be utilized for other purposes. This does not apply when making custards for invalids and people who need nourishment.

POWDER MARKS ON BLACK

Frequently around the necks of black silk dresses powder clings and makes ugly marks. Rubbing gently with a black silk stocking will frequently remove the powdry marks.

BEWARE OF MICE!

Do not leave any crumbs on the table cloth or napkins when they are placed in the hamper of soiled clothes as the mice might ruin them.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, who has been advanced to the foremost position in natural science in the United States, the secretaryship of the Smithsonian Institution, has been assistant secretary of the institution for the past ten years and has an international reputation in scientific circles. Dr. Abbot first joined the staff of the Smithsonian Institution in 1896 and in 1907 he succeeded the late Dr. Samuel P. Langley as director of the Smithsonian astrophysical observatory at Washington. In late years he has done much to advance our knowledge of the sun, especially on the subject of the amount and variability of the solar radiation, on which all animal and plant life on the earth depends. He has conducted several expeditions to study solar eclipses and has made frequent journeys abroad to confer with foreign scientists. Dr. Abbot is a native of New Hampshire.

YOUR HEALTH

AN EVER-PRESENT ENEMY.

By Charles H. Chetwood, M. D., New York—Member Gorgas Memorial.

The human family is menaced by an ever-present enemy in the form of disease. This enemy employs the very same methods of attack, of invasion, and of inflicting damage that any other enemy might be expected to employ. In making this illustration, the human body may be regarded as a citadel which is being attacked by an invading army. The enemy will enter the besieged precinct by whatever opening it finds, and having made an entry, unless proper measures for protection and counter-attack have been instituted, will get the better of the situation and inflict damage in proportion to the strength of the invasion and its dangerous character. The common ports of entry by which such an enemy can reach the citadel of the human body are through the air, by water, and by many ways from the ground. In other words, the germs of disease are breathed, swallowed, or inoculated into the blood. Some people make light of the danger of disease transmission from the implantation of germs, but one has only to review the splendid achievements of public health departments in preventing and checking epidemics—the great advantage in protection by vaccination, which has caused an increasing diminution in disease—to realize the magnitude of the scientific knowledge that has been acquired after many years of study.

There is today no such thing as an epidemic of smallpox. Vaccination so widely propagated has reduced the likelihood of an epidemic to a negligible possibility.

Typhoid fever is preventable by protection of the water supply, the isolation of germ carriers, and the employment of preventable vaccines.

Malaria can be prevented by getting rid of all the mosquitoes that carry the disease from man to man.

Some interesting statistics were published recently regarding the prevention of pneumonia. It is known that the contact infection is a rare one, yet the total number of cases throughout the country is not small and could be vaoided by proper measures of prevention.

The prevention of scarlet fever has recently been along the same lines as the prevention of diphtheria, which latter disease has been largely minimized through preventive measures in the form of immunization through the use of serum.

Measles is not generally regarded as a serious malady but, when it is realized that young children in institutions who are victims of this malady die of the complication of lung conditions, it becomes a matter of importance to meet this malady with measures of prevention in order to avert more serious consequences. Hence it has now become the custom in institutions to immunize young children, particularly, by the injection of a little of the blood serum from convalescents.

Other diseases could be mentioned here which have been partially or completely mastered through preventive methods. In the meantime science continues its relentless search for new preventive data. The year 1928 will probably see some interestin and vital developments, with the ever-present enemy of disease placed further on the defensive.

Stories That Recall Others

Another Way To Do It.

A minister preaching his Sunday morning sermon was aware that a large number of his congregation were not listening to his talk. During this hour the janitor stepped to the platform and said: "Dr. ——, the church is on fire."

Billy Mink Gives Up.

There always is a time to quit;
He's wise who recognizes it.
—Billy Mink

Shadow the Weasel was far too wise to do more than quarrel with his cousin, Billy Mink. He was far too wise to get into a fight with Billy. So after telling Billy what he thought of him and calling him a lot of bad names Shadow turned and bounded away through the Green Forest. Billy Mink at once resumed the following of the trail of Jumper the Hare. Almost at once his nose told him that Jumper must have been close by when he and Shadow the Weasel began to quarrel.

"He heard us and took to those long heels of his," muttered Billy Mink. "If that good-for-nothing little white cousin of mine hadn't got in the way I would have had Jumper by this time. My, how that fellow did travel out of here! Just look at the length of these jumps! Well, if he's as silly as most hares are he'll soon be running in a circle, and then he'll be my dinner."

But Billy soon found that Jumper wasn't silly. He wasn't running in circles. He was going straight away and he was going fast. Still Billy kept right on. He kept his little nose to the snow, and every time he came to the footprints of Jumper his nose was tickled with the scent of Jumper and he became more determined than ever that he would catch him. He ran easily, so as not to tire himself. He knew that if he kept on sooner or later he would be likely to catch up with Jumper.

At last Billy Mink came to a path deep in the snow. He paused on the edge of it and looked down. He knew whose path that was. He knew that it had been made by Lightfoot the Deer and his family. The footprints of Jumper the Hare ended right on the edge of it. Billy looked over on the other side, to see if there were any footprints there. There were none. Billy jumped down into the path. His nose told him at once that Jumper had gone along that path. Billy hurried a little faster. He came to a cross-path. His nose told him that Jumper had kept straight on. He came to where the path forked. Once more that trusty little nose of his guided him aright. And then, quite abruptly, he lost all scent of Jumper the Hare.

"He heard us and took to those long heels of his," muttered Billy Mink.

Billy Mink sat up and glared this way and that. His nose was filled with the scent of deer and deer scent was so strong that Billy could find no trace of Jumper the Hare. It was plain that Lightfoot the Deer and his family had come along after Jumper the Hare had been there. Billy had been taking it very easy until now. He hadn't hurried. But now he hurried. There were several little paths going in several directions. Billy ran a little way down each in turn. Nowhere could he find the scent of Jumper the Hare. But in two or three of the paths the deer scent was very strong.

Billy returned to the place where he had lost the scent of Jumper. There he sat up for a moment and snarled. Then he ran back along the path down which he had came, leaped out of it and disappeared in the Green Forest.

"I know when to quit," muttered Billy. "I guess I don't want any hare anyway. I'll go hunt for something easier to get. I don't see why those deer had to come along just when they did. Jumper is lucky, that is all I can say for him. Well, if I didn't have him now I can have him some other time. So that's that!"

"Let"

Genesis 1:3-24

A Message for the Year

I asked the Master for a message strong,
To bear me through the year, amid the throng
Of busy cares and, haply, weary days
When tired feet must press through thorny ways.
His answer swiftly came (I hear it yet);
One little word he gave me—only—"Let".

Again I asked him for a message sweet,
To stay my spirit, lest the moments fleet,
Should find me for the conflict unprepared,
When by the Enemy I should be snared:
Lest, patience failing, I should chafe and fret—
The Spirit whispered this word only—"Let."

I asked him for the power to will and do
His work; that all the long year through
I might be steadfast, loving, pure and strong
To do the right, nor flinch before the wrong.
Again the answer came (it thrills me yet),
Though but one word He gave me; only, "Let".

My heart responded, "Yes, Lord, I would 'let'
Thy will be done in me; nor chafe nor fret.
My being's door I would wide open throw
And 'let' Thee work, that Thou Thy power might show.
And oh, I pray that I may ne'er forget
The message brought me from this one word, 'Let.'"

Balsam Fir

The fir is nature's quietist.
She stands in meditation long
As if her tranquil silence were
A prayer of green, a flake-white song.

Her joy is in the noon's calm ray,
Her happiness to wait and be
A cool retreat for driven day,
A fragrance of wood piety.

She ventures into deeper snows
Than tender growths that take their ease,
And, brave in her demureness, shows
The line that height has drawn for trees.

Unsatisfied she pioneers
To comfort a forsotten land
And steadfast through storm-leveled years
Points to the heavens with her hand.

In her sweet presence troubles cease;
Today my cities thoughts incline
To a dim forest and the peace
A fir-grove made forever mine.

Figures issued recently from Washington, D. C., show that of a total of 899,128 weighing and measuring devices tested during 1927, 891,434 were approved and passed. Less than 1 per cent., or 7,694, were condemned for inaccuracy. Considering the many delicate operations necessary to manufacture a scale or measuring device, engineers regard this record of accuracy as another triumph of American manufacturing genius, which largely accounts for the popularity of American scales abroad, 430,000 of which were exported in 1926.

RAISE $5,000 IN OPENING APPEAL HERE FOR UNITED PALESTINE FUND

Two prominent speakers in the cause of Zionism addressed a meeting Sunday evening in the Community house on Church street which opened the United Palestine Appeal in this city, where the quota is $5,000, and before the meeting was over their stirring appeals had resulted in pledges amounting to $5,000, a considerable part of which was paid in cash.

Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg, president of the local organization, was the chairman and introduced as the first speaker Rabbi Nathan Milelkowsky, at one time rabbi of the famous Polish city of Lodz, who settled permanently in Palestine five years ago to devote his life to the rebuilding of the Jewish state there. In his stirring address which was given in Yiddish he presented a pathetic picture of the abject condition of Judaism in Europe and he pleaded with his audience that they should do their part through financial aid in re-creating the Jewish state in Palestine.

Rabbi Elias Margolis of Mt. Vernon, New York, who spent six weeks in Palestine last summer, was the concluding speaker. To get the real significance of Palestine, he said that it was necessary to see it, to understand the spirit of the land and breathe its asmosphere. The most romantic thing that is going on in the world today is the daily creation in Palestine of a culture by Jews and for Jews, re-creating a land, a culture and a people. It is a revival of Judaism that is the expression of the heart and soul of the people and he declared that it i san absolute duty on the Jews of the world and of America to support this work so that the Jewish people may keep their contract with the world in the development of the Palestine state.

Rabbi Margolis took a leading part in the appeal for pledges, after he had concluded his address, and the effort was continued till the $5,000 mark was reached when the meeting closed. Included in the pledges was one for $1,000 from the Hadassah chapter and another of $25 from the Junior Hadassah. The individual pledges ranged from $500 to $2.

HISTORIC GAVEL IS RETURNED TO VIRGINIA

An historic gavel which was carried off from Richmond senate chamber on April 3, 1865, the day of the evacuation of Richmond by the confederate army, was returned on Saturday to the senate of Virginia by Alfred L. Aiken, second vice president of the New York Life Insurance company, who is the son of Gen. William A. Aiken, of this city, and grandson of William A. Buckingham, governor of the state of Connecticut during the days of the war for the preservation of the Union.

The historic relic, with handle of walnut and head of lignum vitae, was presented at special ceremonies and was accepted by Lieut. Gov. Junius E. West, presiding officer of the senate.

The young officer who carried it away was Lieutenant J. Lewis Spaulding, adjutant of the 29th Connecticut infantry, which was among the first Union troops to enter the city after Richmond fell. He gave it to Governor Buckingham, whose home was in this city. For more than 62 years it had remained in possession of members of the family here.

Genuineness of the gavel was supported by documents in possession of Mr. Aiken, which also was represented to the senate. The gavel was used not only by the Virginia senate during the war between the states but by the Confederate senate, which held its sessions in the same chamber.

SUES FOR $7,500 FOR INJURIES IN AUTO CRASH

Louis H. Burdick, of Franklin, a carpenter, has brought suit in the superior court against Patrick Sullivan, of Bozrah, for injuries he received in an automobile accident, Oct. 8, 1927, near Sodom hill on the Norwich-Willimantic highway. Burdick's automobile was hit by a big truck owned by Sullivan and driven by George Miller.

Burdick claims that when he saw the truck coming toward him, near the Lebanon highway intersection, he (Burdick) brought his car to a stop on the right hand side of the road. The truck came around the corner at Sodom hill at a fast and reckless rate of speed it is claimed, and Miller carelessly applied his brages in such a manner that the truck started to skid and continued to skid along the highway sidewise down the hill, across the road, and into and against the front right side of the auto driven by Burdick.

By reason of the careless, negligent and unlawful operation of the defendant's truck by Miller, it is alleged, and the collision which followed, Burdick claims he was thrown against the windshield and back into the car and suffered severe bruises, contusions and injuries as follows: badly bruised left wrist, left middle finger, right hand, right leg, left forearm, right and left wrist badly sprained, his back black and blue from hips to shoulders, he was shaken up and his nerves severely shattered from which he suffered and will suffer for a long period of time to come.

INCREASE IN RECEIPTS FROM TAX ON GASOLINE

More than $3,000,000 was realized from the state tax on gasoline in Connecticut during 1927, state motor vehicle department records show. This amount is approximately $1,000,000 above the annual revenue which was expected to be derived from this source when the tax was increased by the general assembly in 1925 from one to two cents a gallon. An increase of about $376,500 over 1926 is reported for the past calander year.

The increase in revenue follows a correspondingly large increase in gasoline sales. For the year, the total taxable gasoline sales amounted to about 150,000,000 gallons, or about 18,000,000 gallons more than was sold in the state in 1926. In addition there were sales of about 8,000,000 gallons of "non-taxable" gasoline. This amount was allowed tax free under the state law which provides exemption for fuel used in motor boats, for purposes of manufacture, and commercially, when not used in vehicles on the highways.

Corresponding increases are reported for other motor vehicle department receipts during 1927, the total from all sources reaching nearly $10,000,000. The approximate amount is $9,800,000, with registration fees of $5,312,643.56 and the gasoline tax receipts as the largest items. An increase of about $900,000 is reported from all receipts, while the registration fees alone increased by $508,876.47.

Fees paid by operators for licenses provided the third largest revenue item, the total being $973,629. Fines imposed by courts for violations of the motor vehicle laws, and paid to the commissioner of motor vehicles, amounted to $257,970, an increase for the year of $19,692.

Examinations of applicants for operators' licenses accounted for fees totaling $113,136, and a brisk business conducted by the department in replacing lost registrations and operators' license certificates brought in an additional $5,155. Gasoline license inspection fees amounted to $43,240 for the year. Other items were transfers, $69,177; markers, $8,931; copies of various records, $7,994, and miscellaneous collections amounting to $6,054.

During the first six months of the year the department licensed aircraft and pilots, until this work was taken over by the new commissioner of aviation. In that period the fees amounted to $602, approximately the same amount as was realized from this source during the previous 12 months.

MACHINE UNDER TOW RUN INTO AT CORNER

After the automobile of Alva MacNamee of 7 Huntington street, New London, which was being towed through Willow street, had been run into by an automobile driven by Harry Mills of the Norwich state hospital, the driver of the towing machine cut loose and drove away and Mills was placed under arrest by Officers McAvoy and Shahan on the charge of operating an automobile under the influence of liquor.

The crash occurred at the corner of Willow and Franklin streets as Mills was driving down Franklin street and the other two cars came out of Willow street into Franklin.

MacNamee claimed not to know who was driving the car that was towing his machine, but said they had come from New London and were on their way to Jewett City to have some work done on his car. It was reported that the MacNamee machine had no lights nor number plates on it but he had the registration for the car with him. He claimed that it was a total wreck after the collision. The Mills machine had the left fender and running board damaged.

FISHERS ISLAND HISTORY TOLD IN FANNING BOOK

Papers in various places have copied a notice which The Bulletin printed during the past fall of the beautiful new club-house and its surroundings at Fishers Island, the Fishers' Island club. There is wide interest in this exclusive corporation, with its privately owned park of 1,800 acres on the easterly end of the island, its clubhouse which is the center of social activities for members, a matchless golf course and many other advantages. It is generally understood that the entrance fee to this club is $2,500; and even at that, to gain admittance to the club which now numbers about 250, is no easier, unless one has shining credentials, than would be the Biblical entrance of the camel to the eye of the needle.

Thomas DeC. Ruth is general manager for the corporation of this paradise lying between Barley Field cove and South beach, and stretching to East Harbor. A number in eastern Connecticut society have met Manager Ruth's efficient assistant, a Harvard man, Charles E. Dexter, of Boston.

An interesting side-light upon Fishers' island and its original owners is thrown through certain references in the History of the Fanning Family in America, the work of Walter F. Brooks, of Worcester, Mass.

In his sketch of the career of the family ancestor, Edmund Fanning, Mr. Brooks records that Edmund Fanning settled in New London (then called Pequot) in 1653. His first period of residence was brief, however, as he soon removed to Fishers' island, then owned by John Winthrop, the younger, afterward governor of Connecticut, where it is supposed Fanning resided for several years. The records show that he was living on Fishers' island in 1655 and 1657 and it is probable that he was there before that time.

In 1660, John Winthrop, the younger obtained a grant from Massachusetts —subsequently confirmed by both Connecticut and New York, of Fishers' island, considered even then one of the gems of Long Island sound. He erected a house thereon, which was the first English residence in the Pequot country.

Winthrop developed the island and was largely engaged in raising horses, cattle, goats, etc. It is known that upon the arrival of Edmund Fanning at Pequot, Winthrop interested himself in him and gave Fanning a settlement upon Fishers island, where Fanning resided for several years. It is generally supposed that he was given charge of Winthrop's stock farm and was appointed his overseer.

In a letter dated Pequot, 28th of June, 1657, from John Brewster to John Winthrop, Jr., reference is made to Edmund Fanning, who with his wife was stopping at Brewster's house and who sends word to Winthrop that they are "all well upon the island" (i. e. Fishers island).

Fishers island remained in the Winthrop family until Dec. 2, 1863, when it was sold to Robert R. Fox for $55,000. Heirs of Robert Fox sold it July 19, 1889, to Edmund M. Ferguson, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for $230,000. Ferguson sold a small area of it in 1901 to the United States for purposes of a fortification and fort and it is said received $167,000 for it.

The island itself is about seven miles long, with a width varying from half a mile to a mile and a half; it is irregular in form, with many projecting headlands and small bays. The highest point is Chocomount, with an elevation of 140 ft. above sea level. The island is about seven or eight miles by water from New London.

The westerly portion of the island has long been developed, but the park of the new club had been left almost in its native state of appealing loveliness and picturesque simplicity.

LEPER AND CENTURIAN CITED BY FATHER GALVIN

Christ's readiness to grant prayer, as demonstrated in the gospel read in every mass in every Catholic church throughout the world on the third Sunday after Epiphany, Matthew 8. 1-13, suggested the theme of the sermon by Rev. Myles P. Galvin at the third mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. As he read this passage of Scripture narrating the cleansing of the leper and the healing of the centurian's servant, Rev. Father Galvin declared that those who often complain that their prayers are not answered do not make their petitions in the proper words or the proper spirit.

He took up the qualities of proper prayer, first of all humility. Too many ask favors of God while in the attitude of the Pharisee, arrogant, pompous, thinking himself a pretty good fellow after all. God disregards their petitions, whereas He is disposed to grant the prayers of those who are akin to the humble Publican, scarcely daring to venture further than the very door of the temple. In prayer, we are never to forget that we are the most insignificant of creatures, approaching an omipotent Creator.

Then there is the requisite quality of attention. The preacher expressed the conviction that a victrola would pray better than many Christians—at least it would enunciate the words distinctly, not make a mere jumble of prayer as do some, addressing God, yet their mind a mile away.

A third requirement is confidence. It is a mistake to pray with the despondent conviction, "Oh, I know my prayer will not be granted!" to petition without hope of success. Christ has promised "Ask and ye shall receive;" God will keep His promise.

The fourth important quality of prayer is perseverance—real stick-to-a-tive-ness, staying with God, refusing to take a negative answer. We must remember that God is our Father, we are His unworthy children. Many times God appears to put us off, to delay us as an earthly father may do with his children. Of course, if we are petitioning for something which would prove injurious to use, to our soul, we have no right to expect God to answer our prayers any more than an earthly father would grant a similar request of his child. But in case out petition is proper, we should pray and pray and pray, till God's goodness is fairly overcome by our persistence.

Father Galvin later assisted Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the low mass, in administering communion to so many penitents following the Saturday confessions that they crowded out from the sanctuary railing into the three aisles. The hymns were sung in a pleasing manner by the Junior choir, directed by Organist Henry J. LaFontaine. The communion hymn was "Oh, Lord, I am not Worthy that Thou shouldst Come to Me."

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS AND LIFELESS DAYS

Constipation ruins rest

Don't let this deadly evil fasten its hold upon you. Spots before the eyes. Dragging feet. Aching muscles. Sleeplessness. These are just a few of the symptoms. Constipation is the cause of more than forty diseases.

Protect yourself—now. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely and promptly. More—to prevent it from ever as surely. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran.

Serve with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey for variety. Mix with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use it in cooking. Recipes on package. Genuine ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On dining cars.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Years ago Raoul Walsh made a picture called "Carmen," with Theda Bara as the star. From the day the production was ordered until the finished print was shown, three or four weeks elapsed and when it reached the public "Carmen" was greeted with widespread approval.

Last night at the Breed theatre, a second Walsh picture called "Loves of Carmen," had its initial showing and it was conceded that it surpassed the original as a modern ship excels the Mayflower. But this time, Director Walsh took many months of production.

A critical audience was obviously charmed. Miss Del Rio and Victor McLaglen, who are remembered for their

INPROVEMENT IS NOTED IN BOTH WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP)—The American business aspects continued to promote cheerfulness in the week just closed. The so-called "heavy industries," were again among the pace-setters, with minor branches beginning to show satisfactory signs of expansion. Wholesale trade appeared to have thrown off the hesitancy noticeable around the end of hte year, and retail business was recovering from its post-holiday lull in most sections of the country.

As in the earlier weeks this year, the steel trade was outstanding. Continued buying of motor car makers, implement manufacturers and the builders of railway equipment, particularly cars. There was some hardening of steel prices both of the U. S. Steel corporation and some of the so-called "independents." Quotations on bars, shapes and plates were advanced for the second time since early November.

The automobile industry showed a further stepping up of factory activity, reecting growing consumer demand and anticipating a further improvement in retail buying. Employment in Detroit, considered a good barometer of the trend in this field, gained sharply over the preceding week, and even more sharply over the corresponding period of last year. Automobile shows in New York and other impotant centers of population were the chief factors in bringing about the increased activity at this time, although recent price cuts and the introduction of new models continued to show marked bearing on the demand for cars.

Mild winter weather apparently was having its effect on the coal trade, although a cheerful feeling prevailed in the anthracite branch. Demand for lumber picked up to some extent, stocks on the Pacific coast being reduced noticeably. The furniture trade was reported rather quiet, and there was immediately shading of prices in radio equipment.

Moderate activity was reported in the wool market, due to buying for spring goods manufacture to meet a growing retail demand. Other textiles were more quiet, particularly cotton goods, although the curtailment of production worked for better prices in this section.

Winter wheat in most parts of the wheat belt was reported in good condition, although need of rain was felt in northern Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. In the northwest a good snow blanket was believed to have benefited the crop materially.

Credit conditions were little changed from the week before, and the feeling that less easy conditions are forthcoming continued to be rather general. A slight tightening of time money contrasted with extreme ease in the call loan market where rates fell to 3 1-2 per cent as low as they have been in a year or more. Further liquidation of government bonds held by the federal reserve banks was regarded as an indication of money firmness and a possible important increase soon. Although the New York Fedreal Reserve bank maintained its rediscount rate at 3 1-2 per cent, predictions that it would be raised at a near future date were still heard. Bank clarings decreased about 13 per cent from the figure of the week before, but gained approximately 3 per cent over hte same week of last year.

GEORGE WESTON BROADCASTS GOSPEL OF SENTIMENT

The following radio talk was given by George Weston, Packer's literary celebrity, over WJZ at 8:30 Sunday evening in New York:

It always amuses me when critics damn a story for being sentimental—that is to say when they deride a story because it deals with emotions, rather then with reason.

These critics, lose sight of the fact that they themselves would probably never have been born in this exhilarating world if it had not been for the triumph of sentiment for the triumph of emotions over every obstacle which reason could bring to bear.

To condemn a story for being sentimental is often equivalent to condemning it because it is true.

I met a critic recently who said "Mr. Weston, why don't you put the soft pedal on sentiment, and give us a little realism for a change?"

I told him that sentiment was realism, but he wouldn't accept that.

What he meant by realism was stories in the grand Russian manner where everyone either goes mad or confesses to a murder; where the suffering of Ivan the paralytic are described to the last groan, where the minister is a rake, the governor is a crook, and the villagers are squalid sots—where the heroine has had a previous affair with a bullet-headed officer, where the rich men are rascals, and where even old George Washingtonski, the father of all the Russias, was certainly no better than he ought to have been.

Now, personally, I don't believe in this type of realism. I know, of course, that now and then a man confesses to a murder, and all the rest of it. These things are no more typical of average human conduct than the story of Cain and Abel is typical of brotherly love.

It has always seemed to me that a story is one thing, and a police court report is another; that we read for recreation and mental profit and are not likely to find either in the mental or physical sewage of mankind.

Another critic recently wrote of my book, "The Horse-shoe Nails," which, you remember was published in Collier's, "It should be remembered that reason, not sentiment rules this world of ours."

He could hardly have pulled a larger bone, unless perchance, he had wielded that jaw-bone which Sampson used instead of a shillalah. The world ruled by reason? Not if I know the grand old human race! Now if my radio listeners will consider your own cases for a moment you will see how far your lives have been ruled by reason.

The color of your skin, for instance, was that ruled by any reason of yours? Your height, your general features, the color of your eyes—your name even—did you choose any of these by the rules of pure reason? And, generally speaking, your nationality, your politics, your religious beliefs, your pride and prejudices, your language—weren't all these things inherited by you from that great and glorious company which has gone before?

You know they were! And with their other gifts you're forbears gave you those emotions from which sentiment is born. But, nota bene, if you please, not even Solomon in all his glory could bequeath his wisdom to his sons. For who ever heard of the wisdom of Solomon's sons—and he certainly must have had sons—with all those wives!

So that is why I like to write a story with a bit of sentiment in it. I believe that like the yeast in the flour, it leavens the whole lump.

And now a few words about a happy ending.

You know what the constitution says "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"—not the pursuit of tragedy, or the pursuit of melancholy, or the pursuit of a heroine by a bullet-headed officer, who has already had an affair with her.

Deep down in your hearts you know you all want happiness—so why not get it in a story?

When you look at your babies, which do you prefer? To hear them cry or see them laugh?

Why do I like a happy ending?

Because I believe that the hope of a happy ending is one of the deepest yearnings of the human soul.

Religion, aye, and nations are founded on that hope. Lives are judged by it—so why not books and stories? The wish for a happy ending is the mother of thrift and the father of industry. Take the hope away and civilization would soon be dusty ruins.

So there I stand—for a happy ending; and when the time comes for me to lay aside my pen, I hope the Great Author of all will give me a happy ending, too!

PHONE SWITCHBOARD FIFTY YEARS OLD ON JANUARY 28

Fifty years ago next Saturday, on January 28, 1878, Connecticut became the parent of an invention which was to revolutionize communication and to make possible the development of one of the largest industries in America and in the world. On that day, the world's first commercial telephone switchboard was put into operation at New Haven and the foundation rather inauspiciously laid for the mammoth telephone industry of today.

This first switchboard, anteceded only by two small boards used privately in Boston and Bridgeport, was devised by George W. Coy, then manager of the Franklin Telegraph company. It was a crude affair and one which would compare but meagerly with the vast switchboards in Connecticut telephone exchanges today. It consisted of a slab of wood to which was attached numerous switches and wires somewhat clumsily connected. The switches were small bars of metal, one end of which was stationary and the opposite end of which could be moved in a circle to connect with small buttons, each of which in turn connected with the telephone of another subscriber in the exchange.

There were no jacks, lights or numbers on the board. Each of the subscribers—there were twenty-one of them—called the others in his select group by giving the operator the name of the person with whom he desired to communicate. The operator, incidently, was a man, and men continued to operate telephone switchboards for many years afterward.

Far different was this original board from the towering boards of today with their modern mechanical mazes, miles of wiring, and myriads of lights, jacks, numbers and tiny sockets. The original board accommodated 21 subscribers. The boards in Connecticut's 83 central offices today not only link together the 280,000 stations in this state but also can be made to link those stations with millions of others throughout the United States and many foreign countries.

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT BROUGHT FOR $10,000

A suit for $10,000 damages brought by Mrs. Roberta Wilbur Lamphere of Mystic against her husband, Charles E. Lamphere of Old Mystic, from whom she secured a divorce last week has been withdrawn without costs from the superior court.

Mrs. Lamphere claimed in her action that on Sept. 16, 1926, she together with Helen F. Wilbur, John P. Wilbur and Emeline F. Kellogg, were the sole owners in fee of certain premises located in Mystic. On that day, Mrs. Lamphere alleged she conveyed the property to the defendant, Charles Lamphere, on condition that he and his family establish a home there; that the defendant improve the property; and that the defendant reconvey the premises back to the plaintiff within a reasonable time, free from all incumbrances. It was alleged that the defendant failed to carry out his part of the agreement.

Turn Down DeWolf Hopper

DeWolf Hopper, star of many musical comedy successes, will not speak at the Central Baptist church in Hartford Sunday night as the church evening service committee had announced. Frank Tolhurst, a Gales Ferry summer cottager, speaking for the board, said the deacons had no statement to make concerning their action, but it is understood that Mr. Hopper's frequent matrimonial ventures—there were six of them—had much to do with this decision.

SPOKE UPON SUCCESS AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

An audience of 200 or more attended the Y. M. C. A. service Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The opening part of the service consisted of the singing of two familiar hymns, scripture reading and prayer, after which a reel of moving pictures furnished by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company on the great need of vaccination was shown.

Moving pictures consisting of the following proved very interesting and helpful: One reel on "Macbeth," one of "The Moonlight Sonarto," and a two reel picture of the Bible narrative of "forgive our debts as we forgive our debtors." These reels carried their own impressive lessons. Between the reels, Edmund A. Prentice gave a brief and very interesting talk on success, and he spoke in part as follows: I believe that every normal human being can have a good degree of success if they will but meet the conditions of success. You can build a successful life if you think and do, for these are two of the things that make for success. All machinery needs a little oiling at times, and so we need to keep our faculties lubricated, as it were that they may best perform their tasks. God has given every one of us the opportunity to succeed. We must remember that these bodies of ours are most wonderful, and we need to take good care of them if we expect to have success. Our minds must be developed and used in the right ways if we would build a successful life. The body and the mind, however are not all there is to man, for he has a soul, and I must be sure to take care of my soul life if I expect to have real success. When I leave this life, I leave all the things I own behind, but my soul I take with me, and it is the only thing about me that goes into eternity. I cannot have success in the highest sense apart from good morals, and the highest morals are obtainable only by following the leadership of Jesus Christ, who will help any man to achieve success."

Hugh Kinder furnished appropriate music for the service.

AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY ALLEGES FRAUD BY WOOD

Because the American Woolen company has mills in Norwich, Yantic and Moosup there was surprise Saturday in the following story sent out from Boston under the heading, "Accuses William M. Wood:"

The assertion that fraudulent acts of the late William M. Wood while president of the American Woolen company caused losses of $2,500,000 to the company was made by attorneys for the company Friday in their answer to a suit brought in superior court by the Old Colony Trust company, executor of the Wood estate.

Judge Louis S. Cox has refused to impound the papers in the suit, which was entered by the trust company to recover income taxes and interest which it had expended for the Wood estate. The trust company asserted that the American Woolen company had made an agreement with Mr. Wood to pay his income taxes from 1919 to 1924 inclusive.

The American Woolen company's answer averred that while Mr. Wood was president he acted "for personal, selfish interests and that he violated his duty of fidelity to the company." It declared that the company had paid Mr. Wood a total of $7,866,844.08 for the years of 1919 to 1924, including $5,041,465.90 as salary and $2,824,375.16 for income taxes assessed against him in those years.

The answer further averred that the Old Colony Trust company could not recover the additional income taxes because Mr. Wood "continually and repeatedly violated his duty of fidelity to the defendant from time to time and on many occasions did and performed things inish interests to the cost and at the tended to serve his personal selfexpense of the defendant by which wrong conduct and series of wrong and fraudulent acts losses accrued to the defendant in the aggregate $2,500,000."

SEN. HEFLIN RENEWS HIS TIRADE ON CATHOLICISM

With Roaring Voice and Emphatic Gestures the Senator From Alabama Repeated His Warning That No Catholic Ever Must Be Permitted to Sit in the White House—Concluded by Daring His Colleagues to Rebuke Him—Laughter Swept the Chamber and Galleries as Heflin Recanted His Tar and Feather Threat—Took Flings at the Newspapers and Scolded Correspondents.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Senator Heflin of Alabama delivered to the senate and its crowded galleries today another of his attacks on Al Smith and the Catholic church, and concluded by daring his democratic colleagues to rebuke him.

For two hours and twenty minutes, with roaring voice and characteristic gesture, he tramped backward and forward along an aisle which other senators had voluntarily cleared for him, repeating his warning that no Catholic ever must be permitted to sit in the white house and broadening his rang of fire to encompass newspapers in his own and other states, Mayor Gunter, of Montgomery, and other citizens of Alabama and finally the "villain" newspaper correspondents who report his speeches from the press galleries.

But he did strike one note of conciliation. While laughter swept the chamber and galleries he declared he was only speaking in fun the other day when he told his party leader, Robinson of Arkansas, that if he went to Alabama and repeated his speech for religious tolerance, the people of that state would tar and feather him. He had spoken in the heat of debate, he said, and hadn't mean it.

The Alabama senator repeated his previous assertions that threats had been made against his life, and said he had singled out thirty seven men throughout the country to carry on his crusade if he should be removed.

Mindful, apparently, of the conference of democratic senators which last week overwhelmingly voted confidence in Senator Robinson after the party leader had rebuked him for his speech on the religious issue, Heflin concluded by challenging the democratic organization itself to administer a rebuke to him.

"Call a conference and have a roll-call on that," he shouted. "I challenge you."

Senator Heflin seemed particularly displeased that the newspaper correspondents had printed his assertion that Robinson might be tarred and feathered in Alabama. He explained that many things are said in the heat of debate that a senator would not say at any other time, adding that he intended "to strike that remark from my speech" before its appearance in the Congressional Record.

"Of course, they won't tar and feather Senator Robinson if he goes to Alabama," he said, "and if I were down there I would not let them do it. I hope the senator does go to Montgomery and make a speech. I will go with him and we can have a debate there and in Arkansas so that our constituents can hear both sides of this question."

Foregoing his lunch so he might get the floor at the conclusion of a two hours' address by Senator Swanson of Virginia, on the question of whether the Negro in the south is disfranchised, Senator Heflin lost his opportunity when Senator Bruce, of Maryland, obtained recognition and refused to yield.

The Marylander held the floor for more than an hour and when Heflin finally obtained it he assailed both Bruce and Senator Steiwer, of Oregon, who was presiding when the Maryland senator was recognized. Steiwer retorted to Heflin that he was "asleep" when Swanson concluded and could blame only himself.

Vice President Dawes, who had resumed the chair meantime, got into the discussion by saying that Steiwer was right in recognizing Bruce but Heflin disputed this, saying it had been the universal custom for the chair to recognize a senator who had given notice that he would speak at a certain time.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, supported Heflin on that point, but Senator Norris, of Nebraska, took issue. The crowds enjoyed this running fire apparently and were all set for a merry warfare when the Alabama senator finally launched into his address.

It was toward the last part of his speech that the Alabaman got into form in attacking Al Smith. He said this was the first time in the history of the democratic party that it had been proposed to make a Tammanyite the standard bearer of the party.

"He is more than a Tammanyite," Heflin shouted. "He is a wringing wet, a nullifier and a Roman Catholic. He can not be nominated. There is enough to defeat him without his being a Catholic but being a Catholic that ends it.

"He speaks like a ward heeler. He is not a statesman in any sense of the word. He does not measure up to the stature of one who would be president of the United States."

Senator Heflin attacked especially the Montgomery Advertiser, which recently declared for Governor Smith, saying that during the World war "the German allies and brewers furnished the money to buy it." He also charged that the Birmingham Age-Herald and Birmingham News were "whiskey sheets" that were afraid to say anything against the Catholic church for fear of a "boycott" by the Catholics.

These papers were accused also of damaging the reputation of Alabama by asserting that the Ku Klux Klan were mobbing people there. He also said these papers had wired to mayors over the state asking if Robinson would be tarred and feathered if he spoke in their towns.

"That's the bunch that is for Al Smith," he added. "I don't think Victor Hanson (publisher of the Birmingham News) has come out yet. He's hiding behind the screen for Owen D. Young, but when I get down there amongst them I'll show you what they will do."

Throughout his address, Senator Heflin referred to the "tar and feathers" incident and scolded the newspaper men in that connection. Once he lapsed into profanity, in quoting an imaginary statement by newspapermen when he had made the tar and feathers threat.

Turning upon Paul Block, publisher of newspapers in Newark, Toledo and Pittsburgh, Heflin said he was "the scoundrel" in Pittsburgh who printed an attack by the Roman Catholics on the Protestants and then refused to publish as news or an advertisement the reply of the Protestants.

He also assailed the New York World and Robert Barry, a newspaper writer.

Centering an attack on Mayor Gunter, who invited Robinson to go to Montgomery and make a speech, Heflin said the mayor's sister married "a Semple, a Roman Catholic, whose sister was Mother Superior Semple, who was in Mexico for years" and that Gunter's brother had married the sister of a Catholic priest.

"So you now are getting the environment of Mayor Gunter," he shouted.

Assailing a lawyer named Willett, who was among 100 citizens of Anniston to send a telegram to Robinson inviting him to speak in that Alabama town, Heflin said Willett was counsel for Patrick O'Connor, a Catholic priest who "committed a felony at Anniston."

The senator then went into some details of the alleged crime, charging that O'Connor had killed his own child and almost killed the mother, a married woman, in the process. He said the priest had fled to Canada where he is resisting extradition and that meantime the Catholic priests of the state had opposed his return, one, Father Eaton, of Mobile, explaining in a paid advertisement that the church could and would try the matter and punish O'Connor.

"Haven't I been telling you they had a government above our government?" Heflin demanded. "What more proof do you want than that?"

When Heflin concluded, Senator Bruce denied that O'Connor was guilty and said his information was that the priest had fled the country because Alabama was dominated by the Ku Klux Klan and he felt that he could not get a fair trial.

Senator Black, of Alabama, demanded to know where the Maryland senator got his information. It was the first time Black had entered into any of the discussions precipitated by his colleague.

Bruce replied that his information came "from Father Eaton, of Mobile, and Bishop Tollman."

Meanwhile, Senator Jones, republican, Washington, had moved for an executive session. Heflin and Bruce became involved in a sharp interchange which lasted for some minutes and finally Vice President Dawes cut them short by declaring the senate in executive session.

DEATH HAS SOLVED A 30-YEAR-OLD MYSTERY

Pittsburgh, Jan. 23—(AP)—The mysterious disappearance, 28 years ago, of Henry A. Brown, Pittsburgh artist, was cleared up to the satisfaction of relatives today when word was received that Brown had died at Baltimore, Md., last spring and the body had been turned over to the medical school of the University of Maryland. Brown dropped out of sight in 1900, eight weeks after his 15-year-old wife had given birth to a son.

The son, William W. Brown, now 28 years old, and his mother, who has since remarried, live here.

The identification was made through a facial scar and a newspaper clipping found on the body. The clipping was from a paper printed in 1904 and told of a four-year search for Henry A. Brown.

The son, who had conducted a search for his father for years, recently heard of the death of a man named Brown at Baltimore last May 25, and learned the body had been given to the school. As it had been his policy to run down any clue which might lead to the finding of his parent, the son wrote to J. M. H. Rowland, dean of the Maryland school, who furnished the information upon which the identification was based.

TELLS STORY OF MURDER OF TWO COAST GUARDSMEN

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23—(AP)—A coast guardsman who lost his eyes in the encounter took the stand today and told his story of the happenings aboard a coast guard ship last August 7 when Horace Alderman, alleged rum runner, took command of the government boat for a brief but hectic period after being captured off Fort Lauderdale with a liquor boat.

Alderman is on trial for the murder of Victor A. Lamby and Sidney Sanderlin, coast guardsmen who were slain in the melee.

The witness, Jodie L. Hollingsworth of the coast guard, testified he saw Alderman shoot Lamby, who was crouching on the hatch of the cutter after the captive Alderman swung on his captors with an automatic and took charge of the situation. Lamby, mortally wounded, dropped to the lower deck of the cutter a few minutes after Sanderlin had been felled by a bullet, the witness said.

HOW A HUSKY MARINE SAVED COMRADE'S LIFE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 23—(AP)—The marine emblem on the hat of Sergeant Harold I. Crowell of the United States marine corps saved his life twice in a few minutes Sunday, it was learned today.

Attacked by three Nicaraguan peons with machetes, the metal emblem warded off two blows upon his head, saving him from serious injury until a companion, L. F. Newton, navy chief pharmacist mate, could come ot his rescue. The big, husky hospital corps man today was the recipient of a flood of congratulations from friends for his share of the credit in saving Crowell's life.

The two Americans were out for a horseback ride on the outskirts of Granada when they came upon three peons killing a fourth. Crowell leaped from his horse in a futile effort to save the man attacked. His pistol failed to fire and the three peons rushed Crowell, striking two vicious blows on his forehead with their machetes. The force of the blows was broken by the machine emblem, which was nearly cut in two. It is believed that if the emblem had not been on the hat Crowell's head would have been split.

Crowell was knocked down and Newton immediately got int oaction. The navy man killed two of the peons with his pistol and then it jammed. He saw the third assailant leaning over Crowell with his machete in a position to decapitate the fallen marine.

The huge hospital corps man seized a machete from one of the deadmen, attacked the remaining peon with it, and after two or three hard blows killed him.

The original victim of the three was found to be dead. Crowell's hand was badly cut in endeavoring to parry machete blows but his wounds are not considered serious. He was treated at a field hospital in Granada and then brought to Managua.

DESCRIBED AS MASTER MINDS OF RUM RING

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23—(AP)—Four men on trial in the federal district court on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in connection with the seizure in South Philadelphia last September of the rum ship Bulko, with a $500,000 liquor cargo, today heard the chief engineer of the vessel designate them as the "master minds" behind the ship's movements.

The men on trial are John McCambridge, said to be the owner of a fleet of tugs in New York; Jack Murphy, alleged super cargo, Sam Bernstein, and Morris Rotman, alleged financial backers of the liquor shipment. The men were not members of the crew arrested last September while the vessel was attempting to unload at an isolated South Philadelphia pier.

The chief engineer, John Tizard, of Halifax, Nova Scotia told how he had helped make the vessel, registered as the Lairg, seaworthy. He testified that the vessel had made one voyage to Oyster Bay, Long Island, with 5,000 cases of liquor and landed it successfully at night by means of small boats.

Louis Spitzer, a ship broker of New York, testified he had arranged for the sale of the cargo to McCambridge for $15,000 in April 1927.

Leslie Tibbe, said to have been captain of the Bulko, corroborated the testimony of two sailors who had previously testified concerning the movements of the ship. He said that although he was nominally the master of the vessel, the real captain was an American named "Dave," who directed the ship.

Captain Charles A. Ozan, Halifax, said he had acted as captain of the vessel while it was taking on a liquor cargo at St. Pierre, but quit the ship at Halifax.

SEC'Y KELLOGG MADE PUBLIC THE LARGEST FRENCH NOTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg made public today the latest French note in the exchange concerning a multilateral treaty for the outlawing of war, but refrained from making any comment. The communication declared France stood ready to negotiate a bilateral treaty but when confronted by the initiative of the United States in proposing a multipartite covenant, it had to take into consideration the relations existing among the various powers which would be called upon to participate.

The note said that "the American government cannot be unaware of the fact that the great majority of the powers of the world, and among them most of the principal powers, are making the organization and strengthening of peace the object of common efforts carried on within the framework of the league of nations."

The third time Irwin climbed out of the cockpit, he crawled out on a wing, Ashcraft said, then shouting "it's all over now," dropped toward the earth.

Senators Divided on Nicaraguan Inquiry

Battle Lines Are Forming in Foreign Relations Committee and in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Opponents of a senate investigation of the Nicaraguan situation while the Pan-American conference is in session in Havana began today to form their battle lines both in the foreign relations committee and in the senate.

Opposition is not confined to administration senators on the republican side. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, who is a member of the foreign relations committee, said he thought it would be "the wise policy to wait until after the conference is over," before launching a general inquiry.

Some of the other democrats share this view and it is regarded as significant that when this subject was brought up in the senate last week, it was Senator Bruce, of Maryland, a democrat, who defended the administration's policy in maintaining marines in the Latin-American republic.

Senator Edge, of New Jersey, who has just returned from a week's visit to the conference in Havana, probably will lead the administration fight in the foreign relations committee. Since Chairman Borah and Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking democrat on that committee, favor a constructive investigation resolution for such a move probably will be reported out Wednesday or at a later time.

However, those who want to defer agitation of the question until after the Pan-American conference adjourns, believe they can prevent action on the floor until that time, which now is expected to be about Feb. 19.

In a formal statement today, Senator Edge expressed the opinion that the senate would "make a great mistake if it attempted to prepare or provide the president with a made-to-order Latin-American policy, anyhow while the Pan-American conference is in session."

"While we all recognize in recent years the senate has invaded almost every field of activity both public and private, sometimes with commendable results," Senator Edge said, "still it would seem to me to be most unfortunate if we ever attempted to absorb the constitutional powers of the chief executive in his responsibility of initiating and carrying out foreign policies.

"I clearly appreciate the senate has a perfect right, if it so elects, to advise, or through resolution expres its viewpoint on any subject under the sun. I repeat, however, it would probably be most confusing if the senate delegated itself a settlement of this specific matter until at least the official representatives now in Havana accredited to every one of the 21 republics of the Western Hemisphere, have an opportunity to inform the world what they may feel is the best course to pursue. These delegates certainly know more about their local situations and their country's ambitions or resentment if they really have any, than we can ever possibly know. No matter how thorough an investigation should be undertaken."

NATIONAL GRANGE FAVORS EXPORT DEBENTURE BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Enactment of an export debenture bill as a substitute for the McNary-Haugen farm relief proposal is favored by the National grange.

Announcement that a debenture bill which will have the grange's support would be introduced shortly in congress was made tonight by L. J. Taber, master of that farm organization. He and other members of the executive committee of the grange have been in conference here for ten days, consulting farm leaders from various sections and members of congress who are helping to whip the debenture measure into final form. Taber did not disclose who would sponsor the bill in the house and senate.

"The time is now ripe t ceive the export debenture plan a fair hearing on its merits," said Taber in a formal statement. "For more than seven years the grange, along with other farm organizations, has been seeking methods to bring equality for agriculture. During recent sessions of congress the McNary-Haugen bill has held the center of the stage. The grange as an organization was not committed to this plan and, in fact, objected to some of its features. But it was in sympathy with the purposes sought to be accomplished by the McNary-Haugen bill and never opposed the measure.

"However the failure of this type of legislation to become law, and recent statements from members of the house and senate that they will not support legislation that does not have some chance of executive approval, prompts the grange to believe that the time has come to bring forward the export debenture ideas as a sound method upon which all can agree."

DARIEN, Conn., Jan. 23—(AP)—Darien school authorities today expressed confidence in James L. Young, Jr., high school teacher who is accused of having two wives. Over the week-end Young had been in conference with school authorities and after the conference they expressed faith in him.

The following statement was issued by Young himself today:

"Feeling that an explanation is due the people of Darien concerning the recent newspaper articles, I wish them to know that I have employed legal counsel to investigate fully the charges made against me, of which my only knowledge is the aforesaid press notices, and to take steps to exonerate me. The result of such investigation will be made public as soon as possible.

Borah is Building Dry Plank Platform

To Send Questionnaires to All Aspirants For G. O. P. Presidential Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—As a part of his campaign to force the republican party to write a dry plank in its platform at Kansas City next June, Senator Borah of Idaho, has addressed a letter to Senator Curtis of Kansas, an avowed candidate for the presidential nomination, asking for an expression of his view on this and other prohibition questions.

In making public his letter today, the Idaho senator said he would address identical questionnaires to Senator Willis of Ohio, the only other avowed candidate for the republican nomination, and to all other candiats as they entered the field.

The letter to Curtis follows:

"Your friends have placed you in line for the nomination for the presidency. I venture in view of that fact to ask your views upon a matter in which there is a wide and deep interest throughout the country. I am sure you will be free to express yourself upon this important issue.

"First, do you favor incorporating in the next national republican platform a plank specifically referring to the eighteenth amendment to the constitution and pledging the candidates of the party to a vigorous and faithful enforcement of the amendment and the laws enacted to carry into effect the constitutional amendment?

"Second, what is your attitude and what would be your attitude toward the amendment and its enforcement in case you are nominated and elected?

"Third, do you favor the enactment into law of the principle embodied in the New York referendum that congress should modify the federal act to enforce the eighteenth amendment so that the same shall not prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation or exportation of beverages which are not in fact intoxicating, as determined in accordance with the laws of the respective states? In other words, do you favor a program of legislation which will enable every state to determine for itself the alcoholic content of beverages to be manufactured, sold and transported throughout the country?

"Fourth, do you favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, or the repeal of the Volstead act?"

Senator Curtis said he would reply to the letter tomorrow or as soon thereafter as he could find the time from the press of his duties as the republican leader of the senate.

LINDBERGH IS READY FOR FLIGHT TO HAVANA

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 23—(AP)—Back from his week's hunting and fishing trip in a remote district of Panama, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today took the air again in his Spirit of St. Louis for an hour's test flight that carried him over several of the American army posts in the Canal Zone.

Although there have been reports that the colonel would like to have a "social double" to relieve him of the strain of the many functions and receptions which await him everywhere, there was no indication today that the colonel had any desire for a "double" to handle his famous monoplane.

When he landed today after performing a series of stunts to the delight of a crowd on the field, there was no doubt in the minds of the spectators that the American aviator and his plane were both ready to resume the colonel's good will flight to Havana for the Pan-American conference, on Friday.

The trick evolutions which the colonel performed today included holding the ship almost motionless in the air and gliding.

The itinerary of the colonel's tour for the continuation of his flight, which calls for a two days stop over in each place, is as follows:

Leave Colon, Panama, Friday for Bogota, Columbia, about 500 miles; leave Bogota Jan. 29 for Caracas, Venezuela, 60 miles; leave Caracas Jan. 31 for St. Thomas, 575 miles; leave St. Thomas Feb. 2 for Porto Rico, 75 miles; leave Porto Rico Feb. 4, for Santo Domingo, 250 miles; leave Santo Domingo Feb. 6 for Haiti, 160 miles, and leave Haiti, Feb. 6 for Havana, 700 miles.

STANLEY MURDER CASE WILL GO TO JURY TODAY

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 23—(AP)—The case of Gilbert Stanley, former Yale hockey player, on trial for manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Peter Fulco, of Great Barrington, on November 26 last, will go to the jury late tomorrow or early Wednesday, it was indicated tonight.

Stanley took the stand in his own defense today and his cross examination by District Attorney Charles R. Clason had been completed when court adjourned.

Fulco was shot and killed on the grounds of the Berkshire school in Sheffield of which Stanley is manager. The defendant told the court that his intention had been merely to frighten Fulco off the premises. Stanley said that his hand was not on the trigger and he could not understand how the gun was discharged. He said that he turned around quickly as Fulco rushed at him and at that moment the gun went off. C. C. Cheny, vice president in charge of manufacturing for the General Electric company, testified to Stanley's character and C. H. Barnes, firearms expert of the Remington Arms company, also testified for the defense.

Stanley's left arm was shattered by a German shell as he was flying in the Argonne area during the World war.

RECTOR DEFIED PARISH TO MAKE HIM RESIGN

WATERBURY, Jan. 23—(AP)—Trinity Episcopal church parish, torn by internal dissension and aroused to a fever pitch at its annual meeting tonight demanded the resignation of Rev. Harry Baldwin Todd, the rector, and didn't get it. Mr. Todd declined to quit and defied the parish to make him resign under the canon law. He emerged a temporary victor despite the fact that a vote of 66 to 61 favored his immediate resignation.

When Robert S. Walker, one of Mr. Todd's opponents, charged the rector with "conduct unbecoming a gentleman," the meeting almost ended in a fist fight. Several men leaped to their feet and started toward the speaker. Friends dragged them back and averted trouble

FREE STATE PRESIDENT WELCOMED IN WASHINGTON

William T. Cosgrave Made an Official Call at the White House—President Coolidge Invited Mr. Cosgrave to Lunch at the White House Today—The President of the Irish Free State Chatted With Newspapermen on Various Subjects, But Carefully Avoided Controversial Themes—Will Visit Senate and House of Representatives Today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The greeting and good wishes of the people of the Irish Free State were conveyed to President Coolidge late today by the president of the Free State executive council, William T. Cosgrave.

Making an official call at the white house, Mr. Cosgrave expressed to the president the appreciation of his people for what the United States has done for Ireland in lending moral and material support in her fight for freedom.

He thanked Mr. Coolidge for the appointment of a minister from the United states to the Free State. He congratulated him upon his choice of Frederick A. Sterling and said that within a short time he had endeared himself to the people of the Free State.

Mr. Cosgrave declared he was particularly pleased that as the first executive head of the Free State he was able after a long period of years to return the visit paid to Ireland by Benjamin Franklin.

In reply, President Coolidge thanked Mr. Cosgrave and expressed a deep interest in Irish affairs, asking many questions as to conditions there. He was pleased, Mr. Cosgrave said later, with the acknowledgment that America had assisted Ireland.

The call at the white house, was preceded by a visit to Secretary Kellogg, and followed by calls upon Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, and Vincent Massey, the minister from Canada.

The day's program also has called for visits to Vice President Dawes, Chief Justice Taft, and Speaker Longworth, but these had to be postponed.

Tonight Mr. Cosgrave dined at the Canadian legation as the guest of Minister Massey.

President Cosgrave, despite his heavy social burden, chatted pleasantly with newspaper men on a wide variety of subjects, but carefully avoided controversial themes.

Prohibition he deemed purely an American problem, and added that he had enough difficulty with his own legislative body without delving into the problems of other countries.

He spoke freely of the Irish tariff, tax and economic problems, and said the Free State was deeply interested in aviation and that steps were being taken to develop commercial flying lines.

He smiled when a reporter inquired what great American he admired most and countered with the remark that "one should not institute comparisons between the saints."

The Free State president, touching for a moment upon President Coolidge, said he knew of no ruler of a republic who could retire with greater satisfaction or could look back upon an administration marked by greater peace or prosperity.

Mr. Cosgrave said he was amazed at the marvelous efficiency and the greatness of American industry.

A day of bustling activity awaits the Irish executive tomorrow. Early in the day he plans to go horse back riding. Later there will be visits to Mt. Vernon and to Arlington, where he will place a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

President Coolidge has invited him to lunch at the white house and a reception in his honor has been arranged for late in the afternoon at the home of Col. Pope-Hennessey.

In the evening, President Cosgrave will be the dinner guest of Minister Smiddy of the Irish Free State.

Between the white house luncheon and Col. Pope-Hennessey's reception a visit to the senate and house of representatives is planned.

Johnston, of New Britain of a report on past activities of the state chamber in connection with the diversion project.

The board of directors adopted a resolution extending "its very high appreciation to Governor Trumbull and his counsel for the energetic and able fight being made to protect Connecticut's rights in the water diversion project."

A meeting of the executive committee will be held next Friday.

Dudikoff, an assistant to the archbishop of the St. Joseph Russian church here, denied the charges and said it was an outrage. Police, however, are holding him in jail until word is received from the eastern authorities.

It is charged that Dudikoff, returning from Europe last year, borrowed $3,000 to "pay duty on part of the Russian crown jewels" he had brought home with him and then disappeared. He said he had borrowed $300 from the New Haven man but had repaid it.

HAVANA, Jan. 23—(AP)—Two subjects of extreme importance were discussed today at a meeting of the committee on Pan-American Union affairs of the Pan-American conference. One was high tariffs, which came in for denunciation from Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine ambassador at Washington, the other related to the organization of and the Pan-American Union, as viewed by Charles Evans Hughes, head of the American delegation.

Mr. Hughes was strongly opposed to the projected Mexican amendments seeking new regulations to govern the selection of Union membership, the presidency of the Union and the office of director general.

The principle underlying the determination of tariff schedules under the United States tariff act, was severely criticized by Senor Pueyrredon, who declared that this system precluded international commerce and injured Pan-American relations. He also protested against the erection of high, or prohibitive tariff walls in inter-American commerce, asserting that this practice was in direct violation of the object for which the Pan-American congress was first called—the formation of an American economic and commercial unit.

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY IN THE $1,000,000 BEER CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—(AP)—The $1,000,000 Morton Grove beer conspiracy case today lost what the prohibition department contended was the fountain head of the illegal business agreement to bring Massachusetts beer to the thirsty of Chicago.

Judge James H. Wilkerson, in U. S. district court, ruled for the Gilt Edge Beverage company, of Lawrence, Mass., directing a verdict of not guilty be returned in its behalf.

The thirteen defendants who went to trial last week had shrunk to seven before the week end recess, the judge ordering verdicts of not guilty for six.

Wilkerson also was asked to direct the exoneration of David J. Alle, former purchasing agent of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, and manager of the Lawrence Beverage company.

INSANITY EXPECTED TO BE DEFENSE OF MATHWINK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 23—Insanity will be the defense in the murder case of Saya Mathwink which comes up for trial in the Windham county superior court here Tuesday, when the selection of a jury will start at 10 o'clock. Although unconfirmed by County Protector Torrey of Putnam and Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of this city, who will lead the defense of the big Russian, legal opinions expressed today were satisfied that the plea of insanity would be injected into the trial. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam will be assisted in the prosecution by Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam. It is believed that a pre-trial movement to modify the change has been unsuccessful and Tuesday morning 60 talesmen will be on hand to be examined for their qualifications to serve on the jury to hear the case. Should the examiners fail to select a panel of 12 from the 60 talesmen it will be necessary to summon a new group of prospective talesmen until the required number is selected. Just what set of questions would be asked in the examination of the jury prospects, has not been ascertained, but it is likely that they will be based on sets of questions asked in similar cases. Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover will be on the bench. Once the jury is selected the presenting of evidence is not expected to take over two to three days.

Mathwink has retained the stoicism which he assumed upon his recovery from the apparent frenzy which impelled him to come to the home of Jacob Berkowitz on Prospect street early in the evening of November 4, armed with a shot-gun. He has confessed that his intention was to shoot Berkowitz because of an alleged swindle of money. He fired and the shot was misdirected and blew off part of the head of Mrs. Anna Berowitz, wife of the realtor. Berkowitz then raced with death out of the house and down to the corner of Walnut and Valley streets where the enraged Russian caught him. The men were engaged in a bitter combat when pedestrians interfered. Suddenly calming down, Mathwink walked to police headquarters accompanied by Clifford Ide, a 17 year old boy. A revolver and cartridges were taken from the murderer's possession.

Winter Days

Now comes the graybeard of the north:
The forests bare their ragged branches
To every wind that wanders forth.
And, in their arms, the lonely nests
That housed the birdlings months ago
Are egged with flakes of drifted snow.

No more the robin pipes his lay
To greet the flushed advance of morn;
He sings in valleys far away;
His heart is with the south today;
He can not thrill among the corn;
For all the hay and corn are down
And garnered; and the the withered leaf,
Against the branches bare and brown,
Rattles; and all the days are brief.

An icy hand is on the land;
The cloudy sky is sad and gray;
But through the misery sorrow strands
Outspreading wide, a golden ray,
And on the brook that cuts the plain
A diamond wonder is aglow,
Fairer than that which long ago
De Rohan staked a name to gain.
—Henry Abbey.

"A Common Cold"

There are colds that make you snuffle, there are colds that make you
croak;
(Readers who absorb this stuff 'll think that second sort a joke.
But it's liberal.) However, I'll, if I may be so bold,
State that I have never, never, never had a "common cold".

There are colds that make you blearry,
there are colds that make you sneeze;
Colds that merely make you weary, make you snort and puff and wheeze;
But although they come in sequence
you're worn and tired and old,
Smiting with alarming frequency, not one is a "common" cold.

Colds are perfectly abominable, almost and they hurt;
But each one is quite uncommon, as each victim will assert.
Colds are real, colds are earnest, and they can't be cured for gold;
Or all durn colds, mine's the durnest—
it is not a common cold!

I anticipate a crisis shortly in the one
I've got;
Maybe I'll escape the phthisis (which is common) maybe not.
But the Doc, who daily dosses me with pills that he has rolled,
Dies, if once he diagnoses this one as a Common Cold!

The deam of Westminster abbey, tired of looking at some soiled hangings in a seldom used chamber, ordered them cleaned. They proved to be priceless tapestries woven in 1550 by the Belgian master, Bernard van Orley, of Brussels. How they came into the possession of the abbey is unknown. They had suffered from being cut to fit into positions on the walls and from the passage of time. Some of them were so dirty that their subjects are indistinguishable, but the cleaning process restored the original colors and now they may be seen in all their splendor.

DANIELSON

J. E. CARON DIES AS RESULT OF BURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 23.—Joseph Edward Caron, 53, succumbed today to the frightful burns he received when kerosene oil he was handling became ignited when he dropped the glass container on the hot kitchen range at his home on Furnace street late Saturday night. His body was brought here in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mr. Caron is so badly burned about the face as to be unrecognizable. He was a native of Canada, but had been resident in Danielson for years.

Mrs. Caron, also badly burned in the accident that cost her husband his life, was reported as in a somewhat improved condition at the hospital this afternoon, and the daughter, Lillian, also was showing promising improvement.

Great sympathy is being expressed here for the unfortunate family.

STEAM SHOVEL MUST FORD THE QUINEBAUG

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 23.—The strange spectacle of a giant steam shovel wading the shallow waters of the Quinebaug river from a point on the borough farm to a point on the opposite side of the river, south of the Quinebaug mill, may be in the possibilities of the week in Danielson.

The monster shovel, mounted on a caterpillar tractor arrangement, is in the railroad yards here, and is to be used on excavating work incident to the reconstruction of the state highway between Danielson and Brooklyn. Taking it across the Quinebaug bridge in Main street is regarded as a bit hazardous on account of the great weight of the machine, so the alternative of finding a place where it can be driven across the river was to be looked into this afternoon. If the stunt is found feasible, it will be an interesting one to witness and reminiscent of some of the pictured things one has seen tanks doing during the course of the World war. If it cannot be taken across the river, it will be run down to Wauregan, thence over the bridges in that place into the town of Brooklyn and around through Brooklyn village to the place where it is to be used, two miles east of Danielson center.

Grading work for the reconstructed road is to begin at the earliest possible date. Among other things, this will involve a very considerable fill in the vicinity of the Brickyard brook. This fill is incident to taking out some curves at the foot of and near the top of Ledge hill. The new road at this point will run in the rear of the little cottage that stands nearly opposite the brick house at the foot of Ledge hill.

This afternoon at the home near Dayville Four Corners, funeral services for Mrs. Anna J. Perry, widow of John W. Perry, were conducted by Rev. Leonard R. Richards, of St. Alban's church. During the service, Earle F. Winslow and Miss Florence Stott sang Abide With Me and Rock of Ages. Burial was in Dayville cemetery. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Oliver Bassett, Ernest Perry and Henry E. Anderson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

When funeral services were held for her at Foster Center Sunday afternoon, relatives and friends came from many communities to pay final honors to Mrs. Lena M. Simmons, wife of Lester Simmons. More than 100 automobiles were used for transportation to the funeral. The services were conducted by Rev. F. M. Baker, of Anthony, R. I. Members of the North Scituate chapter of the Eastern Star attended in a body and at the grave in the Spears cemetery the ritualistic service of that order was conducted by the worthy matron, Mrs. Elizabeth Burrill, and the worthy matron, John Ray. The bearers were three brothers of Mrs. Simmons—Alnon Howard, William Howard, Everett Howard, and three brother-in-laws, George P. Nichols, Fred Simmons and Frank Brayton. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

In line with its adopted policy of beautifying motoring routes as well as building fine highways, the state highway department is to further extend such activities in this part of the state. Route 12, leading southward out of Danielson, has been selected for the tree planting activities in this section this season. Trees are to be set in along the route between Central Village and southward to Plainfield and beyond. Pretty little wayside parks, such as has been developed near Elmville, also will be built. Such work as is to be done along these lines may be better understood by inspecting what has been done near Elmville. The plan is regarded as a splendid one and certain in due time to make the highway routes especially attractive. Incident to this work, growing trees that are to remain will receive the attention they require for their best development.

Plans that have been prepared for the Blumenthal building to be erected at the corner of Main and Academy streets provide for five stores, three of them on the Main street frontage, the other two on Academy street. Brick and artificial trimming stone is to be used in the building which is to be one story in height, but with walls of sufficiently heavy construction to permit of adding one or two more stories in the future if this should prove desirable and advantageous.

One hears that potato growing is going to play an important part in the crop plans of some farmers in this section during 1928. This particular crop, given a good growing season, is regarded as likely to prove a one so profitable as to make it worth while.

It appears that coal piles along railroad tracks in Danielson and in other places not under close observation have been subjected to more or less raiding recently, if all that one hears can be believed. Those who are said to have been pilfering coal are getting away with in small quantities, always under the cover of night and at a very late hour.

Reports coming from divers sections of Florida, and written by Danielson people who are in the south for the winter, invariably mentioned the marvelous weather being experienced down there just now, some of them comparing to ideal June weather in this section of Connecticut.

Students at the high school are displaying particularly laudable interest in the school orchestra this winter. The organization now numbers twenty members, said to be the largest orchestra in the history of the school.

Radio fans hereabouts have been getting a peculiar reaction from the jazz programs put on the air Sunday nights, largely from stations in the west and southwest. Last night a particularly noisy program, with much hooting and cheering, came over the ether from Fort Worth, Tex. The conservative New Englander listening in finds it difficult to adjust himself to such diversions on the Sabbath.

Movie patrons here and hereabouts showed unusual interest in the showing of the Cat and Canary at the Orpheum theatre.

James Case, of Norwich, is to speak before the members of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce at their February meeting.

Chief John McFarland and Officer John Gebert, who made an unannounced observation of the movement of employes cars from the Main street plant of Powdrell and Alexander found that there was no ground for complaint of careless or reckless driving. The officers have suggested that it would be helpful if an additional street light were installed near the plant.

It has been remarked that this has been a particularly favorable winter for operating the overland mail trucks that run through Danielson on the Worcester-New London route. There has been neither ice nor snow to slow up their schedule and the mails arrive promptly.

County Sealer Gaston A. Maindon was at Goodyear, South Killingly and Central Village today in connection with the duties of his office.

Those who watch for cars from distant states are agreed that long tours are not numerous just now—probably as few as at any time of the year.

Famous French Formula Ends Rheumatism Agony

Perhaps the most famous treatment in the world for rheumatism—one that quickly ends for all time the crippling torture of the disease—is the prescription used at Aix-les-Bains.

During the war soldiers crippled by rheumatism, neuralgia and lumbago were sent to Aix-les-Bains for treatment. An American soldier who saw the almost miraculous relief effected every day begged for the prescription to bring back to the United States.

The fame of the treatment has spread so rapidly the formula has at last been given to the public. You can get it by asking for Dr. Dezupre's Treatment for Rheumatism at any drug store.

PUTNAM HAS NO WELCOME FOR HOBOES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 23—Captain William J. Jarvis of the Putnam police arrested Frank Minor of this city Saturday on a complaint from Mrs. Minor. Minor appeared before Judge Geissler Monday morning in the city court charged with being a common drunkard. Mrs. Minor appeared before the court and testified that her husband had been drunk for a number of days and had been disorderly at home. Captain Jarvis stated that in the future, "hobo" receptions will be no warmer than the one Danielson renders.

The "Little Midshipman," familiar to all lovers of Dickens, may still be seen keeping guard just inside the shop of a firm of nautical publishers in the Minories in London. Dickens described him as a midshipman, but the figure is really that of a naval officer wearing the uniform of Nelson's time and taking an observation. The figure is about two feet high, exquisitely carved in wood and appropriately colored. It is almost a century and a half old. It now bears a brass plate with: "This is the original 'Little Midshipman' immortalized by Charles Dickens in 'Dombey and Son.'"

PROBING SUBMARINE LOSS

The purpose of the resolution introduced by Senator Hale authorizing the president to name a commission to fully investigate the loss of the S-4 was to get an impartial commission and to learn the real facts in the case without bias or departmental influence. It will be a strange view if the senate does not ultimately recognize this and act accordingly, but from the efforts which are being made by the democrats to prevent the adoption of the resolution it would appear that there are those amongst them who seek to play politics with this matter and to get a chance to use the investigation for making an attack upon the administration.

There is of course no justification for any such action. Politics is the last thing that should be allowed to show its head in the inquiry. The disaster should not be allowed to be held up as political bait for the election next November and it will not be if the senate is desirous of getting at the facts and only the facts.

The country has full confidence in such a commission as it can be expected the president would appoint. If there is anything which can be brought to light through an additional investigation it is most certainly desired. If there is any fault in the operation of naval vessels the desire is that it should be known. If there is anything that can be brought to light that will better meet any such emergency in the future it is wanted.

The naval inquiry has been completed and there will be a report within a reasonable time. Regardless of what it may be, an inquiry outside of the navy is desirable. The president has appointed commissions before this where impartiality was desired in the way of a report. He has got the commission and the desired results. That is the outcome that may well be anticipated as the result of the Hale resolution if adopted. It should get favorable action. It is a time when politics ought to be submerged, and it will be no credit to the senate unless it so regards it.

HIRING FIRE PROTECTION

The question as to whether fire protection should be provided by a community or hired from the nearest city is one over which more than one small locality has wrestled.

In these days of motor apparatus, when it is possible for so much effective service to be rendered, even where there is a limited water supply, there is an inclination to own your own. Over in Berlin, Conn., however, fire protection is obtained from New Britain at an expense of $50 an hour. It is possible to get from New Britain to Berlin in a short time but whenever any apparatus may be at work in Berlin it is not available for service where it was intended.

Naturally it is to be expected that Berlin will get service only when it is possible for New Britain to furnish it. The Meriden Journal looks upon the arrangement as a bad one. It takes the view that it would be a costly situation if New Britain should have to face a serious fire when apparatus was engaged in fighting fire in Berlin and maintains that a city's fire department should be restricted to city service except in cases of emergency, when it would be expected to respond to neighboring calls if in condition to do so.

The small community that is dependent upon a neighboring city for its fire service may not be required to spend as much money for it as would be required to establish and maintain a fire department of volunteers, but it would not require many calls during a year to offset such an expense. Yet there would never be that independence that would exist with some fire apparatus of their own. The view that it hinders the progress of a community is unquestionably well taken.

The chance to note the difference in the experience of the community which hires its fire service and that which provides for its own protection will be furnished by a comparison of the results in the several communities throughout the state where communities have taken different courses. Fire conditions are not the same in all of them and not the same in any two years but the tests of the hired or provide-your-own fire protection cannot fail to be watched with keen interest.

ENDURANCE FLIGHTS

There's something to be gained from endurance tests except failures and new records. The desire is, of course, to beat the other fellow, to stay in the air for a longer period of time than anyone else has, but there is also a chance for the testing of airplanes without running the risk that would be involved in covering an equal distance over the water.

We have seen life after life sacrificed in an endeavor to fly from one side of the Atlantic to the other. We have seen the same sacrifices in undertaking much shorter flights along the coast, over the Caribbean sea or from California to Hawaii and we cannot help feeling, without knowing just what happened to cause the losses, that had those flights been undertaken as endurance tests, over a certain locality or across country that the fliers would be here today to give further help in the advancement of aviation.

In Chamberlin's recent attempt he experienced all kinds of trouble. He was able to keep at the effort until the exhaustion of the fuel supply forced him down. He was in a position where he could have made a landing at any time had the character of the difficulties encountered warranted it, something which is not always possible with safety out on the briny.

Crossing the Atlantic is a test of the engine as well as of the aviator. It is a test that is required in order to direct attention to the weaknesses of the machines that needed remedies may be applied in bringing them to perfection. But that test can be furnished through endurance flights with a much better chance of success than in those where the plane which must come down stands little chance of surviving. It is not to be supposed that ocean flying will be stopped, but there is good reason for indulgence in more of the flights which involve a long, tedious circling of certain localities. Incidentally there is the chance to try for the much coveted record.

THE GAS TAX

All highway users of Connecticut are certain to be interested in the statement which has been made by the motor vehicle department to the effect that the gasolene tax for the past year resulted in a revenue of more than $3,000,000. They will be interested not only because they have had a part in contributing to it but because it means that that sum is to be available for the construction and maintenance of Connecticut highways.

This revenue is obtained under a tax of two cents a gallon, a gain of a million above the estimate in the two years and the expectations are that with the increased use of highways, the gain in automobiles, busses and trucks that there will be a continuance of that increase in the present year.

Whether this has any effect upon the next legislature with the view of a reduction in the tax will depend to a large extent upon the desire for the continued improvement of the state highway system. Through this tax those who use the roads, those who make the strongest demands for the modern highways, are contributing to their own good cause. The gasolene tax has always been recognized as a legitimate method of getting revenue for better roads. It places no heavy burden upon those who are benefited it means that only those who use the roads are taxed for that purpose but it assures those who pay that they are going to be directly helped in return. The larger the amount paid the greater the benefits in new construction or in the character of the maintenance. How thoroughly the gasoline tax is endorsed is shown by the fact that there are but two states in the whole country which have not adopted it, and one of those is wavering.

KEEP RESERVES INTACT

Just how much worrying has been done because of the claim that the supply of oil was limited, or how many have participated in such worrying is a question. They will nevertheless be much relieved to learn in spite of the claims which have been made to the contrary, that Secretary Work of the department of the interior now makes the statement that there is no prospect of an oil famine.

It is not improbable that the time will come when petroleum will approach the point of exhaustion, but there are other sources for motor fuel of such extent as to make possible the claim that there will be sufficient for all demands for centuries to come. This will involve the use of different methods in getting such fuel, for the oil would have to be obtained from shale, from coal and lignite but even after those days come there's reason to expect that new methods will so add to the supply as to more than keep up with the consumption.

Because it is estimated that there is no end in sight for motor fuel does not mean, of course, that there should be a policy of waste concerning it. There is good and sufficient reason for insisting upon conservation, for prolonging the supply of petroleum just as long as possible before resorting to substitutes. That is in fact just what the secretary is advocating for he considers the other sources as reserves and wants to keep them as such without tapping them until an exhaustion of other supplies makes it necessary. Elimination of waste will help to keep such a date far away in the future and elimination of waste will likewise work to the financial advantage of the consumer.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—It has been a week of exceptional excitement at the capitol, the uncalled for, rampant tirade of Heflin against the Catholic church being the main feature of what might be called "a three ring circus," so far as the principal offender was concerned. Heflin went beyond every bound of decency or dignity, in fact those words do not seem to exist in the Alabama senator's knowledge of the English language. Heflin shouted that the cross on the chaplain's flag, that flies over war ships during a religious service, no matter of what denomination, "was the sign and emblem of Romanism" and called on the congress to have "them take down their sign and hang it somewhere else." He shook his fist in the face of senators, called them "cowards," daring them to oppose him. Later he threatened to "have it out" with any newspaper correspondent who dared attack him, and thus the tirade ran on, hour after hour, holding up all legitimate business of the senate.

To be sure Senator Robinson, democratic floor leader, tore the accusations of Heflin into fragments in his eloquent retort, but the taint of the Heflin sacreligious tirade still linggers in the senate chamber. That the senate was in full sympathy with Robinson in his rebuke of Heflin was fully shown when a vote of the democratic senators upheld Robinson in his fine leadership, but even that did not faze the Alabama senator, who still keeps the ball rolling.

Following the Heflin episode, or, perhaps it were better to say during short intervals between its "spells," Senator Swanson, democrat, blocked the efforts of the administration to have an investigation of the disaster to the S-4, insisting the democrats of the senate should have a leading part in it. And thus the week went on.

Members of the senate are heaving mighty loud sighs these days, on both sides of the chamber, for not only is Heflin's re-election probable, but the loudest and longest and most bitter speaker on the democratic side of the house, Mr. Blanton, of Texas, has announced that he will run for the senate this fall. The prospect of team work between Heflin and Blanton, does not spell quick action or satisfactory results to experienced senators, no matter on which side of the chamber they sit. Republicans frankly say they see the truth of the old adage, "Every cloud has its silver lining," for although they have their own troubles with insurgent republicans, they are not responsible for the endless and tiresome tirades of Heflin and Blanton.

Congressman Tilson of Connecticut has introduced a bill in the house to standardize and regulate the manufacture and sale of weights and measures. The laws of the 48 states vary to such a degree that a manufacturer has to adjust his machine to meet those different requirements. There is of course a fixed standard under which a pound is a pound, but there is of necessity some variations in different machines. Some states allow certain variations, which would be unlawful in other states, and it is to prevent such difficulty and to protect both manufacturers and buyers, that the Tilson bill was introduced. Col. Tilson, the bureau of standards, and sealers of weights and measures representing all states, agree as to the wisdom of such standardization. Some types of machines lend themselves quite readily to fraud and deceit, and standardization would be a great service to the manufacturers as well as a protection to the public.

Col. Tilson has received some protests against the bill, on the ground that it would give the bureau of standards authority to use the metric system, but Tilson does not so interpret the bill, adding, "If I find that is the case, I shall so amend it as to leave no doubt, for I am not in favor of the metric system."

The republican campaign election committee of the senate is this year composed of seven senators, whose duty it will be to keep a sharp oversight of the elections in those states, with a view of assisting in the election of senators of the republican party.

The committee consists of Metcalf, Rhode Island, chairman; Pipps, Colorado; Deneen, Illinois; Gillett, Massachusetts; McMasters, South Dakota; McNary, Oregon and Pine, Oklahoma. In the house a committee of 48 representing each state is named. When a state has no bi-partisan representation in that body a man or woman representing such state, and prominent in politics is selected as a member of the committee.

In this instance Connecticut, having a full republican delegation, Mrs. Hiram T. Maxim has been chosen its representative by Chairman Oldfield of the democratic congressional committee.

The democrats of the senate have not completed their list. Gerry of Rhode Island, who has long served as chairman, will not be eligible for that position this year, as he comes up for re-election and under the rule of that committee, cannot be placed on the committee.

Floor Leader Tilson is the Connecticut member of the republican committee, with the added prestige of being its first vice president and will probably be in charge of the republican campaign in the east, with headquarters in New York, the same as in the 1924 election.

New England has carried off the honors in sub-committee assignments in the senate, after also having held high place in the major committee assignments as announced soon after congress convened. Senator McLean declined to have that additional work put on his shoulders so the Connecticut appointments on sub committees are confined to Senator Bingham. The appropriation committee of the senate handles the matter of appropriations for running the entire United States government, amounting to something over $2,000,000,000 and covering every department of the government. On the following sub-committees of the appropriations, Senator Bingham has been given a high position—department of agriculture; legislative establishment, commerce and labor; treasury, and post office. These are in addition to the full committee appointments of Senator Bingham.

A high tribute to the memory of a New England man may come about through the intention of the war department to substitute the name of Gen. Leonard Wood for the Camp Mead military reservation in Maryland. This would be a fitting tribute, so admirers of Wood maintain, and the war department is friendly to the suggestion of thus recognizing the distinguished services of the late Gen. Wood.

Regulations prescribe that permanent military posts be designated as "forts" while stations temporarily occupied are, or maybe called "camps." The Maryland camp could be called "Fort Leonard Wood," according to the spirit of the regulation, so it is claimed, and if that can be properly done, there seems but little doubt but what the late general will be commemorated by his name being given the Maryland post. Gen. Wood was born in New Hampshire and although his army life compelled him to live elsewhere practically all his mature life, he was devoted to New England and its interests and kept a warm personal friendship with many New Englanders.

The women of the Connecticut congressional delegation have had an active week socially, both in the way of entertaining and being entertained at brilliant functions.

Mrs. John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, wife of the republican leader of the house, is extremely popular in the congressional set, and in demand at official social functions. Last Monday Mrs. Tilson poured at the big tea given at the George Washington inn by the congressional ladies living at that hotel, and on Tuesday assisted the New York congressional ladies living at the Mayflower at a large reception given by them and at which Mrs. Jardine, wife of the secretary of agriculture, also assisted.

Mrs. Tilson and Mrs. E. Hart Fenn poured at the large tea given to the ladies of the cabinet by the League of Republican Women; Mrs. Fenn was also hostess at two bridge parties and gave a beautiful luncheon this week at which covers were laid for 12.

Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham were among the guests at the dinner given by Secretary of the Interior Work in honor of Vice President and Mrs. Dawes. Other matters of Connecticut social interest included a large at home given by Mrs. Charles Broughton Wood.

Mrs. John Q. Tilson, was a guest at the luncheon given last week in honor of Mrs. William Howard Taft, by Miss Mary Temple. The table was laid for 22 and the guests included women distinguished in the congressional and residential circles of the capital.

BOEUF A LA-MAISON

When Patricia Farley married Clifford Bruns she swore a solemn oath. To make it even more binding, she put it in writing and deposited the document in her safety deposit box, as she called the cardboard holy of holies in her bureau drawer, which contained Clifford's letters and a fading morsel of what had once been a sprig of mignonette.

The oath was that never, so long as the gustatory welfare of Clifford was among her responsibilities, would she fail to see that each meal set before him was composed of fresh material specially purchased for that meal. The shadow of hash, she vowed, would never darken the threshold of their love nest. Meat loaf would never raise its ugly head between them. And as for bread pudding—there would be no bread pudding complication to mar their happiness—not even in the subtlest disguise.

Patricia knew all about the influence of left-overs on marital happiness. Her father's fits of temper following a dinner of cold meat and heated-over vegetables had been among the most unpleasant of her childhood's memories. How she, herself, had come to hate these tasteless messes that served as irritating tributes to her mother's sense of economy!

Let that dash indicate the passage of two years. In fact, it is now the second anniversary of the marriage of Patricia Farley and Clifford Bruns. It is distressing to report that all is not serene in the bungalow wherein Mr. and Mrs. Bruns seek the elusive bubble of happiness. Nine o'clock in the morning of that anniversary which should have been so gay and carefree finds Patricia Farley Bruns in tears. The heartless Clifford has gone for a walk around the block, to cool off his temper. In a moment of unbridled rage he called his dear little wife—the words cannot, alas, be recalled—"an extravagant woman."

Why, he lamented as he bit his lip, had she chosen this morning to show him those unfortunate bills? Only yesterday he had come to the sad realization that if they did not do some serious retrenching there was going to be severe difficulty in making both ends meet. Those bills were staggering! They were preposterous! Outrageous!

He would have to talk seriously to Patricia. He would have to explain that household economy was an important and as exact a science as business economy. He must not let sentiment stand in the way. He must be firm, uncompromising, explicit.

He rehearsed his speech as he turned into the walk that led to their door. "There must be absolutely no waste in your kitchen," he said, with the definiteness of a military commander. "I believe that the weak spot is entirely in your household. This extravagance must stop right here and now." And he pounded an imaginary table as he came to the door and threw it open.

She was so pretty as she sat there in her morning gown with the light on her golden hair. And she was crying; he had hurt her. He said none of the things he had intended to say. Instead he gathered her in his arms and begged her forgiveness.

"Put on your best dress," he said "We're going out for luncheon at the very swellest hotel in town. I almost forgot what day it was."

Patricia was all smiles again by the time she found herself seated at a table for two next to one of the windows of the famous "vista room." She chatted merrily as Clifford scanned a menu and prepared to write his order.

"We must order something we specially like to eat—but it mustn't be extravagant, must it, Clifford?" she said mischievously.

"The sky's the limit today," said Clifford. "Just have anything your fancy desires. I'm doing the same. My mouth's been watering for some of this boeuf a la maison for weeks. I always order it when I come here. It's certainly a wonderful dish."

"I think I shall have broiled lobster," said Patricia, and Clifford smiled at her indulgently. "Great!" he said. "But I'll stick to my boeuf."

The waiter brought their orders steaming under gleaming covers. Patricia wriggled expectantly as he unveiled her lobster. Then she glanced over to see what Clifford's favorite dish might be and froze.

It was plain corned-beef hash!

"Clifford," said Patricia, as they walked down the boulevard after their luncheon, "I'm sorry that I have been so extravagant. But I think I see a way out."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The National Council of State Legislators, which has been organized to oppose any step in congress or state legislatures to depart from constitutional government or "that tends toward a destruction of states' rights in an alleged interest of progress," has selected as its first president, John Henry Kirby of Houston, Texas, for many years a progressive leader in the southwest. Mr. Kirby is a Texan born and educated, and a lawyer by calling, who was soon drawn away from lawbooks and clients to lumbering. For more than forty years he has owned and developed huge tracts of timber in Texas, as well as administered large investments of northern capitalists in the same kind of property. During the war his services were enlisted by the federal government to aid the Emergency Fleet Corporation in the production, storage and distribution of lumber.

YOUR HEALTH

YOUR HEART AND YOUR HEALTH

By H. H. Hines, M. D., Cincinnati, Member Gorgas Memorial.

Disease of the heart and blood vessels have become the giant problem in disease prevention. One-fourth of all deaths are due to their ravages. Their death toll is four times that of tuberculosis. It nearly equals the combined mortality of tuberculosis, pneumonia, kidney diseases, influenza, typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria and scarlet fever.

Heart disease respects no age group. One child in every 150 has an impaired heart. The disease apparently strikes its victim down suddenly and swiftly, but as a matter of fact it comes on insidiously and usually kills slowly. In many cases there is a history of infection early in life, from diseased tonsils, carious teeth, the poisons of diphtheria, scarlet fever, and other infectious diseases, which attacks the lining of the heart, the valves and adjacent blood vessels.

This greatest single cause of death cuts off its victims before the half-way station in the normal expectancy of life is reached. For a long period of years before the end, more than 2,000,000 people in our country are incapacitated more or less in the pursuit of life's activities. Twenty-five per cent. of the persons attending the city dispensaries have heart disease. Ten per cent of the total bed capacity in hospitals is given over to the care of heart cases.

This gloomy picture is painted for a purpose. The public must be made aware of the alarming ravages of heart disease. Therein lies the beginning of hope for the future control of the disease. To know the extent and dangers of heart disease is the inspiration to watchful care to prevent it and the correction of conditions which increase the rapidity of its progress among those who are already afflicted.

Obviously, heart disease can best be prevented or cured in childhood. Any acute infectious disease or diseased tonsils or decayed teeth should have prompt attention to prevent heart damage. Careful examination of the heart by a competent physician should never be neglected. Heart abnormalities of whatever character require close supervision of the ordinary activities of life with regular rest period, unstimulating diet, and correct health habits.

Adults should avoid as far as possible the over-stress and strain of the increasing complexities of modern living. We work too hard. We play too hard. Too many men in middle life think they are iron men and indulge too strenuously in golf, tennis and polo. They cannot compete with younger men and women in outdoor games very long. The heart won't stand it. Comes a day of overstrain, a sudden dilatation of weakened heart muscle, and it is all over.

Business worries, anxieties born of hectic strivings after whatever prizes our ultra-modern civilization holds out in lure, overfeeding, over-mental and physical stimulation, late hours, insufficient rest, all these are increasing the toll of heart disease.

Be on your guard. Rest more. Quit fretting. Have your physician examine your heart at least twice a year. Be guided by what he tells you of the limit of strain your heart will stand.

Stories That Recall Others

He Did Not Choose

John, age 12, was having his fortune told at a children's party.

"You will travel a great deal," said the "gypsy."

"Gee, that's great!"

"And—you may be president some day," she continued.

"No—" regretted young John, "I have other plans!"

Perfectly Frank

Little Benny was a great Sunday school goer. One day the superintendent of the school requested that all the pupils bring their parents to visit at the next meeting. Benny at once began to pester his mother about going, and as a subterfuge, she once told him that she had no nice clothes to wear. The following Sunday the class gathered, but none of the parents were to be seen. Thinking it rather strange, the superintendent asked some of them why they had come alone. Here, Benny snapped his fingers vigorously.

"What is it?" asked the superintendent.

"Mama ain't got anything fit to wear," he declares excitedly.

Protecting the Laurels.

In Connecticut a lady has been arrested charged with illegally transporting some laurel bushes. Leaving aside the question whether or not she is guilty of violating the existing law, it is encouraging to note that serious efforts are being made to protect the more valuable wild flowers and shrubs.

In several states laws have been passed for the purpose of conserving wild plant life. Special efforts have been made to shield delicate plants like the arbutus, some of the trilliums, the lady's slippers, the gentians and other similar flowers. At the same time campaigns have been conducted to arouse public opinion to protect native holly and evergreens against the depredations of persons seeking Christmas decorations.

Unfortunately, the efforts to enforce the laws for the protection of nature have not kept pace with the despoilers. If only other states would follow Connecticut's example and punish violators, much would be done for the preservation for future generations of our rarer specimens of plant life.—New York Times.

Headaches and nervousness and other troubles far remote from the eyes are oft-times the direct result of an eye strain, which if corrected with the proper glass, would give immediate relief. It is not necessary for the eye to be sore to indicate their need of glasses. In many cases the eye may be perfectly healthy but glasses may be needed for the reasons which are only apparent to the physician or skilled oculist.

Caution about the Use and Selection of Spectacles

Persons having normal vision will be able to read this print at a distance of 14 inches from the eyes with ease and comfort; also will be able to read it with each eye separately. If unable to do so your eyes are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes become tired from reading or sewing, or if the letters look blurred and run together, it is a sure indication that glasses are needed. The lenses sold by the cheap goods are of unequal density and have imperfectly formed surfaces. Continued use of these poorer lenses will result in positive injury from the constant strain upon the muscles of accommodation to supply the defects in the glass.

Rugg. The inquest was set for a hearing Saturday in district court before Judge Jacob Asher.

Miss Pinault, an attendant at the Worcester State hospital, was almost instantly killed when the automobile in which she was riding overturned at Shrewsbury. This caused the automobile to overturn. It was claimed James T. Carrigan and Joseph Langlois were in the machine with Miss Pinault at the time but neither was seriously hurt. MR. AND MRS. HERBERT WHITAKER DROWNED WITH THEIR FIVE CHILDREN WHEN AUTO WENT OFF BRIDGE

Machine Collided With Motorcycle Driven By Harris Preston on Preston Bridge Over Shetucket River—Bodies of Father and Mother and Three Children Recovered—Motorcycle Driver Is In Hospital With Broken Leg—Dragging River To Recover Bodies of Other Two Children.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Whitaker and their five children were drowned shortly after 7 o'clock Monday night when the Dodge touring car they were riding in plunged over Preston bridge and into the Shetucket river, 35 feet below, after a collision with a motorcycle driven by Harris Preston, 17, of Hamilton avenue. They were drowned like rats in a trap without even a fighting change for their lives. Young Preston was badly injured about the left leg and was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital in the police patrol. George Jennings, 18, also of Hamilton avenue, who was riding in the motorcycle side car, escaped uninjured, and went to his home shortly afterwards. He was apparently suffering from nervous shock.

Rescue Crews to The Scene.

The police, fire, street and gas and electric departments rushed rescue crews to the scene at once, but the trapped family drowned before the submerged machine could be raised to the surface of the water. Everything possible to aid them was done, but the brief interval between the time of the accident and the hurried arrival of rescue crews spelled death for the unfortunate family. Five of the bodies, those of Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker and three of their children, were recovered. An intensive search was kept up throughout the night for the two missing bodies, both boys, 10 and 3 years of age respectively.

Whole Family In Machine.

Mr. Whitaker, who has been employed by Frank E. Peckham, well known local gardner, as foreman, left his home on Corning road with his family about 7 o'clock. They were riding in Mr. Peckham's Dodge touring car which they had used on numerous occasions, on little excursions around the city. Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker occupied the second floor of Mr. Peckham's residence on Corning road. It was a happy family that drove from their home for an evening's pleasure drive. A few minutes later death had wiped out the entire family.

Collision With Motorcycle.

Just what caused the accident could not be ascertained Monday night Mr. Whitaker, heading towards Franklin square, was driving across the bridge when the motorcycle, coming from the opposite direction, and the touring car crashed. The crash occurred about 100 feet from the Preston end of the bridge. The touring car shot to the left across the bridge, and crashed through the iron railing, and into the river.

Machine Turned Over.

The machine, which was equipped with a winter top, landed upside down in the river and was entirely submerged. The depth of the water at that point in the river is 10 or 12 feet.

No eye witness, with the exception of young Preston and Jennings, could be located Monday night. Jennings could give little or no explanation as to the cause of the crash. He was riding in the sidecar, with his coat collar turned up about his face. It is said. He did not know what caused the motorcycle and touring car to collide. All he knew was that there was a crash and the automobile went over the bridge.

Taken To Hospital.

The police were immediately notified and Sergt. John T. Casey ordered the patrol wagon to the scene at once. Preston was found with a badly injured left leg and he was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital in the patrol wagon.

The fire department, street department, and gas and electric departments of the city rushed rescue crews to the scene as soon as word of the accident was received. Chief Howard L. Stanton, Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft, Lieut. Robert Woodmansee and a crew of firemen hurried to the bridge, as did Street Commissioner John C. Donovan, employees of the street department, William W. Carrigan, of the city's gas and electrical department, and employes of the department. The latter department also despatched several of their large trucks. Selectman William S. Murray also wen to the place of the accident.

Despite the almost instantaneous response by the city's departments to the call for help, nothing could be done to save the trapped family from drowning. Life was snuffed from their bodies during the few minutes' interval between the time of the accident and the arrival of the rescue crews.

Rowboats Called For.

A call for rowboats was sent out and two were quickly on the scene. John L. Uterstaedt furnished one boat and Carl Spaulding a second. Volunteer workers in the boats included Charles F. Lawton, Joe Chopotte, Edward Carey, James Barry, John L. Uterstaedt and Carl Spaulding.

While employes of the gas and electric department were hooking up a high powered electric light, the rescue crews worked over the submerged machine with the aid of light thrown on the water by hand searchlights from the bridge. Lieut. Robert Woodmansee of the fire department aided the boat crews by lighting up the river surface with one of the department's hand electric torchlights. Street Commissioner Donovan and others used electric flashlights to aid the workers in the boats.

Headlights Burned Under Water

Although the machine was entirely submerged both the headlights and taillight were still burning as the rescuers were attaching ropes to the machine.

The boat crews succeeded in attaching a rope to the auto and an attempt was made to drag the machine to the shore of the river. The rope broke. Then one of the gas and electric trucks equipped with a derrick was pressed into service. It was backed to the edge of the bridge and a steel cable attached to the machine.

Mother's Body Floated Out

Then the machine was raised to the surface of the water so that the bodies could be removed. As the machine was being raised Mrs. Whitaker's body floated from beneath the machine. Clasped in her arms was the body of her six month's old infant, Elaine. The boat crews succeeded in grasping the body of the infant but the woman's body floated away from them, carried by the strong current, and disappeared in the darkness.

Bodies Recovered

At about the same time the bodies of the other two small girls, Dorothy 9 and Lucille, 7, were recovered. A few minutes later, Mr. Whitaker's body was removed from the front end of the tonneau. The bodies were taken to the east shore where they were viewed by Medical Examiner C. C. Glidersleeve, and immediately taken by Undertaker C. A. Gager to his undertaking rooms on Franklin street.

Sergt. Myron O. Morgan of the local police department continued dragging for the two bodies until about 1.30 o'clock this morning. He found Mrs. Whitaker's body about 11 o'clock about 50 feet from the submerged machine.

No attempt was made to raise the machine to the bridge Monday night, owing to low hanging wires running close to the bridge railing and after the bodies had been recovered, the machine was lowered into the river. An attempt to raise it will be made today (Tuesday).

F. E. Peckham's Automobile

At the time of the crash no one could throw any light into the identity of the machine. All that was known about it was that it contained several people. The boat crews secured the registration number L-626 and a telephone call to the state motor vehicle department at Hartford, resulted in the information that the machine was registered in the name of Frank E. Peckham of Corning road.

A visit to Mr. Peckham's home was made in order to ascertain the names of the people in the car, if possible. It was learned there that Mr. Peckham is in Maine. Mrs. Peckham stated that Mr. Whitaker had left the house with the machine about 7 o'clock. As only three bodies of the five children in the family had been recovered inquiry was made as to whether Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker had all five of the children with them. There was no one in the Whitaker apartment and none of the children had been left with any of the neighbors. Mrs Peckham said that Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker always took all five children with them when they left in the machine. In her opinion all five children were in the machine.

Guard on the Bridge

The section of the bridge where the iron railing was smashed was roped off and the crowds that gathered as news of the accident spread, were ordered off the bridge in order to give the rescue crews space in which to work, and also as a precaution against further accidents.

The W. W. Backus hospital ambulance was sent to the scene but was not needed as the Preston boy was taken to the hospital in the police patrol and the trapped family were beyond all human aid.

About 1.30 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning the search for the missing children was abandoned for the night.

The bodies of the drowned persons were identified at Undertaker Gager's funeral parlors by relatives and friends of the deceased.

The Preston boy was reported at an early hour this (Tuesday) morning as resting as comfortably as possible. His left thigh was bruised and crushed and badly swollen. He is suffering from shock also.

Mr. Whitaker had been employed as foremen by Frank E. Peckham for about seven or eight years. About 15 years ago he was united in marriage with Amelia LaValle in this city. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Whitaker and was born in England, coming here with his parents at an early age. He is survived by his mother, now residing in New Haven, a brother, Raymond Whitaker of New Haven and two sisters, Mrs. George Houston and Mrs. Albert Harkness of New Haven.

SUSTAINED APPEAL FROM REGULATIONS ON ZONING

As no opposition was offered, the appeal of Edwin F., and Ruth M. Colt, from the ruling of Selectman William S. Murray on their application for a permit to erect a garage, was sustained Monday morning by the joint town and city zoning board of appeals. Selectman Murray declined to grant them a permit to erect a garage at their premises, No. 262 Washington street as the proposed location of the garage was contrary to the provisions of the zoning ordinances. It was found by the board that the erection of the garage within two and a half feet of the side boundary line of the property would not work hardship on any one and the petition was granted.

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS TACKLE TOUGH TEAM IN MANCHESTER RECS TONIGHT

Crescents		Manchester Rec
Dissinger, lf		lf, Mantelli
Normandin, rf		rf, Faulkner
Harris, c		c, Norris
Murphy, lg		lg, Balseiper
Eccleston, rg		rg, Madden

The Taftville Crescents appear to have one of the most promising tilts of the season scheduled for th's evening at Parish hall in the strong Manchester Recs. With both clubs fortified to the limit it looks like a great evening for the basketball fans.

Dissinger With Taftville

The Crescents will be strengthened tonight by Roy Dissinger of the Plainfield Pros. Brown, regular forward, will be unable to play but the Crescent's management went out and secured the Plainfield star to bolster the team for the strong assault that the Recs are expected to make. Dissinger and Mondi Normandin ought to team up well as they have done at Plainfield.

The Recs will have Hap Madden and Roy Norris of the Pros in addition to several members of All-Manchester which team holds the only decision this season over the Crescents on their home floor.

The Crescents, in their endeavor to provide the local fans with only the best of games, appear to have a real gem set for this evening and no doubt a packed house will greet this game.

Recs Strong Five

The Manchester team is without doubt the strongest team to come to Taftville this year. This team has been operating for many years and this year, with most of the boys starting as All-Manchester they traveled Connecticut and Massachusetts and established a wonderful rep. receiving favorable comment from sports writers wherever they played.

One of the twins was over the Crescents in Taftville Christmas day, 27 to 22. With Norris and Madden to bolster the team, no doubt they can give Taftville even more of a battle this time.

However, Taftville is not to be caught flat-footed. In Dissinger she has a real help-mate for Normandin and these two players will, no doubt, give Manchester real trouble throughout. Normandin and Dissinger have played together for many seasons and this experience ought to stand them in good stead this evening. Roland Harris at center will have a tough one in Norris this evening but it is expected that Harris will keep up his fine play shown so far this year. Capt. Eccleston and Jim Murphy will be counted on strongly to help Taftville in large measure this evening.

Gauthier and Coleman will be held in reserve for Taftville while Farr, Manchester High star last season, will be the visitor's first-line sub. In the preliminary, the Taftville Whirlwinds will meet the Baltic Mystery Five in what shapes up as a fast little amateur clash.

Bourdon's orchestra of Taftville will furnish music for the dancing which follows the main game.

Crescents Play Thrice This Week.

In addition to tonight's game with the Manchester Recs at Parish hall, the Taftville Crescents have two more games this week, thereby comprising the stiffest week's work that the local quintet has faced in some time.

Thursday night the Crescents go to Southbridge, Mass., to meet the team of that place. Southbridge beat Danielson early in the season, it will be remembered.

Saturday evening the Crescents will play Battery E at Westerly. To win all three of these games would give the Crescents' stock a big boost.

AETNA TEAM IN TIE FOR SECOND PLACE

By taking three points from the Lawrence five at New London Monday evening the Aetna five went into a tie for second place in the Eastern Connecticut bowling league with the Niantic team. With the exception of the second string the Aetna team had things pretty much their own way. Harold Hull had high three with 332 and Havens of the Lawrence team took high single with 116. The score:

NEW LONDON FIGHTS DRAW CONSIDERABLE LOCAL INTEREST

The fights slated for the Lyceum theatre at New London on Wednesday evening are drawing considerable interest in Norwich, largely owing to the fact that Young Pecheeni, a popular local boy, is appearing on the card against Jack O'Keefe, of Hartford, in one of the eight round all-star bouts. Pecheeni is stepping out against a fast boy and a victory means more fights in the state and a chance at some real money.

Other bouts on the card include Bobby Mays vs. Tom Kerakas, Sid Taylor vs. Sailor Darden, colored welterweight champion, Pete Aquinaldi vs. Mickey Connelly, the prototype of Terry McGovern.

"TECH TWINS" LEAD HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL SCORERS

Scotty McKelvie, Chapman Tech forward center, furnished last week's features among eastern Connecticut's four large high schools and gained considerably on Bill Nield, the Tech captain and forward. These "Tech twins" now are well ahead of the rest of the pack in scoring, Nield with 103 points on 43 field goals and 17 fouls for first place and McKelvie in second position with 79 points on 35 field goals and 9 fouls. However, their abundance of points is due to Chapman having played ten games while Windham has played five, Stonington six and the Academy but four. Les Pingree has the highest percentage per game, having scored 48 points in 4 games, an average of 12 a game. Nield has 10.3 for an average per game while McKelvie has 7.9.

Les Pingree, Academy center, gained slightly on Saba of Windham but the end of the week still found Saba in third place, with 53 points and Pingree fourth with 48. Bobby Cragan, Stonington captain rounds out the select five with 36 points. Bryer of Stonington sprinted a bit during the week and landed in sixth place with 28 points.

For teams Windham did the most creditable work in beating its old rival, South Manchester. Chapman Tech, won two games, from Pratt and Stonington while the Academy lost once, to Wilby and Stonington lost twice, to the Coast Guard Seconds and Chapman Tech. Chapman has high scoring honors with 260 points while the Academy still boasts the best defensive mark. Summary:

DELANEY NOT TO FIGHT AGAIN UNTIL FEB. 6TH

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 23—(AP)—Jack Delaney will not fight again until February 6, the former light heavyweight champion announced tonight, upon his return from a visit to his parents in Holyoke.

"I was never matched to meet Battling Levinsky in Pittsburgh on Friday night," he declared, "and my bout with Jack Warren in Elizabeth, N. J., on February 3, is also off."

Who Delaney's opponent will be on February 6, and where the fight would be staged, could not be learned.

While not wishing to start an argument with Heeney, the belting beauty asked "What business is it of Heeney's if I fight every week? I keep in training that way."

Heeney, through his manager, yesterday, declared that he would appeal to the New York state athletic commission to prevent the Bridgeporter from fighting what he terms "set-ups" between now and March 1, as the New Zealander fears that Delaney may receive an injury and that the interest in the forthcoming Delaney-Heeney scrap scheduled for the garden on March 1, would be lessened.

DELANEY FILES CHALLENGE WITH NATIONAL B. A.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, one of the principals in the present heavyweight elimination series, has filed a challenge with the National Boxing association to box Champion Gene Tunney and it has been accepted, Joe Jacobs, Delaney's manager, announced here tonight.

The national boxing group, covers 26 states. Delaney will demand an immediate bout with Tunney, without further eliminations, in the event he knocks out Tom Heeney on March 1, Jacobs said.

Jacobs stated he had signed Delaney to oppose Leo Gates, New York heavyweight, at Rochester on Feb. 13 and for another bout against Jack McAuliffe, 2nd, of Detroit at New Haven on Feb. 20. Delaney is down to box Battling Levinsky at Motor Square Garden in Pittsburgh on Feb. 6.

Last week, Jack Sharkey, another heavyweight contender, challenged Tunney through the New York state athletic commission. The New York

DONOHUE NAMES LOGICAL CONTENDERS FOR TITLE

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 23—(AP)—The honor roll of logical contenders, from which three world champions must pick opponents for title fights before Feb. 16 or be declared null and void by the National Boxing association, was disclosed today by Thomas E. Donohue, head of the fistic union that controls boxing in 26 member states.

Failure to fight at championship weight within the past six months brought warning of N. B. A. discipline to Mickey Walker, head of the middleweight division, Joe Dundee, welterweight king, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight titleholder ten days ago. Amplifying the earlier statement the association's executive served notice today that recognition will be given only to bouts "to a decision, at the stipulated poundage in each class, with certain men recognized by the association as challengers."

Middleweights named as foremost contenders for Walker's title are Jack McVey, New York negro; Dave Shade, of California; Joe Anderson, of Kentucky; George Courtney, Oklahoma cowboy; and the winner of the match now pending here between K. O. Phil Kaplan and Maxie Rosenbloom, both of New York.

Dundee may choose his challenger from a list including Sergeant Sammy Baker, Army warrior; Ace Hudkins, of Omaha, Neb.; Tommy Freeman, Hot Springs, Ark.; Hilario Martinez, of Spain; and My Sullivan, Minneapolis welterweight.

Contenders for Sammy Mandell's crown are Sid Terris, New York; Billy Wallace, of Cleveland; Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn.; Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express", and two New York youngsters, Bruce Flowers, negro, and Joey Kaufman.

While President Donohue said the association expects each champion will sign for defense of his title, "exhibiting to the boxing world his individual sincerity regarding his crown." He called upon promoters in every state, irrespective of affiliation with the N. B. A., to "cooperate in settlement of the contending controversies by matching the nominees in the three divisions."

"The issue is quite clear and needs no further elucidation," he said. "The National Boxing association will not recognize bouts with any other but the men named in each division as championship contests, unless one or more of the men named is eliminated by one of the other men named."

INVITATIONS FOR REGATTA AT POUGHKEEPSIE OUT

NEW YORK Jan. 23—(AP)—Invitations to seven non-member institutions to participate in the 1928 intercollegiate championship regatta at Poughkeepsie, June 19, were sent out today by Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the board of stewards of the intercollegiate rowing association.

The invitations were forwarded to Leland Stanford, University of California, University of Washington, Wisconsin, Princeton, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Naval Academy.

Stanford has not competed in the Poughkeepsie regatta since 1915 and is not expected to take part this year unless there is a revival of rowing by the Cardinals.

Princeton and M. I. T. have never taken part in the regatta. The Tigers are not likely to do so this year, in spite of some strong sentiment in favor of it, but there is a possibility that M. I. T. will enter. Tech has made rapid strides in rowing in recent years, defeating Cornell and Harvard, among others.

If Wisconsin's 1927 Freshman crew, regatta participant, develops satisfactorily, the Badgers may return to varsity competition.

The Navy, Washington and California, which furnished the chief competition for Columbia's championship eight last June, all are expected to return to Poughkeepsie, especially as these three also have their eyes on the Olympic tryouts.

JONES NOT TO DEFEND HIS SOUTHERN TITLE

ATLANTA, Jan. 23. (AP)—Announcement that he will not defend his southern open golf title this year, was made today by Bobby Jones, who in addition is the British open and national amateur champion.

This announcement was made while the date and place of this year's open is still a matter of speculation, the local sponsors of the tournament in 1927 when Bobby won the crown, having definitely voted not to sponsor it this year.

"It is not that I can't take a few days off from my business and play in the tournament," Bobby said in making known his decision, "for that only takes a few days or possibly a week. But if I enter a tournament, I want to be in tip top shape and to do this requires at least a month's hard practice—and I'm not even playing golf once a week at the present time."

As for his tournament plans this year, Bobby said that he contemplated entering only the two major American tournaments, the national open and the national amateur, reiterating his previous declaration that he would not journey to England to defend the British open.

Interscholastic Sports

Windham meets Killingly at Danielson tonight.

Putnam plays Tourtellotte High, the team that the Academy beat in overtime, tonight.

The Academy is as yet undecided as whether to book the Bulkeley independents for this Saturday. It has been suggested that this game be saved for the final clash of the season.

Instead, the C. F. C. is being talked of as the Red and White's opponent for this week and that game ought to pack them in.

In the list of those receiving baseball letters at the Academy Friday the names of Bill Tirrell and Manager Lawrence "Beck" Gilman were omitted by error.

Chapman Tech meets Saybrook High tonight at New London and it looks like another win for Tech, Saybrook fell at the hands of the Whalers early in the season at Saybrook.

With the settlement of the Wilby date for May 4, the Academy baseball schedule is now complete with 22 games and all that is needed is for the gentle notes of spring.

Windham meets Torrington High Friday night at Willimantic and the Thread City crew should have another win for Torrington this year is not the Torrington of two seasons ago or even of last year.

The Academy sure is missing plenty of chances to score via the foul route this season. Again Saturday night they were "off" at this game.

Wilby on Friday night beat Warren Harding 24 to 13 and then by coming here and trimming the Academy they ran their total number of points necessary for admission to the Yale tournex to 30.

SPEAKER MUST ACCEPT SALARY CUT IF HE WOULD REMAIN WITH SENATORS

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23—(AP)—Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Americans, announced tonight that Tris Speaker, centerfielder for the Senators, undoubtedly will be given his unconditional release from the club on Feb. 1. Final decision on the matter, Griffith said, would be made within the next few days.

When informed that Speaker, who now is en route from his home in Texas to Georgetown, S. C., for a hunting trip had said he would not voluntarily reduce his salary as requested by Griffith last season, the Washington club owner said:

"Very well, then. If Speaker won't do that then the possibility of him in a Senator uniform this season is mighty slim."

Griffith had announced today that unless Speaker offered to reduce his salary by Feb. 1, the time limit for tendering contracts for the coming season, the centerfielder probably would not play with the Senators this year.

"I told Speaker at the close of last season that I could not again offer him his present salary," Griffith said. "I told him to go out and look for a job and that I would help him. If he finds himself without a job on Feb. 1, it isn't my fault.

"As a matter of fact, I'd just as soon not have him back on the team this year. I've got plenty of young material to take his place, so I guess we can get along without him.

"I want him to understand, however, that whatever settlement is made it will be perfectly amicable with both of us. I like Speaker and he is a good man, but I simply can't pay him his present salary again this year, and I told him so.

"Unless he comes to me by Feb. 1, voluntarily offering to reduce his salary, I probably will give him his unconditional release. Even if he should offer to have his salary cut in half, I might not even consider it. I can't tell yet."

Speaker to Make No Overtures

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 23—(AP)—Tris Speaker will make no overtures to the Washington baseball club in regard to a reduction in his salary. Neither has he considered any offers from minor league clubs.

The Senator center fielder stated his position to the Associated Press today when he passed through Birmingham en route from his home in Texas to Georgetown, S. C., where he will do some hunting and conditioning prior to the opening of the baseball season.

Replying to a statement made in Tampa today by Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, that he must voluntarily reduce his own salary or give up his berth with the Senators, Speaker said it was not his place to offer terms to the Washington owner.

"If Griffith wants me back in a Senator uniform this season," Speaker said, "he naturally will send me a contract before Feb. 1 when my option expires. If he does not, I will automatically become a free agent when the option expires."

Speaker disclosed that he has made no plans in regard to management of a minor league club, although he did say that he will be back in baseball this year.

"Until Feb. 1," he said, "I am the property of the Washington baseball club and am not at liberty to negotiate with other clubs."

"Griffith wired me that both the Montreal and Jersey City clubs of the International league were seeking my services, but until some decision is reached regarding my status with Washington I shall make no decision in regard to those offers."

The graying veteran expressed surprise at Griffith's statement that Speaker had turned down an offer from the Boston Braves in the hope that the Cleveland Indians would consider him for the manager's place this season.

"I can't imagine Griff saying that," he said. "I told him that I had no intention of returning to Cleveland and that I would not accept the manager's berth there even if it had been offered to me.

"As for the Boston offer, I said before I have not negotiated with any club because I am still the property of Washington and am not at liberty to do so."

"But I will be back in baseball, he added. "I will be back in baseball for some time yet."

PLAINFIELD PROS TACKLE BOSTON WHIRLWINDS AGAIN

The Plainfield Pros face one of their oldest rivals and yet, one of their hardest games Wednesday night at the Plainfield Community house in the Boston Whirlwinds.

The Whirlwinds already hold two wins over the Pros this year, both scored after close and hard-fought games. However, the Pros have shown remarkably well in late games, beating the Pittons of Boston and Jim Thorpe's Indians in their last two starts.

Many no doubt will come to see just what happened to the Whirlwinds in losing to the Meriden Endees by 37 to 7 a week or so ago for this was one of the big mysteries of the season. It was also one of the worst defeats that the Whirlwinds ever suffered. However, a team playing professional rules every night in the week can be expected to slump when they meet a team in amateur rules that is well versed at that end of the game and which team plays probably only once or twice a week.

The Whirlwinds will have their regular lineup that has thrilled thousands throughout New England in past years, namely, Fiddle Morley, Jimmy Crotty, Nig Curtin, Leo Martin and Kasper.

THREE FROM PROS NOW PLAYING IN STATE LEAGUE

Three members of the Plainfield Pros appear on the player lists of state league clubs for the second half schedule announced Monday.

"Steffy" Stavinitsky, who played the majority of the first half with the Meriden Endees is again on that team's roster while "Whitey" Bernot the Plainfield captain, has been added to Meriden's list. Roy Dissinger, Plainfield forward will campaign for the New Britain Guards for the rest of the season.

Of course, this will not affect these boys from playing with the Pros on Wednesday night at the Community house for the state league has few scheduled tilts for that night.

The signing of these players is a big boost for Plainfield and for their being on a level with state league teams.

DUNDEE SCORES EASY VICTORY OVER SIMONICH

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, welterweight boxing champion of the world, scored an easy victory over Joe Simonich, Montana miner, in a 10-round bout tonight. Both were over the weight limit and Dundee's title was not at stake.

Dundee gave the fair western Iron Man a stern lacing in nine of the ten rounds. The first was about even. Simonich was little more than a punching bag for the prancing Dundee, but he was always willing to wade in and try to land a punch. Although he landed many blows Dundee could not put the miner down, except in the fifth when he was partly wrestled to the canvas. Dundee kept his stinging left jab working throughout and against it Simonich had no defense. Dundee weighed 148 1-2; Simonich 149 1-2 pounds.

TUNNEY'S PARAPHERNALIA IS SHIPPED TO MIAMI

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—All the paraphernalia Gene Tunney used in preparing for his title defense against Jack Dempsey last fall, was shipped to Miami, Fla., today. And along with the shipment went Lou Fink, trainer of the heavyweight champion, to guard the 16 ounce training gloves, light and heavy punching bags, and Tunney's ring equipment.

Fink hastened south at the call of the titleholder, who plans to start light conditioning immediately in prospect of two matches next summer. The taciturn trainer, who kept a wary eye cooked on Gene's condition before almost all of his major battles, expects the champion to train in Florida for four months. Sparring partners will be engaged within a few weeks.

If Tunney reaches an agreement with Tex Rickard for a fight in June, Fink believes the champion will complete training at Speculator, N. Y.

L. J. Wylie, who has been named president of the new Central league, is one of the youngest men ever to fill such a position, both in age and in point of baseball experience. Mr. Wylie hails from Decatur, Ill., where he has been engaged in the telephone business. Two years ago, when he had had only three years of actual baseball experience as vice president of the Decatur club, he was chosen to succeed the veteran Al Tierney as president of the Three-I league, one of the oldest and most substantial of the minor baseball organizations. In this position Mr. Wylie soon earned a reputation for good business judgment and fair dealing, which commendable traits made him the unanimous choice of the promoters of the new Central league when his name was proposed as the man to guide the destinies of the organization.

WESTERLY

NEW FIRE ALARM SYSTEM TO BE GIVEN TRYOUT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 23—Representatives of the Gamwell Fire Alarm company arrived in Westerly this morning and were met by Supt. Nelson G. Himes of Westerly fire alarm system. A siren is being located on top of the brick mill of the Clyde Mills, Inc., formerly the Westerly Textile plant on Main street, and it is expected that it will be given a tryout Tuesday. At the last adjourned Westerly fire district meeting, Dec. 6th, Chief George E. Egger stated that the temporary bell alarm, since the fire of April 30th last, on the big bell of Christ Episcopal church was not proving as effective as anticipated. Only a limited number of firemen responded during the high wind early last Saturday morning for a garage fire on property of Maria Comforto on Oak street, due to the alarm not being heard.

The executor of the estate of Charles J. Greene, for many years town treasurer of Richmond, and a resident of Kenyon, was a visitor on the estate business in Westerly on Monday. He reported finding among the papers of the town treasurer, a copy of the Richmond Chronicle," Vol. 1 No. 1, printed in Shannock, R. I., in 1882. Among some mentioned in the newspaper were Oscar E. Barber of Carolina, R. I., the present Richmond town clerk and Albert G. Martin, of Pawcatuck, at that time a resident of the town of Richmond and treasurer of the lodge of Odd Fellows there.

Workmen in the employ of the Westerly highway department under direction of Highway Engineer A. L. Leon were engaged Monday in preliminary work of lowering of the Main street end of Union street. The large trees in front of the Jewish synagogue, were damaged when fire destroyed the Westerly garage of the Bentley-Clark Co., then operated by Frank Crandall. The curbing for the sidewalk on the south side, is about where the center line of the newly graded and widened Union street will be located. The mild weather was the cause of the work being started and this Tuesday morning with the continuance of pleasant weather it is planned to start excavation with the steam shovel at the lower Main street end of Union street. Temporary location has been given to electric light and telephone wires while the improvement work is being carried on. A stout wire fence has been constructed at the south side and near the top of the Union street hill to prevent accident where the Panciera house was removed from it sold foundation to the lower street level at the south.

The following transfer has been recorded: Jan. 21. Alexander C. Thompson to Mrs. Florence V. Simons, land at the southeast corner of land of Erastus H. Benn on the northerly side of a proposed street off Beach street.

Care of Babies

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good. And it is so pleasant to take. Taste it yourself, and you'll know why "Children Cry for It."

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or when you even suspect the approach of constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. See how quickly all fretfulness or wakefulness will cease!

Only one word of warning: the above advice is true of genuine Castoria.* The kind called Fletcher's, bearing Fletcher's signature is genuine—and does not contain opiates or any other drug that can harm your baby. Other preparations may be just as free from harm; the writer does not know as to that, but does know one family whose children will never make the experiment!

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Shandor's store, has been rated the quickest on his staff. When the Saturday morning rush is on and off like a flash, faithful Albert went carrying a large glass jar worth $12 to get a customer some walnuts, that were in the jar. The store cat was in the way, the clerk's feet did not go right and down went Albert, also the jar, which was broken to pieces. So his fellow workmen gave him the horse laugh and said the fellow didn't make a mistake but he felt bad over the accident after being seven years with the company. The owner, Pete Shandor, patted him on the back and said: "Faithful Albert! Don't feel bad over it! You have been with me a long time and you won't have to pay for it and you'll keep your job; but remember, look out for our store cat, Jerry."

Arthur Fitch, of Westerly, spent the week-end with relatives in Noank

The wind Sunday was blowing from the west made the surf high at Groton Long Point, the highest there this winter. The waves were breaking over the cottages clear across the road The bridge sea weed was on the board walk. The tide was low so that many clammers were out, but the cold wind made them quit. One fishing boat "Baby," was left high and dry as the tide went out, the lines broke and it tipped at an angle of 45 degrees, but no damage was done.

ACTIVITY IN MARKET CONTINUED IN STOCKS OPERATED IN BY POOLS

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—Speculation for the advance was resumed on a broad scale in today's stock market after a week of comparative dullness. Principal activity continued to center in stocks in which pools are believed to be operating, although substantial gains also were recorded by several investment issues. Blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares changed hands at frequent intervals, the day's sales running well above 2 1-2 million shares.

Marking down of the renewal rate on call money to 3 1-2 per cent, the lowest last November, with a subsequent shading of that rate in the "outside market," did much to restore speculative confidence on the long side. Other monetary accomodations were unchanged, but apparently the flood of money available on day-to-day loans dispelled fears of a stringency of speculative credit. The reported resumption of activity by several large traders who had achieved prominence in the up-swing last year also served to attract a following of small speculators who daily haunt the board rooms of the leading commission houses.

There was little in the day's businessmn news to influence the price movement. Week-end commission house comment stressed the increased activity of the steel and automotive industries and the excellent character of the 1927 chain store reports now being published. The fact that the market lapsed into dullness in the reaction last week was widely construed as an indication that speculative accounts were well margined, and that no general liquidation by investors had taken place.

U. S. Steel common crossed 149 to a new high on the current recovery and most of the other steel followed in its wake. Bethlehem, which has met the $1 a ton increase of the Steel corporation on the prices of bars, sheets and plates, improved only fractionally. Hupp retained its leadership of the motor group, more than 100,000 shares changing hands with the final quotation of 38 1-2 representing a new gain of 1 1-4 points. General Motors was about as active, but showed only a small fractional gain at 136 5-8.

Baking, merchandising, farm implement, public utility and express shares record at 265, against a low of 195 less Express soared 23 points to a new high record at 265, against a low of 195 less than three weeks ago. Christie Brown soared 13 3-8 points to a new peak at 121. Abitibi Power, Case Threshing and R. H. Macy each jumped about 8 points, while Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn Edison, Cluett Peabody, International Harvester, Laclede Gas, Montgomery-Ward, Radio and Woolworth all advanced 4 points or more. Gold Dust, Westinghouse Electric and Commercial Solvents also showed marked appreciation in value.

Rubber shares were under accumulation on reports of improving trade conditions, with Ajax and Goodrich prominent on the up-swing. Packing shares also were well bought.

Rails moved up with the industrials, but most of the gains were held to a point or two. Southern Railway, Mobile & Ohio certificates, which recorded a sensational advance last week on reports of proceedings to test the legality of the contract under which they were issued, broke 25 points today and recovered 10 on selling presumably influenced by the announcement that the Southern Railway would strenuously oppose any effort to invalidate them.

Cotton prices lost about $1 a bale in reflection of the bearish interpretation placed upon the government ginning figures and the week-end weather reports. Wheat prices also drifted lower on reports of more favorable weather. Slight recessions took place in coffee futures, but sugar prices held steady.

Foreign exchanges rates held steady in quiet trading with a 13 point jump in Japanese yen to 46.73 cents as the only feature. The Canadian dollar continued at a discount of 3-16 of 1 per cent.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES.

Life.

If you have never suffered any pain,
Have never felt the joy that love does send.
If you have had all sunshine and no rain,
"You have not lived, my friend."

If you have gems and riches, and to spare;
And money, more than you can ever spend;
And yet have no one, in your wealth to share,
"You do not live, my friend."
—Elaine Riches, in "Girl's Own Paper."

Santa Claus Makes a Demand.

The time has come for my yearly ride,
Over the country, far and wide,
Gliding down chimneys, bringing joys to wild-eyed kiddies, both girls and boys!
My kit is packed and my reindeer team,
Well-fed and peppy, is full of steam;
I've sorted the letters that kiddies write,
And had my beard cleaned, snowy-white,
And ordered a nice fresh fall of snow,
In short, I'm ready and rarin' to go!

But one thing bothers me, WHAT to do
With the terrible, modern chimney-flue!
Why, they build 'em, nowadays, so small
That I can't get into the things at all,
And worse than that, a lot of 'em lead
NOT into a fireplace . . . no, indeed!
But into a boiler! Then, by cripes,
I'm expected to crawl up through the pipes,
Like an eel or a leetle alligator,
Dragging my pack through a radiator!

I think, in the future, there ought to be,
Provision made for a man like me,
Which might be part of the Building-Laws;
"Special Chimneys for Santa Claus."
—By Santa Himself.

A Thought.

Beyond the surge of the restless sea,
And far from the river's tide
The waters of ocean and stately stream
In quiet and darkness hide.

Above them are bending the tall green trees,
Beneath are the silver sands;
And they linger there mid the ferns and moss
Ere they flow through the meadow lands.

So the rising tide that lifts the world
To life's nobler, better part,
Was once close hidden, a thing unknown,
A thought in a loving heart.
—Lois Emory.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

The redstart and the yellow warbler are closely related. The redstart is one of the most common, best known and easily identified of our warblers. It is about five and one-half inches in length. When resting on a twig or branch it droops its wings as if tired, and when flying spreads its tail thus showing the deep orange or yellowish markings to splendid advantage.

The male redstart has a black head, throat, neck, upper breast and back. Its wings and tail also are black, but are brightly colored with deep orange. Underneath the bird is white. The female differs from the male in that she is gray where he is black and has yellowish markings on the wings and tail. The young male redstart does not acquire his glossy back and deep orange suit until three years old.

Redstarts are equally at home in trees and on the ground.

The redstart nests throughout the northern half of the United States and northward. The nests usually are built in the forks of trees or bushes, from four to ten feet, rarely higher, from the ground. The nest is a neat little cup of fibres, plant-down and bits or strips of bark, very artistic, sure to elicit admiration from the person lucky enough to find it. The four or five eggs are white speckled with brown.

The redstart is very useful, for it lives largely, if not wholly, on insects. It is a darting, lively bird, and much of its liveliness has to do with the ever pressing problem of securing food. Its song is a simple "chee-wee, chee-wee, chee-wee," much like that of the yellow warbler.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES.

Edgar Allan Poe.

Dear Uncle Jed—Our class has been studying some of the poems of Edgar Allan Poe. In connection with the study of these poems we read about his life. Would you like to have me tell the Wide Awakes what I learned?

Edgar Allan Poe, one of the first American poets to gain recognition in Europe was born in Boston, Massachusetts, in the year 1809. His parents were members of a theatrical company playing in the city at that time. Later they returned to Richmond, Virginia where Edgar was left an orphan. A man named Mr. Allan adopted him and treated him kindly and gave him every advantage.

When Edgar was seventeen years old, Mr. Allan sent him to the University of Virginia, but he fell into the habit of drinking and gambling so Mr. Allan took him from the college. Poe then ran away and entered the army.

At New York and Philadelphia he gave evidence of his skill as an editor. He was a poet and writer of short stories. Some of his stories are "The Black Cat," "The Fall of the House of Usher," and "The Gold Bug." His poems are of the are "The Raven," "The Bells" and "Annabelle Lee," which he wrote at the death of his wife.

He died in Baltimore, 1849, at the age of forty. His strange nature brought him into unpleasant relations with many of the chief writers of his day and has made it difficult to get at the facts regarding his life and work.

The Northmen

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you I hope you and the Wide Awakes will like my story.

The Northmen were a race of brave sailors, sometimes called Vikings, who lived in the northern part of Europe. They made long voyages in their sturdy little ships, with only the stars and sun as guides. They discovered Iceland and Greenland and founded Colonies in those countries. Leif Ericson, who lived in the Greenland colony, while on a visit to Europe, became a Catholic and returning home took with him priests who converted all the colonists.

My Pet Cat.

Uncle Jed: I have a cat named Tricksy. The color of him is black and white. One day we brought a little kitten in. Tricksy was jealous. We put the little cat by Tricksy on the couch. Tricksy spit at him and went under the stove. At night we put the little cat down cellar. The next morning we let it sleep a while and then we put it outside.

My Christmas Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story about my Christmas vacation.

On Christmas day I went to visit my aunt in Moosup. She has a dog named Rover. When I went out walking Rover would come with me. At night my aunt would read the paper while I read story books.

I stayed in Moosup about a week and had a very good time. When I returned home I found for my Christmas present a piano. You can imagine my surprise when I saw it. I take music lessons now and like it very much.

My Kitten.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have an angora kitten. It is gray and white. It is very playful and small. It seems that it will never grow. One day my mother let her out doors. She went to another house instead of ours. The woman told us that she found a small kitten. My mother told me to see if it was her so I went. The kitten never left the house after.

My Three Pets.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my three pets.

I have three little kittens. One is gray, one is three colored, the other one is gray and white. The three colored one we call Stubby because he got his tail frozen off. The gray one is so cute we call him Silver, and the gray and white one we call Calico. They are very nice. I love them all.

A Lost Calf.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day when I came home from school my father said I should get a rope and go in to the haylot to get a little calf. I brought the calf home and let it go with the other two.

When it was time for milking I took my pail and started to milk the cows. When I got done milking I had to put the calf into the barn. I did not see it so my father said I should look for it.

I looked in the cellar. It was not there. I looked all over the yard, but still it was not there. I looked until half past eight and then I decided to go to our neighbor's. I came in their house and he said, "What treasure do you bring?" I told him, "I bring the calf." I did not stay there but went home and went to bed. But I could not find the calf.

The next morning I got up and did not see it. But a little later about nine o'clock my brother heard the calf cry. I got on the top of the wagon and looked all around. What should I see but the calf in the corner of the last lot. I was so glad the calf was back home.

A Good Time.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

One night last winter when the moon was shining brightly my little brothers and sisters came out with me to go sliding in back of my house. Every once in awhile we would tip over and have a good laugh.

When it was suppertime we had to go in the house after having an enjoyable slide.

A Dog and a Pig.

Dear Uncle Jed—I am going to tell you about my dog and pig. Rex, the dog is very smart. When the pig comes out of his pen I just have to say Rex get the pig. He grabs the pig by the ear and then brings her back. My mother named her Totles. She could do whatever she wanted to do with her. One night while we were having supper she came up to the door. There was a pudding outside in a pan with a cover and a stone on top of it. She knocked the stone off and ate the pudding. She had some pudding up to her ears.

Winter Sports.

Dear Uncle Jed—Autumn came and passed and now the days are becoming shorter and colder. The lakes, streams, etc., are now frozen and snow lies deep upon the ground. The season of winter sports is now in full sway. With the first ice on the ponds, rivers and lakes the skaters go forth to one of the best pastimes of the year. The skating carnivals held in Canada, Switzerland and United States are made up of races and exhibitions of fancy skating. The skates are steel runners fastened by clamps to a shoe. Skating is done mostly by foot power but some is done by windpower by means of sails.

When snow covers the ground to the depth of one-half to one foot skates are put away and the merry sportsmen go to the blanketed valleys and hills seeking adventure. They go gliding down hills at a high rate of speed, jump from higher levels and have cross country races upon clumsy affairs called skiis. They are made of wood, about seven feet in length and four to five inches wide. When snow falls to a greater depth snowshoes are used, not only for pleasure but by trappers and others for a better means of travel. They are similar to tennis racquets and greatly help those who trod through deep snows.

Skiis and snowshoes feature in the winter sports but tobogganing is also important. Long steep hills are scooped from banks of snow into toboggan slides. Tobogganing is a sport that the Canadians chiefly are fond of. The toboggan is from sixteen to twenty feet long and four feet wide and is guided by a steersman who is at the rear steering it by trailing his feet.

WALTER MAXIMOWICZ. Age 13.

Forest Ranger Cabin.

Dear Uncle Jed—The cabin of a forest ranger in the northwest is a lonesome place. These forest rangers are situated all over the United States forests. Their duty is to be on the lookout for all fires and if they see one, they must go as quick as possible to the fire station and round up a troop of men to fight the fire. Many fires have thus been spotted by forest rangers and great losses have been prevented.

I will now describe the appearance of the home of a forest ranger in winter. The clear, cloudless sky forms an overhanging boundary over the whole landscape. The trunks of large pines are dimly seen in the distance while here and there are bare trees standing like weather-beaten sentries. There is one pole in front of the cabin to hold up the overhanging roof. Around the cabin is seen a clearing and in places are large drifts of snow. The remains of a fire can be perceived near a plank which serves as a doorstep. In the whole this offers the picture of a very lonely and deserted region.

ANTHONY KOCHANSKI. Age 13.

A Dream.

Uncle Jed—I am writing you for the first time and I hope you will enjoy my story. One night I had a terrible dream. I dreamed that my sister bought me a ten cent ring and I left it on my finger, and the next morning my finger was all swollen and my mother sent for a doctor but I didn't know anything about it. He said, "Let me see your finger." I let him see it not thinking he was a doctor, and he cut it off. Then I woke up and found out it was only a dream. Believe me I was very glad.

At the Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

Last year when I was going to the beach I started on a Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock When I got there the first thing I did was to go and see them swimming. I couldn't go because my bathing suit was packed in a great big bundle.

The next morning when I got up I had my breakfast; then I went swimming.

When I got there I saw only two little girls picking shells so I got a can and then my brother and I started picking shells. When the can was full I brought them home.

When I came back to the beach to go swimming I stayed ther till noon.

Had Good Time

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I hope you will enjoy my story. The name of my story is "How I Spent Christmas."

The first thing I did on Christmas was to get up at 6 o'clock to see what Santa Claus had sent me, and to my surprise I got a painting set, sweater, umbrella and three dollars. After looking them over, I dressed and went to church. When noon came we had a Christmas dinner which consisted of many good things. In the afternoon I played with my toys and my girl friend came to my house and we enjoyed ourselves very much. So this is how I spent Christmas, and I hope every boy and girl had a good time on Christmas.

Helping Mother

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to write and tell you about helping my mother.

My aunt died in Quincy, Mass. My mother went to the funeral, leaving my brothers, sisters and myself at home.

It was during the Christmas vacation, so I didn't have to go to school. After finishing breakfast, I did the dishes and swept the floors. Then I helped do what else was needed to be done.

When my mother came home she said the house looked very good.

I thought it was great fun helping around the house and wouldn't mind doing it again for my mother.

My Doll

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to you and tell you about my doll. My doll is four years old. Her name is Eleanor. She has long brown curls and blue eyes. She has a pink silk dress. Her stockings are pink and white, and she has a pair of white shoes. She has nice rosy cheeks. She cries, sleeps and walks. I have a brown cradle for her which she sleeps in.

Mary's Hair

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story. The title of my story is "Mary's Hair."

Mary did not like to have her hair combed. She had curly hair. Every night the snarls got in it. In the morning it looked as if a mouse slept in it.

"Come, Mary," said mother, "come get your hair combed." "I do not want to," said Mary. "Then you cannot go to school. Be a good little girl, Mary." Then Mary would try to be good. When the curls were made she was glad to go to school.

Cat's Name is Billy

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. My cat's name is Billy. He is gray and white. Last week I taught him how to sit up in the corner. So now when he wants to play he sits in the corner and cries till I play with him.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Hunter is Hunted.

Those who hunt must sometimes flee;
'Tis justice that it thus should be.
—Mother West Wind.

Billy Mink is both hunter and fisherman. He is more of a fisherman than hunter, but still at times he loves dearly to hunt. You see, Billy likes a change of diet. Fish is all very well, but one does get tired of it sometimes. When this happens Billy turns to meat. To get meat he must hunt for it.

I suspect that it isn't just the desire for meat alone that turns Billy to hunting. I suspect that he enjoys the hunt. In fact, I know he does. Hunting is, you know, a sort of game. It is a game in which wits often count for more than swift legs or wings. Billy Mink has keen wits. Having keen wits, he likes to use them and so keep them keen. So every once in a while Billy goes hunting, and he sometimes goes far from the Laughing Brook.

"Pooh!" said he, "there is no one following me."

You will remember that Billy had been hunting Jumper the Hare. When he found that Jumper had outwitted him Billy promptly started off to look for someone else to hunt. It occurred to him that he might find Chatterer the Red Squirrel. As you know, Chatterer often comes down on the ground. Probably what made Billy think of Chatterer was the sound of Chatterer's voice in the distance. So Billy promptly headed in that direction.

Billy was only about half way to where he could hear Chatterer's voice when he suddenly stopped and sat up to look back along his own trail. Why he should have done this he couldn't have said. Something inside warned him that he was being followed. It was just a feeling, but that feeling was a warning. For a couple of minutes Billy sat there, looking back along his trail, testing every merry little breeze that wandered his way and listening to every sound.

He saw nothing suspicious. He smelled nothing suspicious. He heard nothing suspicious. "Pooh!" said he. "There's no one following me. I don't know who would be likely to follow me, anyway."

So Billy turned and resumed his way. But all the time he was uneasy. Every now and again he would turn his head to look back. Two or three times he stopped. Each time he told himself there was nothing. Yet all the time inside there was that feeling, and Billy knew from experience that that feeling was not to be disregarded.

At last a bit of snow dropping from a tree caught Billy's attention as he looked back, and then Billy caught his breath. He had caught a glimpse of a big brown form running swiftly down the back of that tree. It was a form not unlike his own, only much larger.

"My cousin, Spite the Marten!" gasped Billy. "He must have come down from the Great Mountain. He has no business here in the Green Forest. But if he is about, this is no place for me."

Billy whirled and away he went, and now he was hurrying. Looking over his shoulder he saw that Spite the Marten was after him. Now, as you know, Billy Mink is very quick in his movements. But so is Spite the Marten. Billy was running for his life now. He who so delighted to hunt was being hunted, and he was being hunted by one quite as merciless as he himself. It was useless to try to hide under a brush pile. Spite would have him out in no time. He knew of no hole big enough for him to get into but too small for Spite to follow him. There was just one place where he felt sure of safety, and that was in the Laughing Rock. But could he get there in time?

John Geer and Charles Hilliard were on the trail of a fox across the Hill Tuesday morning.

Miss Kittie Palmer dropped a flat-iron on her foot, which has kept her confined to the house for the past week.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

The earning power of this country continues large and labor is well employed at good wages, he said. The people have become more and more investors and this itself makes for stability. The money market is mostly a matter of adjustment and at present, it looks more promising. He also expressed the opinion that steel and motor shares would resume the market leadership.

MONTVILLE FATHER SHIELDS SON IN CASE IN NEW LONDON CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 23. — Ike Schwell, of Montville, was in the police court today charged with evasion of responsibility. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to tomorrow. Instead of Schwell being prosecuted Tuesday, his son, Clarence, will be presented for after the adjournment of court, the state police who arrested the elder Schwell continued their investigation, because the accused declared that he was not in New London the night his automobile was alleged to have struck the car of Ray C. B. Jenks when the driver drove away without stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned. After court, State Police Officer Bernard Kenperson, who arrested Schwell went to Montville and learned that Schwell's son was the driver of the colliding car for the youth admitted the fact when accused. The young man said that he was accompanied by a male friend and as the auto passed through Union street it struck the car of Jenks, which was parked near Union street. He said that he wanted to stop but he was advised by his companion not to do so and he followed the advice. The Schwell auto was damaged and the next day the youth drove the car to Norwich where the paint that had been disfigured was replaced and the mudguard that had been damaged was repaired. Schwell became surety on his son's bond of $100 for appearance in court tomorrow.

SHOW PROMOTER'S DEED SUGGESTS MANN ACT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 23—Two cases of intoxication were not presented in court today, for the men involved had never been arrested before. A third case of intoxication, however, resulted in a hearing for it was possible that the accused would be tried on the more serious charge of violation of the Mann act. O'Brien was arrested on State street last night by Patrolman Walter O'Neill. He had represented himself as a promoter of theatricals. He is said to have entered into an agreement with sailors at the submarine base to promote a minstrel performance. While at the base he was more generally intoxicated than he was sober and that condition caused adverse comment. The action of O'Brien reached the ears of the police and when he was found intoxicated, he was arrested. It was then revealed that he had been living as man and wife with Ella Herrick, a Maine young woman, at a Masonic street rooming house. The young woman was arrested today and was charged with lascivious carriage O'Brien was fined $10 and the woman's case was continued a month but by that time it is expected that the girl will be sent back to Maine, to her home town. The couple admitted having gone from city to city and to their having resided as husband and wife.

FARMER GORED BY BULL RECOVERING AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 23—William Gelston, 52, East Haddam farmer, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from severe bruises sustained Saturday when he was gored by a bull. Besides the bruises, the farmer received probable internal injuries. His condition, however, was reported as being such today that there was some improvement. Gelston went to the pasture where the bull was grazing and hardly had he entered the field than the bu made a mad rush at him. The farmer was unable to protect himself and was thrown to the ground. He succeeded in crawling out of the field, but was so badly injured that he was taken to the hospital.

Patrolman George McCaskey was given a hearing before City Manager William A. Holt today on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer preferred by Carl Benson or at least by a man known by that name, but who is also to be known as having at least one alias, if not two. The specific charges of Benson are that McCaskey attacked him and beat him in police headquarters without provocation. The witnesses who related their stories of what occurred the night in question were McCaskey and Sergeants James D. Gaffney and Frank Howard. After hearing the statements of the three officers, City Manager Holt reserved his decision About a week ago, Patrolman McCaskey was making his rounds on Main street trying the store doors. When opposite the Moose club and where Benson and two friends were standing, the officer heard one of the group remark that "here comes a cop" and in another instant he heard, "To h— with the cop" McCaskey walked across the street and not knowing who had made the remark, ordered the three men to move on. Two of them heeded the order, but the third, who was Benson, refused to leave the doorway and even defied the officer to arrest him. Benson, who is a baker, was accommodated, for he was taken to police headquarters and there McCaskey made two charges against him, intoxication and breach of the peace. When the intoxication charge was preferred, it was claimed that McCaskey was called a liar and a "d—— skunk," and that McCaskey then delivered a blow that discolored Benson's eye. He testified to that on the witness stand the following day, but McCaskey denied the accusation. Judge Victor Prince ordered Benson discharged and being freed by the court, Benson made it known that he would prefer charges against the officer.

Capt. Josiah E. Crocker, 68, formerly of New London, died yesterday at the United States Marine hospital, Chelsea, Mass., where he had been a patient several weeks. He is survived by a brother, Gilbert C. Crocker, and a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Taylor, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Crocker was born in Waterford, the son of Capt. Josiah and Elizabeth Tiffany, and started life as a seaman. He was employed on the steamers of the P line, now the New England Steamship company, and on tugs of the Thames towboat company, besides the fleet of steamers of the Dutee Flint company, of Providence. While serving on the latter boats, he suffered a shock and that illness eventually brought about a decline in health, which resulted in his entering the marine hospital. Capt. Crocker, during his earlier life, was employed by the former James Hislop company in this city, but his desire to follow the water caused him to abandon his commercial vocation and return to steamboating.

An automobile driven by Thomas G. Whipple, struck and knocked down Morris Moguelefsky, 73 Belden street last night on Truman street, near Belden court, but the latter escaped with bruises and contusions.

A Flint touring car, registration N-6257, which had been parked on Ocean avenue a day or two, was taken charge of by the police today when it was taken to a garage to await being claimed by the owner.

Julius Graves, colored, 66 Douglass street, was in the police court today, charged with breach of the peace. The case was continued to tomorrow. Graves went to his mother's home Saturday night and created such a disturbance that Mrs. Graves sought his arrest. Graves was arrested by Patrolman George Cockell.

Other cases presented were Carl Trevena, 3 Broadway, Mystic; Joe Rahberg, 10 Allen street, Mystic, and Rico Benvenuti, 68 Golden street, all charged with violation of the state traffic laws in driving by intersecting streets without reducing the speed. Each of the accused were fined $5 and costs. They were arrested Sunday by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin.

John Peters, 263 Willetts avenue, made complaint to the police tonight that during today someone visited his hennery and stole two hens.

Doris Jarvis, who recently came to New London from New York, was arrested tonight, charged with soliciting. She was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman George Cockell. She was released upon furnishing a surety on her bond of $100 for appearance in the police court tomorrow. The Jarvis woman was on Douglass street about 8 o'clock and at the same time as were the officers. She was observed to approach Palmer Thompson, a seaman on a Standard Oil company barge, so she was arrested.

BRAKEMAN IS INJURED IN PECULIAR ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 23—M. A. Hogan, of New Haven, employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as freight brakeman, was painfully injured last night when thrown from the caboose of the train upon which he was employed. Hogan was standing in the caboose as the train bound from New Haven to Boston, was passing beneath the overhead bridge at Ocean avenue. A draw bar pulled out and caused the separating of the air hose controlling the brakes, also caused the rear end of the train to come to an abrupt stop. The suddenness with which the train stopped caused Hogan to be thrown through the open door and he landed upon the rails. After repairs were made, including the installing of a draw-bar, the train continued to the Union station. Hogan was taken to the office of Dr. Frank M. Dunn, where a series of lacerations of the face and head and bruises of the arms and upper body were treated. After the dressings had been made, Hogan went to the Union station and boarded a train for New Haven.

The New Haven road has issued its large 1928 calendar showing in map form the points reached throughout New England by its steam, electric, water, and motor bus lines. It presents in a comprehensive manner the way in which service is provided for this part of the country.

Breed Theatre.

"Loves of Carmen," one of the most pretentious pictures attempted in the United States in recent years, is the current attraction at the Breed theatre, with Dolores Del Rio and Victor McLaglen in the principal roles Walsh, is out of the ordinary in more Wash, is out of the ordinary in more ways than one, for it brings before the camera in the same production two popular players who leaped to fame in another Walsh production. They are Victor McLaglen and Dolores Del Rio, who played Captain in "What Price Glory." In addition to the cast includes Ben Bard and Don Alvarado.

Walsh was given every opportunity to make an exceptional "Carmen," and he has delineated this striking character in a manner quite new to the screen.

The director did not want for magnificent costumes and authentic backgrounds. Edwin C. Hill, Fox representative, has been in Spain for the past year and has assembled an elaborate wardrobe for the picture. The acting of a notable cast, excellent scenic effects and above all, striking realism, make "Loves of Carmen" one of the most effective screen products of the season.

Duwell Club.

With the announcement that the Phidelah Rice players will perform at the Palace theatre Thursday and Friday evenings, Jan. 26-27, enthusiasm has been manifested by those anxious to see the delightful farce, "Meet The Wife," and the equally thrilling melo-drama, "Hell Bent For Heaven."

"Meet the Wife," the opening production, is an affair which can be backed to the limit for its fine educational and entertainment value, a finished production of a Broadway play presented by a groupe of skilled professional artists, who have already won reputation in the world of the theatre. The play will be given under the auspices of the Duwell Athletic club.

Geraldyn True will take the role played by Mary Boland in New York Miss True is an actress of wide reputation. She played in the "Cradle Song," and for several years understudied Eva Legallienne as a member of her company.

A leading member and director of the company is Phildelah Rice, for many years a recognized leader of plays and famous for his interpretation of "Hamlet." Mr. Rise is well known in Norwich, having read here on several occasions. He has promised, in "Meet The Wife," to bring a play that does not ordinarily come our way.

Strand Theatre.

"The Web of Fate," is a powerful story of high finance manipulation that vividly brings to the eyes the daring manner in which fortunes are made and lost. Lillian Rich, the beautiful and talented actress, plays a dual role —one a woman of the world, the other a sweet society girl. She is supported by an excellent cast of well-known players, including Henry Sedley and Eugene Strong. The story was adapted from "The 20,000,000 Faces," by William King Bradley. It is a Dallas M. Fitzgerald production and is a most compelling tale. It wastes no idle moments in entertaining, and supplies many powerful and thrilling scenes.

"Horse Play," is a complete and interesting story of our weekly series and is acted by a clever cast of players. A Krazy Kat Kartoon completes the bill, which is made more enjoyable by listening to the music of Prof. Rich's Strand orchestra.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A big time vaudeville program in every sense is the stage entertainment being offered at the Broadway theatre for the first three days of the week. The show as seen by the capacity audience last evening is the equal of any show seen in the larger vaudeville theatres throughout the country. Opening the program is the Lester Irving Trio, a company of talented gymnasts who were recently seen at the Palace theatre in New York city. After viewing the act it is readily seen why they were able to play the nation's leading vaudeville theatre. Following were Smith and Boatner, two colored comedians, with a distinct down-south accent and a brand of comedy all their own. Next came Princess Winona and company, assisted by four men, in a routine of song and dance that won instant favor with the audience. Princess Winona is a real Indian princess and uses the costumes of her tribe in her presentation. The comedy honors go to Manning and Walsh, a man and woman comedy team, who kept the audience in a continual uproar with their delightful brand of comedy. The big feature act on the program, "Aeronautics of 1928," is one of the most beautifully staged acts ever seen here. The act carries eight people, all real entertainers in the art of song and dance.

The feature photoplay appearing on the screen is "The Warning," starring Jack Holt. The action of the story takes place in Hong Kong, China, and deals with the operations of the British secret service agents endeavoring to capture a band of opium muggle-s Holt is seen to great advantage first as a dope fiend and later exposes himself as a secret service operative.

The picture was enjoyed equally as much as the vaudeville, making this a very good show from every angle.

Palace Theatre

If a man falls over a cliff and breaks his neck—that's a funeral.

But if a man falls over a cliff and breaks the cliff—that's a "gag" in a movie.

"Wife Savers," Paramount's latest Wallace Beery-Raymond Hatton comedy, and a fitting successor to "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now," "Firemen, Save My Child," and "Now We're in the Air," shows why hair-breadth escapes are in funny.

Beery and Hatton in the Alps enact some hair-raising episodes, snow-slides, landslides and what not. Ralph Ceder directed, and the cast includes Ford Sterling, ZaSu Pitts, Tom Kennedy, August Tollaire, Sally Blane and George Y. Harvey.

"Wife Savers" will be shown at the Palace theatre for the last times tonight.

Olympic Rink.

Manager Hendrick is keeping public interest at high pitch by devising a series of novelties for his patrons. A masque carnival is planned for the 9th of February. Tonight will be prize balloon night and Thursday evening there will be a one-mile relay race for gents, for cash prize and the championship of Connecticut. There are eight well known speed roller skaters entered up to the present time. This ought to be a thriller. That roller skating has become popular with the ladies is shown by there being 40 or 50 on the skating surface many evenings. There are instructors for beginners every session and with moonlight skating makes skating an enjoyable and heartful pastime.

STAFFORD

Rev. Edward E. Eno, who for the last three years has been pastor of the Baptist church at Hampton, N. H., moved to Stafford last week and took up his duties as pastor of Stafford Baptist church Jan. 22d. The church has been without a pastor for over four months, since the resignation of Rev. F. W. Tholen. The church gave Mr. Eno a call over a month ago. Mr. Eno comes here highly recommended both as a pastor and a preacher and Mrs. Eno will prove a great help in the church work, as she is an accomplished soloist. Before coming to Hampton, N. H., Mrs. Eno had a church at Londonderry, Vt., going there from Stepney, Conn. He has also held pastorates in the south. The "Hampton Union" said: "It is with sincere regret that not only the members of the Baptist parish but the entire community learn that Rev. Edward E. Eno has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Baptist church. Both Mr. and Mrs. Eno have endeared themselves to all with whom they came in contact and no doubt had they not accepted the charge in Stafford, Conn., would be prevailed upon to rescind the resignation. All have admired the courage with which Mr. Eno overcame his serious illness to do the work of the church. Through his advice and work both the church and parsonage have been thoroughly repaired and other work accomplished. We bespeak for Mr. and Mrs. Eno as successful a pastorate as they have had in Hampton, where they will leave a host of friends."

Mrs. Asa Harris had charge of the Sunday evening service.

Friends of Mrs. Jane Hatch regret to hear of her serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Selah Walbridge and Mrs. Hiram Walbridge were in Palmer, Mass., the first of the week.

Mrs. Susan Latham and Mrs. Clara Jenkins were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens at Stafford Springs Sunday.

DR. WILCOX TO SEND IN RESIGNATION AS STATE HOSPITAL SUPERINTENDENT

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent at the Norwich state hospital since the middle of October, 1917, is to present his resignation as head of the institution, according to his quoted statement in a Hartford paper this Tuesday) morning, having already submitted a verbal resignation to a member of the board of trustees on Monday. His verbal resignation will be followed by a written resignation to be sent today (Tuesday) to the president of the board of trustees, who is Hon. Henry H. Gallup, of this city.

Over the telephone Monday night, Mr. Gallup said he had no knowledge of the resignation and had nothing to say at this time.

It was reported that the resignation of Superintendent Wilcox would be effective about April 1. Dr. Wilcox would give no reason for his resignation and was quoted as saying "My future does not concern the state of Connecticut," when questioned about his plans.

Rumors of the possibility of some change in the management of the institution have been current here for some time since it was understood that the trustees had been summoned to conference with the governor about a month ago as the result of some criticism that had reached his ears.

During the ten years that Dr. Wilcox has been superintendent, he has been recognized as an alienist of unusual ability and the institution has had a growth that has brought it to a capacity of over 2,000 patients at the present time. He has made an able administrator and has participated in civic affairs in a helpful way in many different lines.

DR. FRANKLIN S. WILCOX

When he was invited to become superintendent here, he had been for five years assistant superintendent at the Southern California hospital in Palton, Calif., and before that had been assistant superintendent for eight years at Minnesota state hospital.

TWO SUITS ON NOTES BEFORE JUDGE WALLER

Two suits to recover on notes, one brought by Robert Levinson of New London against William R. Golding of New London, and another by the F. L. Warner Manufacturing Co. of the same city against the same defendant, were tried in the court of common pleas before Judge Charles B. Waller at New London Monday, where he took the papers and reserved decision.

Levinson in his suit for $390 damages claims that on Sept. 1, 1926, Golding by his note promised to pay the F. L. Warner Manufacturing Co. $225, 12 months from date, with interest of six per cent. The Warner Co., it is alleged, endorsed the note over to Levinson.

Golding claims that in giving his note to the Warner Co., it was in consideration of an agreement that the latter should supply certain goods and perform certain services within a specified time and that the goods and services must be first class.

The proceeding was over the installation of two oil heating systems, which Golding claims were not satisfactory.

Golding also sets up that Levinson knew of the conditions and with this knowledge received the note.

The fourth annual banquet of the state society, des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, the American Legion's selective service organization held Saturday night at the Morton house in Niantic was a most successful affair, the presence of Maj. Maj. Bissell arrived in New London shortly after 4 o'clock and was received at the Mohican hotel by Col. Henry S. Dorsey, City Manager William A. Holt, Stephen N. Ganas, O. I. Rheaume, Willard Cooper and John Cruise.

With Maj. Bissell was Sou Chef de Chemin de Fer J. Ronald Sullivan, of Waterbury; Sou Chef de Chemin de Fer Norman Cole, of Virginia, and Past Chef de Chemin de Fer Harold Dobson, of New Jersey.

Major Bissell stayed in New London until 6 o'clock when he left for Niantic. At the banquet there were delegates and members of the 40 and 8 from all over the state.

Major Bissell went back to New London yesterday where he was met by Messrs Ganas and Rheaume, who escorted him to Mystic in the morning. The purpose of the major's trip to Mystic was to see the statue of his great grandfather, Major John Mason, hero of the Pequot Indian wars.

EXPLAINS LAW ENFORCEMENT PROBLEMS TO MINISTERS

In an address before the Norwich Ministers' association meeting in this city Monday morning, City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins scored the standard time law and the prohibition law claiming that public sentiment is too evenly divided an dthat the laws are hard to enforce. Mr. Robbins' topic was Problems of Law Enforcement.

He told of how much more could be accomplished if the police here had telegraphic communication, sub-stations, motor vehicles and other conveniences for quick apprehension of criminals. He took as an example the Thermos payroll hold-up when about $6,000 was stolen. In the opinion of the speaker, it would not have been very long for the police to apprehend the criminals if those people in the Laurel Hill section had the conveniences mentioned above.

With reference to politics and police officials Mr. Robbins cited an instance where politics and the law did not mix. He said:

Imagine electing a constable in one section of the town to enforce the laws, where the opinion is that if he enforces the law he wouldn't get elected again and this is the way it worked out.

Another instance was cited to strengthen his statement, when the speaker referred to a carefully planned raid by headquarters. When the raiding party arrived at the place to be raided, they found the man waiting for them at the door, who invited the officers in. They found nothing. Mr. Robbins said, and he later learned that the man, receiving the tip-off, had buried the "hooch" under the hen-coop.

"As long as you have politics, you will have to combat that situation," Mr. Robbins said.

Mr. Robbins was introduced by Rev. A. N. Foster, president of the Ministers' association.

Mr. Robbins spoke of the difficulty of law enforcement. He said there is a good deal of agitation on this question. He told of the aims of the American Bar association, in trying to correct errors, speed up process of indicting the accused and speedy justice in the case. Mr. Robbins said that in a criminal case the state must prove "beyond a reasonable doubt" the guilt of the person on trial. In this state the accused does not have to take the stand or even open his mouth, unless he chooses. Oftentimes, Mr. Robbins said, the state can not prove "beyond a reasonable doubt" the case against the accused person, unless the defendant testifies.

The speaker said that our laws are not perfect, as oftentimes the penalty is too severe. Taking the crime of arson for example in this state, the penalty is 10 years, and it makes it very difficult to convict a person of this offense for that reason. Mr. Robbins claimed that there was one case here where there was proof of the crime, but the penalty was too severe.

One of the so-called bad laws mentioned by Mr. Robbins was the law pertaining to protection of children in theaters. This law states that children under 14 years of age, must be accompanied by adults. The purpose of this law, according to the speaker, was to provide protection against moral and fire hazards.

Mr. Robbins said it is a bad law and cannot be enforced. The law is poor because it fails to limit the number of children who can go with an adult. Citing a case here, Mr. Robbins said that there were 1200 children who attended a performance at a local theater where there was only three adults.

Then he spoke of the selfish element in law enforcement. To illustrate this statement, Mr. Robbins told about the man, who came downtown to park his car, not before his place of business, but in front of the other man's store. People see laws when it applies to others—not to themselves.

He was of the opinion that the people must be educated before a law is passed which is going to rule them. It is not the serious crimes, or the ten commandments which we have trouble with, Mr. Robbins said, but those laws which are close to the line.

Mr. Robbins said that the prohibition law is 90 per cent. correct, perhaps, but that a certain percentage is wrong. The law deprives a person of his liberty and "we are going to have a hard time making the American people refrain from taking a drink in their own homes."

The speaker also touched on the juvenile law which he classed as a "bad law." If a youth who is lacking just one day of being 16 years old commits a murder the most that can be done with him is to send him to a reformatory, while if he had passed one day over his birthday he could be hung. Other defects in the law were also pointed out.

At the close of his talk he answered a number of questions asked by the clergymen present.

Rev. J. Eldred Brown was of the opinion that if an organization was behind the matter of law enforcement many of the defects could be remedied. A vote of thanks was given the speaker by the members of the association. The meeting was held at the United Congregational church study. Mr. Robbins was introduced to the meeting by Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Universalist church, and president of the ministers' association.

During the business session a vote of congratulations to Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was adopted in recognition of his 30 years as pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Rev. J. Eldred Brown, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott and Rev. J. Harlow Graham were named a committee to arrange for the Holy week services which come in April.

When Mrs. William H. Whitman of West Town street was hostess to the Norwich Town club, of New London County Home and Farm Bureau, at its January meeting, held recently at her home, there was an attendance of 15. The demonstrator, Mrs. Belle H. J. Robynson, of Gales Ferry, gave instructions in drawing-in rugs, members having practiced on the rug brought by Mrs. Robynson, at intervals during the day, to learn how to manipulate the needle, etc.

During the period set aside for business, the president, Mrs. William Weaver, presided, and plans were laid and appointments of meetings made for each month, until July 1st. At noon Mrs. Robynson was a special guest of Mr. and Mrs. Whitman at which time a tempting roast beef dinner was served, the hostess as usual serving coffee to the club members, each having brought their own lunch.

The next meeting of the Norwich Town club will be Thursday, Feb. 16, when work on drawing-in rugs will be continued.

"Genesis 3:8. And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day; and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden," was the text of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon, at Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church. Rev. Charles E. Reeves assisted in the service and read the Scripture lesson for the day. A letter was read by Rev. Mr. Bailey from the pastor of Saybrook Congregational church granting the dismissal of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Connelly and Miss Margaret Connolly ,who are to unite by letter with Norwich Town Congregational church at its March communion service. Mr. and Mrs. Connolly and daughter came to Norwich Town to take up their residence last September.

At the Congregational Junior Christian Endeavor service Sunday afternoon at 3.30, the subject was "Telling the Truth." Rachel Avery was the leader.

Miss Rose Durr was leader of the Y. P. S. C. E., in the Congregational chapel Sunday evening, when the topic was, "What Difference Does It Make What We Do On Sunday?" Mark 2:23-28; 3:1-6.

The mid-week service of conference and prayer of the Congregational church, Thursday evening, will have for its theme, "The Test Of Devotion—Self Denial." Matthew 19:16-30. What does real Attachment to a Course demand?

Miss Jessie E. Hyde a director of Connecticut Christian Endeavor union, conducted an installation service at Norwich Town Methodist church on Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. A. E. Whitten presided at the regular service, when the topic was "What Difference Does It Make What We do On Sunday?"

The retiring president, Mrs. Richard Carter, opened the installation service by reading the list of officers and committees chosen to serve during 1928. Miss Hyde conducted the service of installation, followed by prayer by Rev. A. E. Whitten. In closing Lewis Aldrich sang a Consecration Hymn, Miss Aldrich accompanying at the piano.

The Missionary society of Bozrah Congregational church was entertained by Mrs. William H. Whitman at her home, 232 West Town street, Norwich Town, Saturday afternoon. There was an attendance of 15 to hear the Missionary address by Mrs. Allen Latham, of Scotland road. Mrs. Latham not only talked in an interesting vein, but complimented the Bozrah society which is so much alive to its various activities, considering that many of its members live off the trolley line. Mrs. Edward Bishop is president of the society. During the meeting Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Bozrah Congregational church, offered prayer. The society pledged $18 to Trinity school, Athens, Alabama, toward its support for 1928. A Norwich Town young woman, Miss Ruth Beebe, is a member of the faculty of the school. The meeting concluded with a social period, when Mrs. Whitman served sandwiches, cake and coffee.

PROBLEMS TO BE SOLVED BY PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS

Subjects Before the Committee on International Public Law Include Commercial Aviation, Frontier Police and Establishment of a Pan-American Tribunal at Havana to Deal With Disputes—All of These Matters Are to Be Sumbitted to the Conference For Decision.

HAVANA, Jan. 24—(AP)—Commercial aviation, frontier police, the incorporation of international legal principles in conventions, and the establishment of a Pan-American tribunal at Havana for the adjudication of disputes occupied the attention of the committee on international public law of the Pan-American conference today.

All these problems will be the subject of further study and consideration before they are presented for the decision of the conference itself.

Commercial aviation was brought to the forefront by Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, of the American delegation, who brought in amendments to the proposed commercial aviation treaty, which would alter the treaty in at least one important respect. One amendment provided for granting to signatory countries the right to agree among themselves as to what zones shall be prohibited to civilian aviation, and excepting from the provisions of the convention only military and government controlled aviation.

Under the original clauses any plane engaged in postal, customs, police or other government service,—privately owned or otherwise—was exempt from the terms of the treaty. Under the amendment only "aircraft owned, controlled and operated by the contracting state" in connection with these services, are exempt. No discrimination is made as between national and foreign privately owned planes.

Mr. Fletcher's proposals were discussed by the committee, particularly the amendment allowing special agreements between countries to specify the prohibited zones for military purposes.

Enrique Olaya, Colombian minister at Washington, was of the opinion that a commercial aviation convention, if it were desired to advance air communications, should, above all, bear a pacific stamp, avoiding all appearance of a military measure.

The Fletcher amendment, Senor Olaya added, thrust military conceptions in an otherwise pacific article to a point that "opens the possibility of local military alliances in America."

The amendments were received favorably, but will be reported back to the committee at some future day.

Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentina, advocated the closest cooperation among the border patrols of adjoining countries and also the right of pursuit of criminals attempting escape across the border. He recommended a treaty containing such provisions.

The separation of well-established and indisputable legal principles from those not firmly established and their incorporation in conventions, as suggested by Santiago Key Ayala, Venezuela, was opposed by Charles Evans Hughes, who believed that it was too early to take such a step. He proposed that the committee wait until the reporters had presented their recommendations.

The desirability of the establishment of a Pan-American tribunal with jurisdiction over all controversies arising between the American nations, excepting problems involving constitutional rights, was emphasized by Dr. Jesus Yepes, of Colombia. His plan calls for the location of the tribunal at Havana, representatives of the 21 American republics to act as juriste over a period of six years. Half the jurists would act as principal judges and the others as advisers or assistants.

The preamble to the resolution points out that the geographical isolation of the American countries necessitates their own court of arbitration, inasmuch as "it has been proved that America does not receive sufficient cooperation from the league of nations."

SEN. HEFLIN ATTACKS NEWSPAPER WRITERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24— (AP) — Threats to bar some newspaper writers from the senate press gallery were made today by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, in objecting to some of the accounts of his speech yesterday in which he asasiled his critics and renewed his attacks on the Catholic church and Governor Smith of New York.

Obtaining recognition late in the day, the Alabama senator confined his remarks to denials of statements written in stories published in the two Washington newspapers. He referred to the writers as "liars" and "hickory nuts."

Mr. Heflin denied published assertions in the Washington News that he had said he would quit the democratic party if Al Smith were nominated for president. He gave notice that he was going to ask the senate to take some action against newspapers "who lie about me" if he found any more of it.

Then, he turned to the headline in the Washington Herald, a Hearst paper which read "Heflin's Blasphemy Shocks Senate" and he said that in using the name of the Saviour in debate yesterday he was directly quoting some newspaperman and was not using the language as his own.

"I want to serve notice right now on Mr. Hearst," Heflin shouted, "that if he continues I will read some affidavits that will shut some of his hickory nuts out of this gallery."

DECLARES THAT FRENCH LITERATURE IS NOT RACY

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 24—(AP)—The general American idea that French literature means something racy is utterly false, Prof. Stanley L. Galpin, head of the romance languages department at Trinity college, told one of his students in the studio of station WTIC here tonight in the course of a radio dialogue on "Ideas and Ideals in French Literature." All of the great writers of French literature have had a message, Prof. Galpin said, and the greater the writer the simpler and more fundamental that message seems to be.

The average American reader has gained his impression of the content of French literature chiefly from the paper-bound volumes on the shelves of most American book stores, Mr. Galpin said, which are published, "merely to while away an idle hour with entertainment that has something of a kick in it," and the average American reader is chiefly at fault for this selection of French work, for the selection was made to suit his taste.

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE EXPERIENCED TORNADOES

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 24—(AP)—Twenty-one school children and their teacher narrowly escaped serious injury on the outskirts of Paducah today in one or more tornadoes which struck in Kentucky and Tennessee and are believed to have spent their energy in nearby Illinois without causing any damage there. Only one life was believed to have been claimed by the twister. No estimate of property loss was available because of crippled wire communication facilities.

An infant daughter of A. Trice, a farmer, was killed when the Trice home near the village of Gage, Ky., was tossed about until demolished. The tot was caught beneath the wreckage of a chimney. Her body was recovered by her father as a terror-stricken mother looked on.

CHARLES BRICKLEY TOO ILL TO ATTEND COURT

BOSTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—Charles Brickley, former Harvard football star, was defaulted in Suffolk superior court when he failed to appear for trial on three indictments charging larceny of more than $36,000 through bucket shop operations. Later in the day, however, counsel for Brickley appeared before Judge Fosdick and filed a physician certificate that their client was too ill to attend court. The attorneys said Brickley would be able to appear for trial in a few days.

Brickley pleaded not guilty to the charges recently and furnished $30,000 bonds. Two other secret indictments are pending against him.

SEARCHING FOR 19 OF 21 ESCAPED PRISONERS

DETROIT, Jan. 24—(AP)—The search for nineteen of twenty-one prisoners who early today dug their way to freedom out of a branch of the county jail here in what was described as "the largest wholesale delivery of federal prisoners in the history of the state," assumed international proportions tonight.

Two of the fugitives were recaptured several hours after the escape, but authorities were combing Canadian border cities following receipt of information that most of the escaped prisoners planned to cross the Detroit river into Canada in their dash for liberty.

City and state police and federal narcotic agents were scouring Detroit's underworld haunts, believing that some of the fugitives, most of whom were said to be drug addicts, would seek refuge in dives where they might find drugs.

The recaptured prisoners are Robert J. White, found hiding in the brickyard and William Tradeau, arrested when he applied at a hospital for drug treatment.

The prisoners, all confined in one cell, dug their way through a brick wall with crude tools fashioned from a plumbing fixture and buckets flattened out. Four prisoners refused to leave the cell, although the way was open to them.

Near the bodies was a revolver with four bullets discharged. Police asserted the indications were that Quarles had shot his wife and son and then killed himself.

Military Funeral For Gen. Goethals

Imposing Scene at Historic Cemetery at the West Point Military Academy.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 24—(AP)—The body of Major General George W. Goethals, U. S. A., retired, builder of the Panama Canal, was buried today, with imposing military ceremonies, in the historic cemetery of the United States Military academy on the plains overlooking the winding Hudson river.

It was the wish of the man who separated two continents whose name will always be associated with one of the greatest engineering triumps of the ages. His grave is near the mounds of General Winfield Scott, General Daniel Butterfield and General George B. Custer.

The beat of muffled drums and the slow measures of the funeral dirge sounded as the full corps of cadets was drawn up after the simple services in the post chapel. The flag-draped coffin was carried to the burying ground on a martillery caisson.

A squad of cadets from B company—the company General Goethals commanded when he was a cadet—fired a volley as the coffin was lowered into the grave, and the shots echoed and re-echoed through the surrounding hills.

Then—the plaintive notes of "taps" from a cadet bugler, and the academy had given its final honors to one of its most distinguished sons.

The Rev. H. Percy Silver, a former academy chaplain and an old friend of the family, was in charge of the service in the chapel. Mrs. Goethals, her two sons and daughters-in-law were present, together with many high in the public and military life.

The honorary pall bearers were General Peyton C. March, Charles E. Hewitt, Charles J. Bartley, General George W. Goode, Admiral H. H. Rousseau, Joseph B. Bishop, General Harry F. Hodges and Col. C. J. Fleberger—all former classmates, or close business and personal friends.

Members of the Hickman family, the defendant's mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman, and his brother Alfred, are here from Kansas City and his father, Thomas Hickman, from Elpaso, to take park in the trial. Mr. and Mrs. Hickman were divorced some years ago.

Hartley Resigns As Captain of Leviathan

Has Crossed the Ocean Nearly 900 Times—H. Cunningham Made Captain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—After thirty-five years on the sea, the last five in command of the mighty Leviathan, foreign ports and rolling waves have lost their lure for Herbert Hartley and he desires instead a home such as he has not known since he was eighteen.

Today, he tendered his resignation as commodore of the United States Lines fleet, and before sundown it was accepted by the the shipping board and Vice Commodore H. Cunningham was promoted to fill his place. Cunningham has been commander of the liner George Washington.

Hartley is going into business. He has accepted a post with the Poppreil Manufacturing company of Boston, a cotton concern, as its Atlanta representative. Sales offices will be opened there about February 1 when his resignation becomes effective.

"I have not had a home since I was eighteen," Captain Hartley said in submitting his resignation, "and I'd like to see some of the other boys have the Leviathan now."

Captain Hartley's sea experience began on the schoolship Saratoga, on which he learned seamanship from two young ensigns, now Admiral William S. Sims and Admiral W. B. Fletcher, both retired. Two years later, he joined the S. S. St. Paul of the American Lines and in the service of this company, he passed through all the grades from junior to senior officer. In 1916, he was put in command of the vessel.

During the war, Hartley served as a lieutenant commander and later as a commander in the navy and received several decorations for meritorious service. He took command of the Leviathan March 20, 1923.

In the course of his career, Captain Hartley has crossed the Atlantic nearly 900 times.

WATERBURY CHURCH CONTROVERSY DEADLOCKED

WATERBURY, Jan. 24—(AP)—Forces for and against Rev. Henry Baldwin Todd, in the storm divided Trinity Episcopal church, were at a deadlock tonight. Canon law plainly says that the parish of an Episcopal church cannot force the resignation of a rector merely by a vote to that effect. The bishop of the diocese may settle the case or call in the standing committee of the diocese as counsel and then settle it, but the church cannot dismiss a rector who is unwilling to go without action by the bishop. Apparently, even the anti-Todds admit, round one goes to the clergyman.

More charges and counter-charges developed in the wrangle today. Mr. Todd's friends insist that the "antis" held secret meetings before the annual session was called and had the procedure cut and dried and the skids greased for the rector. After Robert S. Walker and his followers left the meeting in disgust last night, five new vestrymen, each pro-Todd, were elected and the defense claims a feather for its cap.

CHAMBERLIN WELCOMED AT HARRISBURG, PA.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 24—(AP)—This city today gave Clarence D. Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic aviator, an enthusiastic welcome.

The fair-haired birdman flew here from Allentown this morning in one hour and twenty minutes in his Sperry plane and in the fog and drizzle of late afternoon he flew over the city, banking and turning at low altitudes while the streets filled with upturned faces.

Tomorrow Chamberlin will continue his tour by flying to Altoona.

In an interview this afternoon Chamberlin expressed belief that Thea Rasche of Germany is the best female aviator of the times. He praised Katherine Stinson and Ruth Law, but said that Ruth Elder cannot compare with the others as a pilot.

Chamberlin gave a lecture illustrated with motion pictures tonight, and the program was broadcast by radio station WMBS, Harrisburg.

TERRIFIC WIND AND RAIN AT COLUMBIA, S. C.

While no great property loss has been reported many window panes, plate glass and doors were smashed. The lower house of the general assembly was in session at the time and the lights of the state capitol were put out of commission.

SUIT FRILED IN BEHALF OF CHARLEY CHAPLIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—(AP)—Suit was filed today on behalf of Charles Spencer Chaplin, film comedian, against First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., and First National Pictures, for $62,147.52, alleged unpaid income on films shown abroad.

Chaplin claimed that he was to have received 70 per cent of the $337,947.02 gross realized by the defendants from foreign exploitation, but that he actually received only about 23 per cent.

SEN. BINGHAM QUESTIONED SPONSOR OF BILL TO ENLARGE MERCHANT FLEET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—While the house today was passing a bill which provided, among other things, more than $13,000,000 for the reconditioning of government merchant ships, the senate began consideration of the Jones bill to enlarge the merchant fleet and maintain it under government operation.

The senate bill, sponsored by Chairman Jones, of the commerce committee, a republican, is contrary to the announced policy of President Coolidge to transfer the fleet to private hands. In calling it up, Senator Jones had the support of democrats and a number of republicans who favor government control.

The bill would authorize expenditures for a 15-year replacement program and Senator Jones read a report from the shipping board calling for a program involving a total expenditure of $250,000,000 over that period. The measure also would require unanimous consent of the shipping board for the sale of any ships.

During debate Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, asked Jones why a heavier burden should be placed on the taxpayers "rather than pass a bill which would lend a helping hand to those interested in building ships and thus relieve the taxpayers?"

Jones replied he favored a ship subsidy but declared it would be impossible to obtain one and therefore the only alternative was a government operated fleet.

INCRIMINATING EVIDENCE AGAINST HARRY SINCLAIR

Sinclair Named as the Source of $230,500 Bonds Given Former Secretary Fall, After the Lease of the Naval Oil Lands—Testimony Given by M. T. Everhart, Son-in-Law of Fall—Everhardt is the Man Who Handled the Bonds—Testimony Was Given Under Compulsion—Record Now Stands That Fall Received $294,000 From Sinclair and $100,000 From Doheny.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—Harry F. Sinclair was named today before the senate lands committee as the source of the $230,500 in liberty bonds received by Albert B. Fall, after he had leased the Teapot Dome Naval Reserve to the wealthy New York oil operator in April, 1922.

This testimony, twice withheld from the federal courts, was given freely by the man who handled the bonds, M. T. Everhart, of Pueblo, Colorado, son-in-law of the former interior secretary. He declared that besides this sum, for which Sinclair was to get an interest in Fall's New Mexico ranch, Fall received $2,500 in liberty bonds and $36,000 in cash as "loans" from Sinclair. The witness said he did not know whether these were repaid.

At its original inquiry four years ago, which was revived today, the committee received testimony that Sinclair also advanced $25,000 in liberty bonds to Fall after the latter had retired from the cabinet and before he made a trip to Russia as the oil operator's representative in negotiations with the soviet government.

Thus the record now stands that the former interior secretary received a sum total of $294,000 from Sinclair and $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny after the lease of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills California naval oil lands, which since have been recovered by the government.

Testimony at the Fall-Sinclair criminal conspiracy trial here which was halted abruptly last November after Burns' detectives shadowed the jury, was that the $230,500 in bonds which Everhart says Sinclair personally paid over to him were part of a block of such securities which the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., a now extinct Canadian corporation, bought in New York out of its profits on the purchase and resale of oil in this country.

The committee will set out now to ascertain if it can what became of the remainder of the $3,000,000 in profits which the Continental company is alleged to have made by buying oil from the late A. E. Humphreys, of Denver, and reselling it to the Standard Oil company of Indiana, the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, the Mid-West Refining company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company.

As the first step in that direction it called A. C. Downing, secretary of the New York Trust company, who produced the records of that bank showing transactions in liberty bonds totalling more than $1,000,000 by Henry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the mid-west, who now is in France and has refused to return here to testify in the Fall-Sinclair case.

The testimony in the District of Columbia supreme court here is that Blackmer, James E. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie company; Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil of Indiana, and Sinclair guaranteed the performance of the Continental contract with Humphreys.

The committee wants to know who got the remainder of the company's profits and what disposition was made of them. In that connection it is hinted that several former directors of political campaigns will be called upon to say whether any of the alleged slush fund went to pay off campaign deficits.

Sinclair, in Washington on account of his hearing in the local courts on a contempt charge growing out of his joint trial with Fall on a criminal conspiracy charge, refused tonight to make any comment on Everhart's testimony. He is under summons to go before the committee and may appear tomorrow or Thursday.

Until today Everhart had consistently refused to tell what he knew about any transactions between Fall and Sinclair on the ground of self-incrimination. That barrier recently was removed by a special act of congress and after he had made it clear to the committee that he was testifying under compulsion and not voluntarily, he told the details volubly, apparently happy that at last he could tell his story without fear of criminal prosecution.

Upon leaving the witness stand after being questioned for more than an hour, Everhart said he did not know whether Fall was aware of his plan to tell the details of the bond transaction.

"I had to tell my part," he said, "in fairness to my family."

Everhart told a somewhat vague and involved account of a refinancing of New Mexico ranch properties held by himself and his father-in-law, the details of which he said had been arranged by Fall and Sinclair before Everhart was brought into the deal.

Briefly the story was that the ranch properties were to be lumped and a one-third interest to be sold to Sinclair, the money to be used in paying off the indebtedness of the Tres Ritos Land and Cattle company, Fall's personal debts and the balance due on the Harriss ranch, adjoining Tres Ritos, which Fall had taken over.

In the picture was a scheme by which a part of Tres Ritos would be converted into a hunting and riding club and it appeared to Everhart that Sinclair's interest of one-third in the newly organized ranch company was on account of the prospective organization of the club.

The 100 shares of the stock of the old Tres Ritos company, held 50 shares by Fall, one share by Everhart in his own right and 49 shares as trustee for his wife's estate, were exchanged for 100 shares of stock in the new company. Everhart said this stock was divided 33 shares to himself, 33 shares to him as trustee for Sinclair and 33 shares to Fall with one share to an employe of the company so he might qualify as a director.

Sinclair's payments, Everhart said, were made in Washington and in New York and were in liberty bonds. The deal finally was consummated in Fall's office in the interior department and then Sinclair and Everhart went to the oil operator's private car where $198,000 in Liberty bonds were paid over.

DENIAL OF REPORT OF $4,000 RANSOM DEMAND

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 24—(AP)—A report that a $4,000 ransom demand had been made on the parents of Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith college student, was denied today by State Detective Joseph V. Daley, who has been directing the 11 day search for the girl.

The detective said, however, that St. John Smith, father of the girl, received a "crank" letter from Detroit which stated that she was in that city. Daley said the investigators were convinced immediately that the letter was the work of a "crank" but asked Detroit police to investigate because the writer had signed his name as "Mitchell R. Spring" and gave his address.

The Detroit police, Daley was informed today, found no person by that name at the given address but a detective was assigned to watch the house as a precautionary measure.

PREDICTIONS OF WAR DISPLEASING TO COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—In the opinion of President Coolidge, no one need take seriously the sanguinary predictions of American army and navy officials that the United States is about to go to war with its commercial rivals.

This announcement of the president's view, made at the white house today, came in a reply to a statement attributed to Rear Admiral Charles T. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, in which he warned that an outbreak of hostilities was not far distant.

Such a stir was created in European newspapers that the white house felt impelled to explained that declarations of this nature are the usual way in which officers of the national defense attempt to work up domestic sentiment at a time when army and navy appropriation bills are about to be considered in congress.

He became director emeritis in 1913.

COSGRAVE SPENT BUSY DAY IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP)—A busy round of social activities, including luncheon at the white house as the guest of President Coolidge filled the second day of the stay here of President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free state executive council.

While many of those who entertained him until well after last midnight were still sleeping, the slight, mild-mannered Irish executive was up, almost with the sun, and in the saddle. A canter through the capital's famous Rock Creek park followed, in the course of which he encountered and joined forces with Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, himself a devted equestrian.

After a short rest and breakfast at his hotel, Mr. Cosgrave, accompanied by Minister Smiddy and an official party motored to Arlington where he placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. He returned to Washington immediately and at one o'clock presented himself at the white house to keep his luncheon engagement with Mr. Coolidge.

The luncheon was a brilliant affair with Vice President Dawes, cabinet officials, several members of congress and high ranking officers of the military services present. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, an intimate friend of the President was among the fifty guests who gathered in honor of the first head of an Irish government to visit the United States.

The program for the remainder of the day was rounded out with official calls, originally planned for yesterday, but postponed for lack of time. These included personal visits to Vice President Dawes, Chief Justice Taft of the supreme court and Speaker Longworth. A reception was arranged in his honor for late in the afternoon at the home of Col. L. H. R. Pope-Hennessey, military attache at the British embassy, and later he dined at the Irish Free State legation as guest of Minister Smiddy.

CHANGING PRINTERS FOR SINCLAIR NOVEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—(AP)—The editors of the Bookman announced tonight that they had been obliged to change printers between issues, because officials of the Rumford Press, at Concord, N. H., after reading the first installment of Upton Sinclair's "Boston," regarded the novel as "an aggressive attack on Boston and other areas of New England."

Burton Rascoe, editor of the magazine, said in a statement that "the action which made it necessary for us to seek another printed between issues of the magazine is entirely consistent with an attitude of mind Mr. Sinclair depicts as obtaining among quite a number of good gentlefolk in New England."

MATHWINK MURDER TRIAL OPENS AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 24—The trial of Sava Mathwink of this city, charged with the murder in the first degree of Mrs. Anna Berkowitz, wife of Jacob Berkowitz, at the Berkowitz home, 275 Prospect street, on the night of November 4, 1927, got under way in the Windham county superior court session held here today. All but the last hour of the session which adjourned at 4:45 o'clock was consumed in the selection of a jury panel. Judge Edward M. Yeomans opened court at 10 o'clock. Of the 60 talesmen whose names appeared on the list as summoned by Sheriff Charles A. Gates and his deputies, 51 responded to rall call. The examination of these 51 for jury qualifications resulted in the acceptance of 10 by both the defense and state. At 3 o'clock as the list of 51 had been exhausted the deputy sheriffs were ordered out to secure an additional group of prospective talesmen and within a half hour had returned with seven men, four from Windham, one from Chaplin and one from North Windham. Jilbert P. Flynn, of this city was selected and the 12th juryman to be accepted was C. Winfield Noyes, local merchant, who was the last man on the list and the 58th man to be examined during the day.

Miss Marjorie Bradford of Putnam, assistant clerk of the court, administered the oath to the jury at 3:50 o'clock. Sava Mathwink, the accused, was then escorted from the prisoner's stand to the center of the courtroom to listen to the reading of the first degree murder charge signed by Grand Jury Foreman Charles M. Perrin. While listening to the reading of the lengthy charge to which he had previously pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Putnam, the accused remained motionless, giving no outward evidence of inner emotions.

With the reading of the charge completed the trial got underway without further delay. Two large maps, one of the city streets in the vicinity of the shooting and another of the Berkowitz kithchen in which Mrs. Berkowitz was killed were placed on easels and the drawings explained by Robert E. Mitchell of this city, a civil engineer, who made the maps and took measurements. He was questioned in his examinations by State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and cross-examined by County Protector Charles L. Torrey of Putnam and Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of this city, counsel for the defense. The maps were entered as exhibits A and B. This testimony was followed by that of Lewye G. Gerry, local photographer, who explained a series of seven photographs made of the exterior of the house and the interior of the kitchen. The interior photographs show the body on the floor and the position of the furniture, windows and doors of the kitchen. The photographs were entered as exhibit C without questioning by the defense. At this juncture court adjourned until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock when the state will resume its evidence.

Larrow Sent to State's Prison

The first business of the court session was to take renewed action in the case of Joseph Larrow of Putnam charged with attempt at rape. Previously during the present term of the court Larrow had been sentenced to the reformatory as Cheshire on the charge but State's Attorney Bradford has since learned that the man is over 25 years of age. He was presented again before the court and the sentence changed to not less than one nor more than three years in state's prison.

Mathwink Jury Selected

The first man to be accepted to serve on the jury to hear the Mathwink case was Fred C. Whitford of Sterling, owner of a general merchandise store. The basis of acceptance was that the talesman had not formed an opinion in the case and that he held no scruples to capital punishment when evidence showed that it was warranted. Three talesmen had been excused prior to Mr. Whitford's acceptance. The examinations were conducted alternately by State's Attorney Bradford and his associate, Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam and Attorneys Torrey and Harvey representing the defense. The list of jurymen on the panel follows: Fred C. Whitford, Sterling; Leon J. Moffitt, Scotland; Frank Bebbington, Ashford; Walter E. Frink, Sterling; Wayland Gage, Woodstock; Fred Bowen, Eastford; Irving Paine, Woodstock; Clarence Stevens, Thompson; James Sunderland, Ashford; Sylvestre Baker, Pomfret; Cilbzert P. Flynn, Windham; C. Winfield Noyes, Windham. With but few exceptions the panel is composed of farmers and about four have had previous experience on a jury. Three of the jurors are merchants and one a tire salesman. The 25 excuses allotted to each side in selecting a jury did not play a material part as neither side had exhausted its quota when the panel was completed, the defense having used 14 and the state 19 excuses, the remainder being made by Judge Yeomans. Talesmen on the list who were excused, the majority for being opposed to capital punishment or having formed a pre-conceived opinion in the case through reading newspaper accounts or conversation were: Bernard W. Potter, Chaplin; Clifford Burdick, Chaplin; Alphonse Morin, Putnam; Gustaf Lindstrom, Plainfield; John Perrin, Woodstock; James Welch, Thompson; Harry Brearly, Killingly; Jesse Burnham, Hampton; John A. McKenna, Windham; Bert Johnson, Woodstock; Wilson F. Herr, Canterbury; Carl R. Nelson, Pomfret; Alphonse Allard, Plainfield; Homer C. Beecher, Brooklyn; Thomas Bell, Putnam; Edgar B. Bosworth, Pomfret; Charles W. Clark, Eastford; Alexander Maitland, Thompson; Fred Willoughby, Scotland; John M. Tatem, Eastford; Irving W. Davis, Killingly; John I. Hammond, Hampton; Asa T. Burdick, Hampton; DeForrest Wells, Brooklyn; John S. Sandstrom, Thompson; Henry Weaver, Brooklyn; John B. Edgarton, Windham; Fred W. Sherman, Thompson; Oscar W. Baker, Thompson; Jeremiah F. Collonan, Plainfield; Thomas Devoe, Plainfield; Everett S. Mitchell, Killingly; Andrew T. J. Clark, Canterbury; James W. Doyle, Plainfield; Marshal J. Frink, Brooklyn; Oliver Sabins, Canterbury; Frederick A. Card, Brooklyn; Sidney P. Marland, Killingly; Lloyd Harvey, Hampton; Joseph LaBelle, Killingly; Trenor A. Rice, Chaplin; Jirah F. Hyde, Hampton; Louis Vadnais, Putnam; Ruel M. Hyde, Windham; Raymond L. Angier, Windham; Frank E. Platt, Chaplin, James M. Smith, Windham and Samuel A. Chappell, Windham.

Throughout the day the limited seating capacity of the courtroom was jammed and a crowd remained in the lobby hoping for a chance to get inside for the trial. Several women were among the spectators. The witness gallery was filled to capacity. At the close of the session Mathwink was returned to Brooklyn jail to spend the night.

NOANK

The ice dealers were wearing a smile for a few days when the cold wind was blowing and the temperature was 15 above and it looked as though ice was on the way. At one pond everything was ready to start marking, but Monday the warm wind soon melted the ice and all hopes are shot again for the icemen until the west helps them out by sending a little cold weather. If a cold snap doesn't come in the next month the owners of the ice ponds can sing "Good Bye Ice Crop Until Next Year!" The ice has never been as late as this year. Working men who put in 8 hours a day in the open air, claim that ice dealers can buy the frozen stuff and have it come on flat cars to the station just as cheap and let Indian summer keep right along.

Does illness keep you from your work?

A GIRL who earns her living—whether in store, office, factory or home—realizes the necessity of regular attendance at her place of employment. For this reason she works on day after day. When she becomes tired out and run-down, she feels that she must keep at her work without taking time to rest.

Thousands of girls have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored them to a normal physical condition, and has made them fit for work. These two women testify to that fact:

HEALTHY AND STRONG

Silverton, Oregon:—"I am writing to tell you how much your medicine has helped me. I was doing cannery work, canning, sealing, etc., but had to quit work when sick as I would be so weak I could hardly walk across the room. A friend of mine told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have found relief when sick and it helps me more each time. Every one says I am a healthier and stronger girl. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends." Julia Schmidt, 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

Remember this package. None genuine without the signature of Lydia E. Pinkham.

LOOK AS YOUNG

Fruitdale, South Dakota:—"I felt badly. It seemed like my back broke all to pieces and I couldn't stoop down to get anything from the floor. Then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I did, and it sure has helped me. I can work all day long and I feel so good. I am 38 years old and I look just as young as if I were 20. I am glad to answer letters from any one about this medicine because it has done me good." Mrs. Francis F. Fajardo, Box 31, Fruitdale, South Dakota.

Little Joe Interferes.

None but the strong, 'tis very clear,
With other folk should interfere.
—Old Mother Nature.

Spite the Marten was so close behind Billy Mink that when Billy dodged around an old stump and almost ran into little Joe Otter, Spite in his turn almost did the same thing. Little Joe had hardly glimpsed Billy Mink before; here in front of him was Billy Mink's big cousin. Spite stopped short and drew back, spitting and snarling angrily. You know, it almost always makes people angry to be startled, and Spite was as much startled at seeing little Joe as little Joe was at seeing Spite. He also drew back snarling and spitting. My, how they glared at each other!

"What does this mean?" demanded little Joe Otter.

"Mind your own business and get out of my way!" snarled Spite the Marten.

Little Joe Otter began to see red. "I'll get out of no one's way!" he snapped. "What do you mean by rushing along on my trail this way? What business have you here, anyway?"

Spite the Marten made a motion as if to spring past little Joe Otter, but, like most of his cousins of the Weasel family, little Joe can move quickly. He did so now. He threw himself in front of Spite and Spite bounded back. Big as Spite is, little Joe Otter is bigger, and Spite had no desire to get in a fight with him.

"You are interfering with my hunting!" snarled Spite.

"No such thing!" declared little Joe Otter. "I was attending strictly to my own affairs when you came tearing around that stump."

"What have you done with Billy Mink?" demanded Spite.

"I haven't got Billy Mink and I haven't had Billy Mink, and you know it!" retorted little Joe.

"Then where is he?" demanded Spite. "He dodged around this stump just ahead of me. Where is he?"

"He isn't here and I don't know where he is," declared little Joe Otter. "I hope by this time he's safe. What business have you around here, anyway?"

Then those two cousins spit and snarled and glared and said unpleasant things and dared each other. But they didn't fight. Spite was too smart to risk a fight with one so big and strong as little Joe Otter.

"What does this mean?" demanded little Joe Otter.

Meanwhile Billy Mink was making the best possible use of his legs. Fear had left his heart now. He knew he could reach the Laughing Brook, and, once there, he could laugh at Spite the Marten. And Billy was thinking well of himself. "I played that trick pretty well," said Billy to himself. "I wish I could have stayed to hear what Spite and little Joe had to say to each other. Yes, sir, I do so! But my life is more than all the fights in the world. It's funny how we can get people to do good turns for us when we least expect it and haven't any desire to. Little Joe back there is saving my life and doesn't know it. The longer he keeps Spite the easier it is for me. Ah, there's the Laughing Brook. Now I don't care when they stop quarreling."

In a few more bounds Billy reached the bank of the Laughing Brook. He looked back for a moment and grinned as he heard the snarling of his quarreling cousins. Then he slipped down through a little airhole and disappeared under the ice. He had nothing now to fear from Spite the Marten, for Spite is not a swimmer like Billy.

AN INTERESTING FACE, a wonderful smile—attractiveness, charm. All spoiled by that one inexcusable fault to which all of us are subject—body odor.

Yet it's needless to risk offending. Simply wash and bathe often with Lifebuoy, the deodorizing toilet soap.

The same mild, antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores. Wonderful for complexions, too—keeps them clear, fresh and healthy.

DANIELSON

MAN HAS SKULL FRACTURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 24.—Sergeant Thomas Freels, C. A. C., stationed at the Army base in Boston, had his skull fractured just before noon today in an automobile accident on Hall's hill, at South Killingly, and was regarded as in very dangerous condition when removed to the Day Kimball hospital, in Putnam, where he remained unconscious this afternoon. Frank Scott, of East Hartford, who had a leg broken in the accident, and Harry Kenney, of East Hartford, whose back was badly strained in the crash, also were removed to the hospital.

Sergeant Freels was riding an army truck with Driver Private John Burgess, also of the Army base at Boston, bound from Boston to Hartford with a load of barracks furniture aboard. The truck was coming down the hill and was well toward the foot of the incline when the truck is said to have swerved sharply and struck a pleasure car being driven up the hill by Mr. Scott. Driver Burgess escaped from the wreck without any serious injury.

News of the wreck was telephoned to the state police barracks here and State Officer Irving Nelson went over to check it up.

The machines that figured in the accident were badly damaged.

This morning the funeral of Joseph Edward Caron, who died of burns he received Saturday night, was held from the home of Delor Paquin, Front street, West Side, with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., were the officers of the mass. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Rev. Fr. Demers conducting the committal service. The bearers were Pierre Turgeon, Joseph Belanger, Wilfred Bernier, representing the Union St. John Baptist, and Wilfred Bouchard, Wilfred DesJordy, Joseph Gingras, representing the Franco-American Foresters. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Encouraging reports came from Mrs. Caron and her daughter, Lillian, today. Their recovery appears now to be but a matter of time. Mrs. Caron knows of her husband's death, and despite her injuries and the shock, she has sustained, has borne up bravely.

A death at Attawaugan during last night was that of Mrs. Anna M. Armington. Mrs. Armington was a native of the town of Killingly, her name prior to her marriage being Miss Anna Blanchard. In addition to her husband, she leaves two sons by a former marriage, Charles Matthews, of Attawaugan, and Clarence Matthews, of Attleboro.

Observers looked with keen interest this morning at one of the New Haven's giant '3500' class locomotives—the new ones being pictured and described so widely—as it steamed northward through Danielson. Interest grew into amazement as the train behind it began to roll by. No one hereabouts measured the length of that train, but the locomotive was up at the Connecticut mills, a mile to the north, before the rear of the train cleared the Main street crossing. One need not be a railroader to sense that it was some train. Locomotive 3532 was pulling the train, and seemingly doing it with no excessive strain. The monster machine is one of ten recently acquired by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

It is thought that one of the finest county fruit programs that has ever been arranged, has already been completed for the annual County Fruit Institute to be held at Masonic hall, South Woodstock, Wednesday, February 1st.

Fred E. Cole who will talk on "Needed Changes in Marketing Practices," was the former manager of the Nashoba Fruit Growers' association whose headquarters are at Littleton, Massachusetts. He also has had a good deal of experience among the large fruit marketing associations in the states of Washington and Oregon.

Harold Rogers is the new president of the State Pomological society and takes charge of the management, with his father, of one of the largest and most up-to-date fruit farms in Connecticut.

The apple maggot or railroad worm, which is giving trouble to fruit growers all over the east, will be discussed by Mr. Zappe of the experiment station, who has been working for the last few years developing control methods.

President Buell will give a brief summary of the activities of the Quinebaug Valley Fruit Growers' association during the past year.

The question box, which will be conducted, will take care of any questions that an individual may have in mind, tending to make the institute meet the individual as well as the collective problems that fruit growers may have.

County Agent Frank L. Davis will discuss the "Standardization of Fruit Practices," bringing out different business practices that are desirable in the fruit business in order to make fruit products fit marketing demands.

An attendance of fruit growers from all over the county is expected as well as from the southern part of Worcester county.

The proposal to take the big steam shovel to be used in Brooklyn across the Quinebaug river at a point near the borough farm, was abandoned today and the machine run down to Wauregan, across the bridges there and on into Brooklyn, and it is now near where it is to be put to work. The contractor who is to build the road is Charles A. Haggerty, of Webster.

It is very much of a pleasure, considering various circumstances, pertaining to industrial conditions, to write into the record that the Williamsville Buff company, doing business here, is forging ahead and increasing its sales. It manufactures cotton buff wheels, used largely in polishing, and consumes the product of 100 cotton looms, or thereabouts. The wheels have a wide distribution in the United States.

Today at a private hospital in Providence, the remaining eye of William H. Shippee, of Westfield avenue, was removed in the interest of his general health. Mr. Shippee has been totally blind for about a dozen years and had his other eye removed about ten years ago. He was reported late this afternoon as having gone through the operation splendidly and as being in favorable condition. Mr. Shippee is 84 years of age. DIAPEPSIN KEEPS APPETITE YOUNG

If you have to force yourself to eat, and invariably get indigestion, sluggish headaches, and you are losing weight, excessive acidity is ruining your stomach.

That's why 5 million packages are sold every year. Chew one or two of the tablets after meals, and you will never have indigestion, or be bloated.

STATE LEASES HAMMOND BUILDING FOR ARMORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 24.—Captain John J. McGarry of the Headquarters company of the 43rd division of this city has announced that the state military authorities have leased Hammond hall on Harris street for an armory for the national guard unit in this city.

There had been rumors of the need of a new armory in Putnam but Captain McGarry had no definite announcements to make regarding the change from the Livery street building, which is now in a very bad condition. The lease on the new armory has been drawn up so that the building on Harris street will be ready for occupancy by the first of March.

The new armory on Harris street was originally built to house the old Company G, and during the late war the building was used as an armory for the company of which Captain McGarry was the commanding officer, known as the home guards. The state authorities are to have the building renovated at once so it will be a modern quarters for Putnam's national guard company.

JEWETT CITY

"HOUSE-ON-WHEELS" OWNER CRITICALLY ILL TUESDAY

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. James Crary received word Tuesday of the serious condition of Mrs. W. J. Christopher, at her home in Mountain View, N. J. The Christopher family were one time residents in Griswold. During their stay here, their trip to Florida in their house on wheels made them quite famous. Mrs. Christopher has been confined to a wheel chair for years.

Fire Marshal G. H. Prior has secured the registration number of the automobile that crowded the fire truck last week, nearly causing an accident. Although the apparatus was returning from a fire, yet the siren was in operation. A traffic regulation governs such cases, and here, no more than, in a city, is interference with fire vehicles permissible. Every now and then, on the borough's main street, which is also the Connecticut state highway, some fresh visitor, with an "I'm from the city air," pulls off a little small town side-show stuff, that is likely to result in an unpleasant comeback.

The town's population being notified in advance one day last week that one of the big new New Haven freighters was going to pass through, there was a general hurrying to the nearest place, where a view of the railroad could be received. No man got there in season, but saw the very last word in freight locomotives, and that at his very door. One man declared, as he recalled the turn-table and one time great round-house in Norwich, that he didn't see how they were ever going to get it to going the other way, or find a place to keep it over night. The engine and tender filled the Pachaug bridge, near the crossing, full, and more, it stuck over on both ends.

With the arrival this week of a number of very attractive 1928 seed catalogs, one may be assured that another spring is on the way. Several growers were looking over their hundreds of stored "toes" and giving the necessary attention to those that appear to be getting too dry. Last summer no more attractive gardens were to be met with anywhere, than were to be seen in this section. Edgar Knox, the son of the late William Knox, a one time grower of local note had 50 of his father's choice varieties in bloom. The Old Cluey Watson garden, with its 42 choice sorts, will be more attractive this summer with several additions from the top liner list. G. H. Prior also is planning a larger garden, with not a few of the finer blooms to have a place assigned.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy cascaret.

Cascarizing the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartic has this chraacteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents; because children love to take a cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

THE UNITED WORKERS

Not only at the time of its annual meeting, when reports of the work in the various departments are presented, are the people of Norwich deeply interested in and appreciative of the services rendered by the United Workers, but that seems to be the time when much attention is focused upon its various activities.

From a small beginning over a half century ago, this organization has grown steadily until it is one of the great assets of the city. It has gone far beyond the limits contemplated by its founders and is still expanding whenever it finds it possible to undertake new community service.

Through this organization the people of Norwich are relieved of much work which would otherwise devolve upon them. It is done so automatically and so effectively that it has long since been depended upon to meet certain requirements, and it is a question whether we give it the consideration and the active and generous support that it deserves.

During the past year hearty endorsement was not only reflected in the more than $50,000 in restricted legacies, but in the contributions in money, time and thought which have been made by the people of the city through the various committees. This furtherance of the good cause is deserving of the highest commendation, but it needs to be borne in mind that while much good has been and is being done under the funds of the United Workers, most of which are restricted, there is always an opportunity for doing more. How great an extension there can be is dependent upon the financial support that is provided.

Being appreciative of the excellent and far reaching effects, Norwich is bound to be sufficiently interested to keep it functioning in accord with present day requirements. Norwich likes to recall how efficiently many of the problems common to all cities are handled locally, but in doing so it cannot be unmindful of the foresight of those in the past who have made it possible, or fail to take into account the responsibilities of the present generation for the future.

BRING OUT THE FACTS

New York makes provision for a census five years after the federal census, thus getting a check up on its population every five years. Appropriation of $1,200,000 was made for the last state census but charges were made that the secretary of state, Mrs. Florence Knapp at that time, had mishandled that fund. The result was that a special investigator was named to probe the situation. This he did with much thoroughness, but without the accused appearing before him to make explanation of the manner in which the census fund was used.

Following the interrogation of persons connected with the fund and the census, and a survey of the papers in the case the investigator charges the former secretary with larceny, forgery and other crimes in such a way that it seems impossible that the governor of New York state can fail to take recognition of it and set in motion the prosecution of Mrs. Knapp.

In view of the fact that Mrs. Knapp is an educator, the first woman to hold that office and a leader among women no little surprise has been occasioned by the whole affair. Others have been accused with her but she was at the head of the fund and must bear the responsibility for the acts of others, especially when they were carried out at her direction, until it is possible for her to present evidence which will counteract that which was obtained by the special investigator.

Through the criminal prosecution that has been recommended the facts should be disclosed. It is not the first time, of course, that those in high office have been under suspicion, but the case attracts more than the usual attention because it is a case where Mrs. Knapp was put in office because she was a woman, where it would be supposed that she would be unusually careful in her administration as to honesty and against misuse of funds. It will not do to pass judgment until the whole affair has been aired, but that should be done without greater delay than is necessary.

EFFORTS AT HAVANA

Interest cannot fail to surround the progress made at the Pan-American conference at Havana. There are matters of importance to all the countries that are represented, but there is also a display of resentment from some of them toward the United States as if this country was profiting from their misfortune.

In the addresses that have been made at Havana by President Coolidge and Charles E. Hughes, chairman of the United States delegation, there have been set forth the purposes and policies of this government and they cannot have failed to do much in removing wrong ideas. The spirit of good will and the attitude of tolerance cannot fail to have removed some of the wrongly conceived ideas. They have served undoubtedly to cause some of the delegates to do a bit of thinking and to realize that snap judgments are not safe guides.

What the conference will do in connection with a certain desire which has been put forth for a reorganization of the Pan-American union remains to be seen. When changes are made it is usually expected that something better will be put in the place of what exists. If such can be provided for there certainly should not be any objection. It is quite evident that the United States would not stand in the way of any improvement. Probably it would not oppose any changes that would still leave the organization just as effective as it now is but would accomplish a remodeling of the machinery.

As the organization stands at the present time its headquarters is in this country, an American is at the head of it, the chairman of the governing board has since organization been the secretary of state of this country and the other members of that board are the representatives of the Latin-American countries at Washington.

There are those who feel that the director general and the head of the governing board and possibly the headquarters should be passed about among the other republics. If they can produce evidence to show that it would be a wise move there's no doubt but what it can be accomplished, but whatever move is made should be justified by merit.

THE PRESTON BRIDGE ACCIDENT

Norwich has experienced a distressing loss of life in the wiping out of a family of seven when an auto plunged off Preston bridge into the Shetucket river after colliding with a motorcycle.

The accident is one that must get a most careful study for the purpose of ascertaining just what happened, the rate of speed at which the vehicles were traveling and how under the circumstances it was possible for the automobile to jump the 14 inch guard, cross the footpath and go through the side rail into the river below.

Not many weeks ago another car was stopped just on the very edge and the driver had a narrow escape from doing the same thing. Icy conditions and the lack of a sufficient guard were held responsible at that time, but immediate steps were taken to establish a guard which it was believed would prevent anything of the kind in the future.

The circumstances surrounding the two accidents were entirely different. It is possible that a different handling of the cars would have overcome the trouble in each instance, but with one near and one actual plunge with an entire family the victims thought must be given to such measures as are deemed necessary to prevent any repetitions.

Possibly the answer lies in more careful driving, but in view of the terrible affair it is possible that a raising of the guard to a height that will prevent a car from going over the edge may be needed in order to protect the lives of those who are always at the mercy of the person at the wheel of an automobile.

ENOUGH RADIO CHAOS

Radio users have not forgotten the chaotic condition which prevailed not so many months ago when the refusal to abide by regulatory measures resulted in a general mixup in broadcasting. It was anticipated that such a condition would never be repeated when the radio commission was named and put to work. There has been a marked improvement since that time, but the commission has not completed its job. It has in fact not solved the problems that it began wrestling with, although it has not been idle. It has done much to eliminate the chaotic condition but there are still stations which conflict.

The commission has plans for dealing with these and is ready to put them into operation but it is waiting to find out what congress is going to do in regard to the commission. It has no desire to start something which it will not be able to finish. It has thus countermanded orders which were to go into effect next month and whether they are made effective at all will depend upon what the senate does in the way of confirming three appointments to the radio commission now awaiting action.

If the senate stalls, refuses to confirm or does nothing, there's a good prospect that radio conditions will return to what they were a little more than a year ago. It is not pleasant to contemplate and it is a situation which ought not to be possible, but while the senate wastes a lot of time in useless debate and dawdling it could and should recognize the importance of disposing of this matter. The fact that it still has a couple of months in which to act doesn't justify holding it up to the last minute. If the commission was considered necessary to handle such a job it ought to be permitted to see it through.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Strange we hear no one bemoaning the absence of sleighbells this winter.

Only one week left in January, but there are 29 days in February and 31 in March.

While oil may be used for calming troubled waters, it also acts at times as the creator of much trouble.

The man on the corner says: Another January thaw and the snowshovelers are not kicking because it rains.

There are no indications just at present that the thundershowers are about to begin, but that makes no difference with static.

Even if the naval academy men are required to play golf it doesn't necessarily follow that they must play a match with West Point.

The suggestion is made that submarine disasters could be prevented by prohibiting submarines from diving. The suggester could not have remembered that the S-51 was on the surface and showing lights.

HOPEFUL MISANTHROPE

The handsome young man with the gay tie raised his chin and tightened his jaw.

"No," he told the other young man emphatically, "I am not going with you to meet your lovely cousin from Oskaloosa!

"We'd better understand each other right from the beginning. If this Mildred were a homely girl with a kind heart and no line of chatter I'd be glad to help you out, because I'd do most anything for a friend, and you know it—but I must say I'm a little surprised that you have no more consideration for me than to expose me to a genuine knockout such as you claim your cousin to be. I'm down on women, and I'm going to tell you why.

"Remember my speaking to a man on the street as we came along from lunch a while ago? A tall, saturnine individual who glared at me? Well, a little over a year ago the charming girl to whom I was engaged threw me over and married him—and I'm still paying $6.35 a month on the expensive set of books I gave that girl on her birthday the week before the crash came!

"Whenever I feel myself growing sentimental over an eyelash or a complexion, I hunt up a book store, take a look and am cured. Euwina always said that she though books lent such an air to a home and it was my desire to surround her with them which led me into my folly. Quite often during the last year I have pictured her husband beneath the evening lamp, with slippers on his feet and a cigar in his mouth, happily perusing one of my books, while I sat lonesomely by a desk making out innumerable checks for $6.35.

"Then there were Lucie and little Bagonia, both of whom I was crazy about just before radios became universal and victrolas were in the limelight. Like all other beaux, whenever I wanted especially to make a hit I arrived with a box of candy under one arm and two or three new records under the other.

"Why, I placed enough grand opera, world-famous sopranos, violinists and quarters at the feet of those girls in the shape of records to make wheels for every vehicle in the states today! To say nothing of educating their musical taste and placing them in the class which can go to concerts and frown in a pained way when the soloist is half a tone flat whenever he hits A! It always sounds far more expert to shudder at a half tone off than a whole one.

"Somehow both of them gave me the impression, at different times, of course, that we were due to go through life together washing dishes and dusting the parlor furniture while listening to the swan song from 'Lohengrin' or the sextet from 'Lucia.'

"Well—Bagonia married a scientist who can't distinguish a George Cohan melody from a church hymn, while Lucie is wedded to a captain of Saanes who buys her opera boxes and stays home himself and plays solitaire. That's all the good my musical outpouring did them! Without a doubt they learned, too, to think of me bitterly in the housecleaning days when somebody asked them what under creation was to be done with all these old records! It is natural to dislike anyone who does you favors you can't return. And now I hope I have made myself entirely clear to you."

"The trouble with you is poor judgment," declared the other young man. "No matter how much a girl may claim to love books, she'll admire your taste lots more if you buy her a hundred-dollar bracelet. And you might just as well have taken Begonia and Lucie out to some nice, bright cafe where they could have listened to the orchestra itself, danced and thought you were wonderful.

"However, no doubt, it was a dispensation of fate—for this cousin of mine has books, plays the piano by ear and can listen to a young man talk by the hour, maintaining, meanwhile, an entranced expression, and—I'm telling you, you never saw her equal. Still, if these are your real feelings I can ring up Ted or John and——"

"Wait a minute," the handsome young man interrupted, beginning to stir around and open dresser drawers. "I haven't anything to do tonight, and just to oblige you I might as well toddle along. A person is tolerably safe from smallpox after he has been vaccinated. Did you say she was a blond?"—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Nephritis

By C. H. Hofrichter, M. D., Seattle, Member Gorgas Memorial

Nephritis is inflammation of the kidneys. The type of this condition with which the layman is most familiar is called Bright's disease. This form of nephritis is a chronic condition and is associated with high blood pressure. There are, however, a number of other definite forms of kidney disturbance. For the layman kidney diseases may be classified as acute and chronic.

The group of acute manifestations assumes a role of considerable importance. The usual cause of acute nephritis is infection. Such infections as abscessed teeth, infected tonsils, sinuses harboring infections, or an ordinary cold are frequently the cause of acute nephritis. It is important that care be taken to prevent and eliminate every possible focus of infection. Your doctor and your dentist can advise you in these matters. Frequently in the wake of a group of more severe infections like pneumonia, scarlet fever and measles, there will come an attack of acute nephritis. Your doctor will caution you about too sudden an exposure following these conditions. If one is predisposed to acute attacks of nephritis they may prevent a chronic nephritis by preventing these acute attacks.

The causes of chronic nephritis are more difficult to trace. It is well known that frequent attacks of acute nephritis may be responsible for a chronic nephritis. Hardness of the arteries does cause chronic kidney changes. Diabetes has a direct influence upon the kidney.

It is the function of the kidney to eliminate the residue of such foods as meat, fish, milk, eggs and cheese after the utilization has been as complete as possible. If one has chronic nephritis, the reduction of the intake of these foods to the lowest possible quantity is helpful. Your doctor should prescribe a definite diet for you in undertaking the reduction in quantity of these foods, for considerable harm may come from using too little.

Some idea of the importance of this problem to the individual and the physician may be gained from a glance at the statistics of the United States census bureau for the year 1920. During that year 1,306 persons died from this condition for each 100,000 of our population.

149.7 persons died of diseases of the heart.

137.3 persons died of pneumonia (all forms).

114.2) persons died of tuberculosis (all forms).

89.4 persons died of acute nephritis and Bright's disease.

83.4 persons died of cancer and other malignant tumors.

Good intelligent care will accomplish a great deal in nephritis, and your doctor should guide you as carefully as a captain guides a ship.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

Copper

The Quincy copper mine of northern Michigan, recently the scene of an air blast that damaged the 79-year-old shaft, lies in one of the oldest copper mining regions in the United States," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"In colonial days, copper was taken in small quantities from deposits along the Atlantic seaboard, but it was a shipment of copper ore from the Michigan deposits to the east in 1845 that marked the real beginning of our copper mining industry. Now we produce more copper than the rest of the world combined.

"Because copper is widely used in the electrical field, it is called the electrician's metal," continues the bulletin. "Wherever one sees electric lights and the use of electric power, there is copper. Pure copper drawn into wire is hidden in the walls of modern homes, and in electric irons and stoves, and in the motors of electric vacuum cleaners, dishwashers and refrigerators. In some cities one is literally sandwiched between copper wire. Millions of miles of underground cable and overhead wires carry the click of the telegraph key and the sound of the human voice.

"The copper wires of one of our telephone systems would encircle the world at the equator more than 2,000 times. One of our telegraph companies operates over more than a million miles of copper wire and owns 18 copper-ladenEables that connect the United States with Europe and the islands of the Atlantic.

"Copper wire made possible the recent inauguration of the transatlantic telephone service and the communication of the S. O. S. signal that saved hundreds of lives when the Italian steamship Mafalda was wrecked off the Brazilian coast. Radio instruments, with their copper wire connections and coils, are entertaining the world daily.

"Pure copper is too soft for many purposes but alloyed with other metals it is widely used. Bronze is copper and tin. Brass is copper and zinc. Gunmetal is copper, tin and zinc. Each of these alloys are more than half copper. Copper is also alloyed with many other metals, including gold and silver.

"Disregarding the use of copper for electrical purposes, under its real name and those of its alloys, copper is seldom out of sight or reach of the average man in this country. He may sleep under a copper roof in a brass bed and be awakened by an alarm clock with brass works. While dressing he may sit on a chair that is held together by brass screws and pull on his shoes that have brass eyelets and perhaps brass nails in the soles. He may turn a brass knob to open the doors in his home, draw water from a brass faucet leading from brass pipes and dry his hands on a towel from a brass towel rack, while the curtains at the windows hang from brass curtain rods. His food may be grown with the help of farming implements containing copper and its alloys, and cooked in copper kitchen utensils.

"If he uses his automobile or a street car to go to office, he rides in either of two vehicles that are important copper consumers. On his way to town perhaps he will pass a bronze statue or two and show-windows that are encased in copper. If he draws coins from his pocket to make a purchase, he handles copper even though he has no pennies for all of our coins, including the gold pieces, contain copper. The money may finally find its way into some merchant's cash register containing copper and later pay water taxes according to the reading of a copper meter.

"In his office he talks over a brass telephone instrument, uses brass pins and paper clips, and with brass pens, and a pencil with a brass band, may write on stationary that has been engraved from a copper plate. A brass bladed fan keeps him cool in the summer and the brass fittings of the heating system help to keep him warm in the winter.

"Copper is with him on his business trip whether he travels by boat, train or airplane. Copper alloy plates are used in ship hull construction and in the construction of railroad cars and engines—both electric and steam. Ammunition and fighting machinery of various kinds use an enormous amount of copper and copper alloys. During the World War more copper was produced than in any equal period before or since.

"Sixteen states and Alaska each produce more than 100,000 pounds of copper annually. Arizona, our largest copper producing state, contributed nearly one half of our output of more than 1,700,000,000 pounds last year. Utah which supplied about 259,000,000 pounds topped Montana by about 2,000,000 pounds and Michigan, last of the 'Big Four' produced about 174,000,000 pounds."

Stories That Recall Others

An Act of Thrift.

A clerk in one of the stores inquired of a woman customer if she might help her, to which she received the following reply:

"I would like to exchange this Christmas card for a New Year's card!"

"——So On Far Into the Night."

It was closing time in an office and the help was gathered round discussing the latTEST radio and radio programmes.

"Some of those stations must broadcast all night," observed one. "I shut my set off at 1:30 a. m. and they were still broadcasting."

"Yeh," snawered the man who had just bought a receiving set, "they didn't sign off until half past four and I found myself in a terrible predicament, for it was too late to go to bed and too early to go to work so I just sat up the rest of the night."

Little Talks on Thrift

Franklin's Philosophy.

The nation is this month celebrating the anniversary of one who in many respects ranked as the greatest of all Americans—Benjamin Franklin.

Although excelling in statesmanship, literature, business, finance and science, Franklin no doubt holds his highest place in the public mind as the commanding advocate of thrift. It may be stated, too, that it is the reflection of sound public opinion when a nation is willing and glad to pay such homage to one who has taught us so much about the values and needs of thrift in our daily lives.

The life of this great, simple man abounded in amazing development. Many of his accomplishments were dramatic—intensely absorbing—spectacular. Yet we all think of him most, love him most dearly and revere his name most reverently as the one who for more than 150 years has kept the thoughts of the nation on thrift.

It is to be noted that the Franklin philosophy which, through all these long years has been growing ever more popular and impressive, is the epitome of simplicity. It is this charm that has had much to do with its virile ascendancy from year to year. In this modern life of ours with the practical annihilation of distance and with every day bringing new triumphs of science, we are becoming complex.

But the truths of life are simple. Humanity never can get away from fundamentals. The plain axioms of Poor Richard will live through the ages.

Our standards of living wil continue to progress. Fifty years from now life will be quite different from what it is today insofar as conveniences, comforts and advantages go. But the upbuilding effect of the homely virtues remain as unchanged as the mountains or the sea.

Among the many inspiring signs of the times no other is more significant than the widespread attention that is each year given to the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin.

Former Norwich Leaders

George W. Gould

(From Norwich Bulletin, Sept. 17, 1894)

The death of George W. Gould occurred at his home on East Broad street Saturday morning, Sept. 15. He had been ill for three months, and was 77 years of age. Mr. Gould has been a resident of this city since 1848, being a native of Stoddard, N. H. He was an intensive machinist, and after conducting a foundry on Thames street became associated with C. B. Rogers and others, and a company was formed for making woodworking machinery. This firm, C. B. Rogers & Co., erected buildings on Thames street, and Mr. Gould became manager.

Mr. Gould had planned in his early career to give up active business when he became 60 years of age. At that time he retired from the firm of C. B. Rogers & Co. He has held for many years, until just recently, the position of director of the Uncas National bank and took great interest and pleasure in the management of the bank. He was a member of the state legislature in 1858, and was at one time connected with the city government. He was a member of the Universalist church.

The deceased leaves a wife, one son, Mr. W. H. Gould, of New York, and a daughter, Mrs. Donald G. Perkins. He was a brother of Augustus Gould and the late Lyman Gould of this city, and leaves sisters and a brother living at Keene, N. H.

GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY TO PROTECT GAMBLING

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 24—(AP)—The trial of Councilman Edward Dallaire, of Warren, R. I., one of 11 persons indicted for an alleged conspiracy to protect gambling in that town ended abruptly in superior court here this afternoon when Dallaire pleaded nolo and was released under $2,000 surety for sentence February 13. Attorney General Charles P. Sisson declared the plea was accompanied by no agreement between counsel.

During the morning session, Francis J. Higgins, chairman of the Warren school committee, who had turned state's evidence, admitted that his first accounts to the attorney general of what he knew about gambling machines in Warren had been untruthful and said he did not expect to go to jail for his confessed participation in the activities of the gambling ring.

You Can't Judge For Yourself

It is very seldom that you find a man who really understands grades of coal, unless he is in that business. Most people can judge the value of houses, radios and other things the family uses—but coal all looks alike to the ordinary buyer.

Since this is so, the general public must depend on their dealers to give them high grades of coal.

During ninety years of business in Norwich the Edward Chappell Company has stood in the front rank of coal and lumber dealers in Eastern Connecticut. This is because The Chappell Company is dependable and gives a square deal to all.

PRINCIPAL TIRRELL GAVE TALK ON EDUCATION

Principal H. A. Tirrell of Norwich Free Academy was the speaker at club night for the Arcanum club Tuesday evening, following a delicious clam chowder supper which was served at 6.30.

Principal Tirrell was introduced by the club president, Tyler D. Guy, with a complimentary reference to the many times at which the club had listened to Mr. Tirrell with pleasure and profit and the Academy head proceeded to continue this record with an instructive and entertaining talk upon "Education."

He pointed out that schooling is not education, but is only one small part of the many ways in which a person is being educated, if he thinks at all. But without schooling, the individual is handicapped in his chances to become even a useful man. One thing all should get is a sense of self esteem, the feeling that one is good for something, and there is no more wholesome place to get it than with a lot of other children doing the same thing. There is something to be said of the value of education on the social side. One great use of the school is to awaken in the young an interest in the progress of humanity. The school opens to the boy and girl that view of life that everything that is noble and best is theirs if they will only make it their own.

Charles A. Hagberg, Wilbur S. Williams and George F. Blood were the committee in charge of the evening's entertainment.

Prizes in pinochle went as follows: Mrs. I. Robinson 8436; Mrs. W. R. Hastedt 8040; Mrs. A. J. Wholey, 7790, and William Scott, 8090; Geo. Wholley, 7570; David Kane, 7440.

Those taking the prizes in whist were the following: Mrs. Walski, 74; Miss Mary Quinn, 53; Mrs. H. A. Sherman, 52, and N. Conaty, 41; Burt Webber, 35; Harry Collins 28, Burt Webber winning on the cut.

Catholic Near East Welfare Call

The diocese of Hartford will formally open the second annual roll call of the Catholic Near East Welfare association on Sunday, January 29, when members who rallied to the support of the association last year will be asked to renew their memberships for 1928. At the same time, with the aid of parish priests throughout this diocese, new members will be sought. The diocese of Hartford last year took an active part in the movement which was lauded by Pope Pius as a "magnificent success," and which enabled the holy see not only to meet the pressure of requests for succor in Asia Minor and Greece, but provided funds aggregating $100,000 from the vatican's purse for the relief of Mississippi flood victims.

Two Calls for Grass Fires

The fire department was called out twice Tuesday for grass fires on land in the rear of Grant court. The first call came in at 11.38 o'clock in the morning and the second call at 7.10 o'clock in the evening. The second fire is thought to have been caused by a cigarette dropped on the grass by a careless smoker. There was no damage at either fire.

JUDGMENT FOR $2,470 IN FAVOR OF NEW LONDON

In the superior court here Tuesday Judge C. L. Avery heard the conclusion of testimony in the case of the city of New London against executors of the estate of Elias F. Morgan and later gave judgment for the city to recover from the Morgan estate the sum of $2,470.

The city sued the Morgan estate, of which Annie R. and George Curtis Morgan were executors, to recover a refund of $2,313.91 in taxes which the city had made to the Mariners Savings bank, which foreclosed a mortgage against the Morgan estate and paid back taxes amounting to $10,402.94 which were standing against the Morgan estate on the city tax collector's books on Sept. 30, 1926. Afterwards it was discovered by the bank that this amount included some back taxes which were not on the foreclosed property, and it made a demand upon the city for a refund of the amount of $2,313.91, which the city paid back to the bank in June, 1927. Then the city brought suit to recover the amount from the estate.

LOSES SUIT ON CLAIM OF THEFT OF AUTOMOBILE

James L. Sullivan of 184 Ocean avenue, New London, lost his suit against the Inter-State Fire Insurance company of Detroit to recover $600 on a theft insurance policy on his automobile, according to a decision handed down Tuesday by Judge C. L. Avery who gave judgment for the defendant.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Avery said:

"The policy of insurance covers loss by theft, robbery or pilferage. The evidence shows that Redden called at his aunt's home on June 19, 1927, a Sunday evening, very much intoxicated. After staying a while he drove off in his uncle's car instead of his own; and a little later came back and told them the car was damaged on Ocean avenue. The evidence does not indicate any intention on Redden's part to steal the car. It is plainly a case of taking without permission rather than theft.

Judgment may be entered for the defendant."

According to the evidence in the case which was credited by the court, the machine was driven away from Sullivan's house by Frank H. Redden, his nephew, and was damaged, in a collision in Ocean avenue.

Sullivan claimed that it had been damaged to the extent of $600 and sued the insurance company on the claim that the car, a Chrysler coach, had been stolen from 184 Ocean avenue by a person not of the assured's family or of the assured's service or employment.

WILCOX RESIGNATION NOT YET IN HANDS OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The expected written resignation from Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich State hospital, had not been received by Tuesday by H. H. Gallup of this city, president of the board of trustees, it was learned Tuesday night, and Dr. Wilcox was still functioning as superintendent at the institution.

When the resignation is received, a full meeting of the board of trustees will be called to take action upon it and the probability is that Dr. E. J. Burdsall, who is now assistant superintendent, will be made acting superintendent.

President Gallup stated that he had been misrepresented in a report Monday that he had denied then having knowledge of the resignation.

The Hartford Times said Tuesday:

Although Arthur F. Libby, of Norwich, secretary of the board, denied yesterday afternoon in a telephone conversation that Dr. Wilcox had been asked to resign, it is understood that Mr. Libby had had during the course of the day a frank talk with the superintendent and received his verbal resignation. It is further understood that the executive committee of the board of trustees took action and notified the superintendent that he was relieved.

Several times in the past few months Governor Trumbull has presented complaints regarding conditions at the hospital to the board, urging that body to look more thoroughly into the matter and remedy the situation. The board has the authority to appoint and remove the superintendent.

Among the complaints against the superintendent and the conduct of his institution were slackness in the discipline of the institution and the overlooking of infractions of the regulations pertaining to the institution.

The governor and other state officials watching the institution, have been able to obtain no information from any of the employes at the hospital about conditions there. Whenever one has been summoned to the capitol and questioned or asked to answer questions frankly and confidentially each has repeatedly refused for fear of losing his position at the institution.

PROBED ALCOHOL SHORTAGE AT NORWICH HOSPITAL

HARTFORD, Jan. 24—(AP)—A shortage of 18 gallons in the institution's supply of medicinal alcohol, revealed in an investigation made by federal prohibition agents, was one of the criticisms of the conduct of the Norwich State hospital which led Governor Trumbull to demand remedial action by the institution trustees, it was learned today. Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the institution for the past decade, submitted his resignation to a member of the board of trustees Monday, following a "frank talk" by the trustee and the superintendent of conditions at the institution.

Complaints regarding the Norwich institution, which cares for more than 2,000 insane persons, have been received in considerable numbers by both Governor Trumbull and Edward F. Hall, commissioner of control and finance. When Commissioner Hall received an intimation that there was an unexplained shortage in the medicinal alcohol supply at the hospital, he asked the prohibition agents to investigate. Their check-up of the amount of alcohol bought by the institution and the amount dispensed showed a discrepancy of 18 gallons over a period of 18 months. The hospital has been buying, on an average, 11 gallons of alcohol a month.

Information on the alcohol shortage came as the climax to the series of complaints which had been received over a period of months. Governor Trumbull, after discussing the matter with Commissioner Hall, summoned Henry H. Gallup, president, and Arthur F. Libby, secretary, of the Norwich hospital board of trustees to Hartford. At a conference which the governor and Commissioner Hall had with the institution executives on December 8, Governor Trumbull bluntly called upon the board of trustees to bring about an improvement. The alternative, it was made clear, was a new board of trustees which would make changes.

Members of the board of trustees say that the resignation of the superintendent was not requested. Dr. Wilcox declines to give the reason for his retirement from the Norwich post, and has also declined to discuss his plans for the future.

SHOT HIMSELF IN BARN IN OLD MYSTIC

Hiram L. Holdredge, 72, of Old Mystic, killed himself with a 32 calibre revolver Monday afternoon, in an old deserted barn about a mile from his home, in a section known as Porter's Rocks. It is thought that despondency, brought about by an extended illness prompted the act.

The revolver with which Mr. Holdredge shot himself was a recent purchased one. Where it was purchased is not known, but in a manger in a section of the barn were found the box in which the revolver had been contained, cleaning rods and literature concerning the operation of the firearm.

Mr. Holdredge's lifeless body, his hand still clutching the weapon was found about 7 o'clock by Morris Maine.

Dr. Frank W. Hewes, medical examiner for town of Groton gave his verdict as suicide. Examination showed that a bullet from the revolver had entered Mr. Holdredge's head above and behind the right ear. There were powder burns on the skin.

For many years Mr. Holdredge had been a farmer.

He was born in the town of Groton, August 24, 1855, the son of Leonard and Nancy Watrous Holdredge. He is survived by his wife, Ella, and by several nephews and nieces.

NORWICH BOY SCOUTS REPORT ON YEAR'S WORK

The annual meeting of the Norwich Council of the Boy Scouts of America was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Tuesday evening. The meeting was opened by the president off the council, Charles Colt, who called for the secretary's report of the last annual meeting which was read. The report of the treasurer, read by Scout Executive Frederick J. Bielefield, Jr., showed that the council's expenditures for the year 1927 had been within the budget figures.

The report of the nominating committee was read by the chairman, Charles I. Smith, with the nominations of the following officers: President, Charles Colt; vice presidents, Dr. R. R. Agnew, Rev. John J. Reilly, Frederick B. Craven and Max Hanover; secretary, C. E. Fitch; treasurer, Arthur E. Story; representative to the national council, Nathan A. Gibbs; chairmac nanifne H-princ SEHTRA chairman finance committee, Louis M. Crandall. The nominations were seconded and the officers elected. Chairman Colt then called upon Scout Executive Bielefield for his report, which follows:

"At the beginning of the year 1927 the scout membership in the council totaled 203 Scouts, distributed among 11 troops, with 11 scoutmasters, 12 assistant scoutmasters. Of this number of (Scouts, 136 were tenderfoot, 38 second class and 22 first class and merit badge. At the end of the year the Scout membership had increased to 304 Scouts, 14 troops, 14 scoutmasters, 17 assistant scoutmasters. Off this number 142 were tenderfoot, 115 second class and 47 first class and merit badge. During the years three Courts of Honor were held, at which first class scouts took a total of 48 merit badges, the Firemanship being the most popular.

"During Anniversary Week in February, troops held troop banquets and parents' nights, and some of the troops held investiture ceremonies for Scouts admitted to the troop during the year. All of the troops were visited that week by the scout executive who made 180 visits to troops during the year, taking part in the troop meetings and assisting with tests.

"The annual financial campaign opened after a mass meeting at the Town hall on Sunday, Feb. 13. Nathan A. Gibbs was chairman of the campaign committee, with W. E. Severance, deputy region scout executive, assisting in the work of the committee.

"During this week, Scouts were busy combing the woods in and around Norwich for traces of a missing Norwich boy, over 150 Scouts being kept at the reach for over a week. The scout executive, scoutmasters and council members also investigated a number of reports which hoped to throw some light on the boy's disappearance.

"In February, March and April, Scouts gathered and destroyed 21,439 tent caterpillar egg masses. The efforts of the Scouts in this work were aided considerably by Allen Latham, of Norwich Town, who took great interest in the Scouts' collections, and gave a number of awards of honey for the largest collections made.

"During the months of March, April and May, Scouts assisted in fighting forest fires, and rendered valuable assistance at these fires. One group of Scouts while on a hike noticed beyond a hill, investigated, found a fire spreading rapidly and worked two hours before the fire was under control and out.

"Window cards were distributed and other assistance given by Scouts during the week for the blind in May. Scouts participated in the parade and exercises on Memorial day, and during June, nearly all of the troops had hikes. During these months Scouts distributed cards, pamphlets and posters for the chamber of commerce.

"During the early spring, the camp committee, with George H. Young, as chairman, visited a number of places to find a suitable camp site for our council camp. Many of the lakes near Norwich were visited by Mr. Young, Harry E. Prentice, Harry W. Cardwell and Max Hanover, with other members of the executive board, and a site finanily selected at Avery pond, town of Preston, through the generosity of Messrs. Shedd and Dawley, who owned the site. The camp committee moved the boats and cooking cabin from Beach pond to the new site, and spent a number of days arranging the new site, setting up the cooking cabin and preparing for the camping season. A number of Scouts helped prepare the grounds, and the tents were set up by the camp committee and an advance party of Scouts who were under the direction of Scoutmaster Victor Davis of Troop 3. Camp opened on July 6th, with the scout executive in charge, Victor Davis and Tohmas Baldwin as assistants and John Jencks as cook. Junior assistants in charge of patrols during the camp period were: Cecil Wetherbee, William Agnew, Henry Reardon, Walter Haun, Albert Airey, Sidney Thune, and Nicholas Tarrant."

After the reading of the scout executive's report, a vote of thanks was extended by the meeting to George H. Young, and the members of his camping committee for the fine work which was accomplished by the committee during the year.

"During the four weeks of camp, the Scouts passed 78 different tests, and qualified for 196 belt awards, which were given for camp improvement, test work and special duties. Sixteen scouts took fourteen mile hikes, usually to North Stonington or Old Mystic, and six Scouts were taught to swim. Four others passed their lifesaving merit badges, while six more passed their swimming merit badge. The other tests were in Nature Study, Cooking, Stars, Pace and Compass. A number of hikes were taken by the whole camp, the average distance being six miles. Four field meets were held, one each week, and each was followed by a water meet. In all 67 different boys enjoyed the benefits of the council training camp, with a total of 107 boy weeks, for the four weeks of camp. There was no sickness at camp, each Scout being exceptionally healthy. The food and milk were the best procurable, and enough milk was provided to average a quart a day per boy. The milk was procured near at hand, from a tested herd. Ease of transportation made it easy to procure fresh meats and vegetables. Fresh water was available from a newly dug well, the water being tested before camp started and found to be 100 per cent. pure. A new and larger dining tent was provided, and tent arrangements made much more comfortable by wooden floors under the tents. The camp was open to visitors at all times and was visited by over 300 people during the four weeks. Visitors were especially numerous on Sundays, which was a quiet day at camp, with only routine camp duties for the scouts to perform. A short religious service was held on Sunday mornings at camp, and the Catholic Scouts were taken to St. Patrick's church in Norwich for mass.

"In September a handicraft exhibit was set up at the Connecticut state fair, with two scouts in attendance. The boys were in attendance at the booth and the Boy Scout encampment for the week of the fair duration. During this month Scouts took part in the pageant at the fair grounds on Labor day, and at the New London County fair built a rustic birch fence around the automobile exhibit and helped those in charge in many other ways.

"Scouts assisted the United Workers in distributing Thanksgiving baskets at Thanksgiving time, and distributed Christmas Seal window cards and also helped the Red Cross in its campaign.

"During the month of December a request was sent out for old and discarded toys, which were collected by Scouts and taken to Scout Headquarters. There the toys were repaired, painted and completely renovated, and taken to the United Workers for distribution. Over four hundred toys were collected and repaired and the response to the Scouts' efforts was so great that there is no doubt that the toy repair work will be an annual event.

Scouts are being trained as forest fire guides through the medium of test work and the forestry merit badge. The forest fire guides will be capable of assisting at any forest fire, and will assist in forest fire prevention work in this vicinity.

"Our thanks are due to all the members of the service clubs and societies who assisted in the financial campaign in February, to the camp committee, who worked untiringly and spent much time from business so that we might have a real camp, to Messrs. Shedd and Dawley, who assisted the camp committee with the camp site, to E. A. PLAINFIELD PROS TAKE ON BOSTON WHIRLWINDS AGAIN THIS EVENING

Plainfield	Boston
Dessinger or Normandin lf	lf, Curtin
Brusso, rf	rf, Crotty
Slavinsky, c	c, Martin
Parnot, lg	lg, Kiley
Madden, rg	rg, Morley

Tonight at the Plainfield Community house another chapter of that now famous Plainfield-Boston Whirlwinds series will be uncorked and if past performances are to be taken as anything of a criterion then this game ought to produce some high-class basketball.

The Whirlwinds have always been big favorites in eastern Connecticut, always putting up hard-fought games and always giving the fans real excitement.

However, this time the Whirlwinds come with something to clear up, namley, how they ever got beat by a 37 to 7 score from Meriden. This is one of the mysteries of basketball. Surely it can't be that the Hub team is slipping for they have been campaining among Massachusetts teams, and the best of them, too, with sensational success. Coming closer to home they already hold tow decisions over the Pros this season, winning on both occasions by close scores.

To start this season, the Whirlwinds ran up a string of 15 victories that had New England fans standing on their heads. They drew packed houses all through the Cape Cod section and also central Massachusetts. However, late in December, after nearly two months play they finally lost, as all good teams will do now and then. They started another win streak and then ran into the Endeos at Meriden a couple of weeks ago and lost by such a wide margin. The Whirlwinds play an average of four or five games weekly.

At the Community house tonight they will have al ltheir regulars. Fiddle Morley wil lagain lead his mates onto the floor and no doubt in their first excursion into Connecticut since the last disastrous one they will be utter anxious to show that they are still the Whirlwinds of old.

Plainfield will also have all her regulars and the Pros will be prepared to give the visitors plenty to chhing about. In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies go against the Danielson Town team seconds in the second game of their little rivalry. The Buddies won an overtime game last week at Danielson that was just bubbling over with excitement.

The preliminary tonight starts at 8 o'clock with the main attraction at 9 p. m.

YALE SWIMMERS SET NEW TANK RECORDS

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 24—(AP)—Yale's varsity swimming relay teams tonight established eight world's and eight intercollegiate indoor records in the back stroke and breast stroke relays ranging from 600 yards to one mile in the 25 yard Carnegie Pool here during an intramural swimming meet, sanctioed by the A. A. U. and intercollegiate officials.

Seven of the world's records and three of the intercollegiate records erased former marks, while six marks were hung up at distances for which there have ben no recognized records.

State Skating Meet Off

HARTFORD, Jan. 24—(AP)—The state championship ice skating meet scheduled for Thursday night in this city has been postponed until next Tuesday, January 31 due to the unfavorable weather conditions for the outdoor sport.

LOCAL BASEBALL LOSES SUPPORTER IN DR. WILCOX

It was with sincere regret that baseball fans read of the resignation of Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, as superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, for in "Doc" Norwich never had a more ardent supporter of the national pastime. Taking a deep interest in baseball Dr. Wilcox has been instrumental in giving the state hospital one of the best baseball clubs in the state. During the last two years Riverview has had a state champion team and the results of this team can be traced directly to the efforts of Dr. Wilcox.

Not always popular with the fans, Dr. Wilcox has stood for clean baseball and has been a strict disciplinarian with the boys on the hospital club. Popular with the members of the team? Yes Any member of the hospital club will say that no better or fairer "boss" ever lived than Dr. Wilcox.

He has been outspoken, quick to correct faults but just as quick to give praise and encouragement. Certain of his ground but if in error quick to apologize and make amends. Those who know "Doc" best can testify to this fact. It has been Dr. Wilcox's strict insistance on sportsmanlike conduct and fairness that has often made him the target for abuse from the sidelines at the hospital diamond. He has taken this with a smile that seemed to say "They don't understand."

"Doc's" long and angular form, with his measured stride, his white hat, his knickers and the ever present cigarette will be missed this summer from the hospital diamond. His advice and his keen insight into baseball will also be missed. We are sincerely sorry to see Dr. Wilcox leave the institution. He is a true sportsman in every sense of the word. He was a modest winner and good loser. He was always a gentleman. What more can be said?

RICKARD ISSUES DENIAL OF TUNNEY REPORT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24—(AP)—Tex Rickard tonight denied all knowledge of an agreement as reported in Boston dispatches, whereby Gene Tunney would be willing to meet Jack Sharkey in a title bout if the latter first defeats Johnny Risko decisively.

"I never sent such a telegram," he clared when read the Boston story quoting a message purported to have been sent by him today to Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, in which he was asid to have declared that Tunney had agreed to such an arrangement.

"Jack Delaney and Tom Heeney still are in the running, just as much as they ever were, with a bout slated for about March 1," he said.

"Sharkey, if he knows anything, knows he has to beat somebody who is good before he gets a chance at Tunney or Dempsey, after his exhibition with Heeney."

FINE OF $5,000 FOR THOSE RUNNING OUT OF BOUTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Headline battlers who attempt to "run out" of matches in New York in the future will not escape without receiving at least one blow.

The state athletic commission decided today to level a $5,000 "sock" in the form of an appearance forfeit at the treasury of any fighter who declares himself unable to go through with a match on the scheduled date. The fistic fathers announced that legitimate cases of illness or injury, substantiated by its own physicians, will be dealt with "leniently."

This action followed the appearance of Charley Harvey, manager of Tom Heeney, before the commission to protest against Jack Delaney risking injury in bouts scheduled before the French-Canadian battle the New Zealand champion in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden on March 1. Heeney complained that a two-week postponement of his recent draw engagement with Jack Sharkey impaired his fighting form.

The commission refused to hamper Delaney in his avowed purpose of fighting himself into peak condition but expressed the opinion through William Muldoon, 82-year-old member, that postponements such as the Sharkey-Heeney affair must be prevented in the future. The board believes that Sharkey, who complained of an injury to his left hand, could have fought Heeney in December instead of demanding and obtaining postponement until Jan. 13.

"If Sharkey had done more fighting and had followed the course Jack Delaney has laid down, he would not have made such an exhibition of himself as he did against Heeney," Muldon declared.

"Sharkey drew full 70 per cent. of a near-record gate into the garden. Heeney probably attracted 30 per cent. Yet Heeney gave everything he had a 100 per cent. performance, and the best Jack did was perhaps 40 per cent. of his best. Lack of ring action did it."

During negotiations and final signing for the Heeney bout, Delaney fought twice, scoring knockouts over Sully Montgomery and Jack Humbeck. He has two more bouts scheduled before battling Heeney for the right to meet the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Johnny Risko bout, March 12, in the final of Tex Rickard's heavyweight 'elimination' tournament. A title shot at Gene Tunney has been guaranteed the winner of the final fray.

BASS AND BELANGER BANNED BY N. Y. MOGULS

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Two champions of the National Boxing association—"Frenchy" Belanger of the flyweights and Benny Bass, featherweight star—came under the ban of the New York State Athletic commission today.

Bass, storm center for many months in the controversy between two of boxing's ruling powers over leadership of the 126-pound division, was indefinitely suspended along with Phil Glassman, his manager, and the pilot's entire stable of boxers for "running out" of a match with Tony Canzoneri in Madison Square Garden next Friday night. Belanger, Canadian youngster, suffered the same punishment for failure to answer a summons to appear before the commission.

Drastic action against Bass and his manager followed the commission's discovery today that Bass is scheduled to fight Wilbur Cohen, New York negro, in Atlantic City next Monday night. The Philadelphian had his match with Canzoneri, recognized in New York as the featherweight king, postponed until Feb. 10 because of illness.

Bass, however, will be given an opportunity to fulfill his engagement with Canzoneri in the garden, Feb. 10.

Belanger was called before the board for questioning in regard to the alleged fouling of Frisco Grande of San Francisco, in a bout at Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 16. Indefinite suspension followed failure either of Belanger or a representative to answer the summons.

The commission's decision probably will hamper further the efforts of local promoters to bring together Belanger and Corporal Izzy Schwartz, recognized in New York state as the flyweight champion.

MILLVILLE PLAYS AT DANIELSON ON THURSDAY

At the town hall, Danielson, Thursday evening Danielson town team will have as its opponents the Millville squad, who is making their second appearance in Danielson this season. On the previous visit the visitors downed the locals by an advantage of four points, but only after a hard tussle. Evidence of the visitors strength was seen in the game two weeks ago when the Millville defeated the reputable Indian basketeers, holding them to a standstill.

Both teams will use their regular lineups in the game Thursday evening and as there is keen rivalry between the teams a fast game is the outcome. Sporting fans may also have the good fortune to see Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs in the field, as he may come to Danielson with the Millvillers as he did last year. Hartnett is an attraction in himself and his coming is sure to draw heavily.

PELTZER WILL COMPETE IN THREE MEETS HERE

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The Amateur Athletic union, through its foreign relations committee, today cleared the way for three American competitive appearances by Dr. Otto Peltzer, ace of German middle distance runners—two in New York and one in Chicago.

To gain formal sanction for these engagements, Peltzer needs only to comply with the usual A. A. U. regulations governing amateur competition and agree to make no exhibition appearances.

The German who conquered both Paavo Nurmi and Edvin Wide in Europe, already has filed his entry in the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 2, and in the Illinois Athletic club's track and field carnival at Chicago, Feb 10. His third appearance, provided he complies with a request of the foreign relations committee, will be in the National A. A. U. indoor championships at the garden, Feb. 25.

KAUFF FILES ANSWER TO GIANT CHARGES

CINCINNATI, Jan. 24—(AP)—Bennie Kauff, of Columbus, Ohio, former New York Giant outfielder, filed a reply in United States district court today to the Giants charges in answer to Kauff's suit for $6,052.50 salary for the 1921 season when he was refused permission to play with the Giants.

In making a general denial to the company's answer, Kauff said that Judge K. M. Landis had no authority to suspend him from playing in March, 1921, as he had signed a playing contract before Landis became high commisioner of baseball.

Kauff admitted that he was arrested in New York for stealing an automobile, but said he was tried and acquitted.

ACADEMY PLAYS BULKELEY ROVERS ON SATURDAY

Saturday night at the Y gym, the Academy and Bulkeley add just one more chapter to their athletic rivalries.

Announcement was made Tuesday of an Academy-Bulkeley (Rovers) tilt for the week-end. This game has been hanging fire for several days with both teams showing a strong desire to get together.

The Academy will have it on Bulkeley a bit, for they have played four games against the Whaler's one. Bulkeley lost to the Coast Guard Cubs while the Academy has won from Tourtellotte and Plainfield Highs and lost to Chapman Tech and Wilby High of Waterbury.

A packed house is practically assured for it is—Academy vs. Bulkeley.

WORLD'S CHAMPION CUE WIZARDS TO GIVE EXHIBITION AT ELKS TONIGHT

Jake Schaefer, world's billiard champion, and Welker Cochran, former champion, the two dominating figures in the billiard firmament come to Norwich this evening to give an exhibition of their mastery of the cue at the Elks club. Although neither has ever appeared in Norwich both are well-known and their names are synonymous o billiard perfection. The two wizards of the cue will play an exhibition of 300 or 400 points after which they will give an exhibition and demonstration of various billiard shots.

Schaefer perhaps has the most colorful career. Young Jake, as he is familarly called, is one of the very few who have literally followed in the footsteps of a father to the pinnacle of fame in any sport. Young Jake was practically born with a billiard cue in his hand and as soon as he was able to toddle he was shown what a cue was for by his father the famous Jake Schaefer of a score of years ago. When Young Jake reached the age where he could look over the edge of a billiard table he was given daily instruction in his father's billiard academy in San Francisco. Even at the tender age of eight or nine he was able to make the ivory do tricks on the green baize. He was an apt pupil of a brilliant teacher, schooled not only in the art of handling a cue but in controling the emotions which is every bit as important as making a brilliant three tank shot. It is this seeming lack of temperamental emotion that has brought Young Schaefer to the top of the billiard world. He seldom watches his opponent intently and his face never betrays how he feels when his opponent makes an especially brilliant recovery from an almost impossible position.

The daily routine of the champion billiard player is far from the "life of Riley" that is the general impression of the public. Like every other person who depends upon his physical well-being for his bread and butter it is a real work. The body must be kept in that lithe and supple trim, excess fat being as dangerous to a billiard player as to the track or baseball star. His hands get the most critical attention for in those hands lies largely the secret of that delicate touch and feel of the billiard stroke. The least scratch, no matter how trivial gets immediate attention from a specialist least the hand become infected. Temperate habits and a total abstinence from alcohol are requirements that most be lived up to if one would retain that keen eye for distance. Daily walks, in fact almost as strenuous road work as a boxer does, is part of the conditioning process. On top of this there is no lay off when on exhibition tours. Golf is taboo as it makes the hands hard and caloused.

And all this for love of the game. There is no tumultuous applause for the billiard player. Instead of vociferous verbal encouragement there is a stillness of the death watch as the two opponents glide noiselessly about the table studying the balls as they rest on the table. Only a sigh marks the missing of a shot and possibly a mild flutter of hands as a brilliant play is made and yet there is a tenseness that is thrilling to the spectators. It is a game well worth watching whether one understands it or not. As one person said yesterday, "I'm going to see Cochran and Schaefer because they are world's champions. I would do the same if the world's champion pancake flopper came to town, if he is a champion I want to see him."

The match is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

FAST BOUTS AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

Fight fans of Norwich will trek to New London tonight in anticipation of seeing 32 rounds of fast boxing (four eight round bouts) at the Lyceum theatre. This all-star program bids fair to be one of the best boxing cards put on in the Whaling City since the days of Austin Rice. Every bout a feature is the slogan of Jerry Sullivan, the energetic little promoter who is giving the eastern Conn. fans some mighty nice boxing.

Heading the card is the Bobby Mays-Tom Kerakas bout which should prove a fast atraction. Kerakas, claimant of the Greek lightweight title, a tough boy and Mays will have to step to get a decision. Mays has been training faithfully and on Tuesday night was pronounced by Joe Connelly to be in the best shape ever.

Sid Taylor of the U. S. Coast Guards takes on Sailor Darden of Brooklyn, colored welterweight champion in another eight round bout. Darden is a fast working boy that is tall and rangy and has a slight advantage over his New London opponent.

Mickey Connelly, billed as a second Terry McGovern, invades a New London ring for the first time in search of the scalp of Pete Aquinaldi another Coast Guard product. Acquinaldi is a fast little Filipino boxer and if he can stop the windmill style of Connelly he is some boy.

Local interest centers on the opening bout which brings Geno Pecheeni of Norwich against Jack O'Keefe of Hartford. O'Keefe is by far the best boy that Pecheeni has ever met and a victory for Geno is a long stride to the front for him.

PLAINFIELD NOSES OUT TRADERS IN LAST MINUTE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 24—(AP)—A field goal by Davignon and a foul by Modliszwiki snatched the game out of the fire for Plainfield high school in their setto with the Putnam Trade school here this afternoon. With two minutes to play and with the score 26 to 24 in favor of Putnam Davignon and Modliszwiki threw in enough points for the team to forge ahead of Putnam and win the game, 27 to 26.

Incidentally these two players were the heavy scorers for Plainfield, Davignon scoring 10 points on five field goals and "Mod" scoring 12 points on four field goals and four fouls. All regulars of Plainfield scored at least one point, as did those on the Putnam team, Rumrill contributing 13 points for the visitors with Gilbert second with 7 points.

At the end of the first quarter Plainfield led with two points, the score being 7 to 5 and at half time the locals still were in the van, the score being 13 to 11. In the preliminary to the big game the Plainfield high school girls sent back the Putnam Trade school girls by a score of 9 to 1. The summaries:

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Plainfield Pros ought to give the Boston Whirlwinds a tough struggle tonight.

The Y. Emps play the Stonington All-Stars Thursday night at the Y gym. The Emps will probably have Ogulnick, Hamil and Economous at the forwards with Sussman at center and Diachyshyn and Murphy at guards.

The Mebs of New London filled in as Chapman Tech's opponent last night in place of Saybrook high. This was done as a precautionary measure against the possible spread of smallpox, which is being fought in Saybrook.

Ensign William F. Howard has been appointed basketball coach of the Submarine Base team, succeeding Ensign William V. O'Regan, who has been transferred from the Base.

The Bulkeley Rovers, New London Bulkeley's unofficial basketball representative ought to be able to give the Academy a real battle here Saturday night.

The Danielson Towners face a tough one in the Millville Mass., A. C. Thursday night. This team beat Danielson earlier in the season.

The Plainfield Buddies and Danielson Seconds game tonight appears to be a real "natural" and those that get to the Community house early ought to see some fun.

The Brooklyn Visitations and New York Celtics are having some torrid intra-city battles.

The Visitations won Monday night at Madison Square Garden 28 to 24 but it was only after Nat Holman had been ejected for a fight and "Dutch" Denhert has been put out on five personal fouls that the Visitations were able to inflict the setback.

Lou Gehrig's All-Stars are at Springfield Saturday night meeting the Y. M. H. A.

The Pitt Panthers are proving just as capable at basketball as they were on the gridiron this year. They have scored 445 points in their nine victories to date, but when they meet Notre Dame another of the country's leaders in a few weeks that ought to be some game.

The C. F. C. game with the Hartford Central Baptists for next Monday at the Y is still pending but something definite will be out very soon.

Jewett City Boys Training.

After a month's lay off, the Jewett City boys have resumed their training for coming bouts to be held in New Haven and Putnam. The boys that will soon be seen in action are Happy Bontempo, Young Salinski, Young Swich and Young Golas. They are training with Kid Marinello. Manager Jack Potts has taken great interest in these boys.

SHARKEY SIGNS FOR BOUT WITH RISKO

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—(AP)—In a deal that shuffled an entirely new aspect into Tex Rickard's heavyweight tournament, Jack Sharkey, of Boston, was signed here late today to meet Johnny Risk, of Cleveland, at Madison Square Garden on March 12, the winner to meet Gene Tunney in a title bout some time next summer.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager came to terms with Jess McMahon, Madison Square matchmaker, after a deadlock of almost 24 hours on the matter of a Sharkey-Risko bout under any terms.

McMahon came to Boston yesterday to sign Sharkey for the Risko bout with the understanding that the winner would meet the victor of the impending Jack Delaney-Tom Heeney fight on March 1, to determine Tunney's first 1928 opponent. Buckley flatly refused to consider either Delaney or Heeney as prospective opponents and the conference broke up about dawn today.

McMahon telegraphed Rickard at Miami, Fla., for instructions and received the reply that Tunney would be willing to meet Sharkey on condition that the Boston ex-sailor decisively whipped Risko in a bout to run nothing short of 15 rounds. When Tunney's views were conveyed to Buckley at a second conference today, the Boston manager agreed to the bout and the contract was signed.

What disposition is to be made of Delaney and Heeney was not mentioned by Rickard in his telegrams to McMahon here. The wire said:

"I have talked with Tunney and he agrees to accept Sharkey as an opponent if Jack wins over Risko in decision style. The distance of the bout must be fifteen rounds. Tunney would not agree to Delaney because of his (Delaney's) refusal to meet Risko at more than ten rounds. Sharkey must abide by same decision.

"Tunney thinks highly of Risko in view of his decisive victories over Delaney and Paulino."

Jim Johnston, of New York, Sharkey's chief second and advisor to Buckley, accompanied McMahon from New York and announced the result of the conference late today a few minutes before boarding a return train with the matchmaker. He had nothing to say on the Delaney-Heeney angle of the matter and would not set a more definite date on the title bout than "some time next summer, probably June or July."

Buckley, explaining his capitulation, said that Sharkey's record was "full of decisions over good men, but he wants to prove that he's the best contender there is."

"If he can't win over Risko then he doesn't want to fight Tunney. But he's already met Heeney and that 'draw' went against the decision of 22 out of 24 sport writers there.

"As for Delaney. He's yet to meet a first class heavyweight. He has lost to Maloney. He's lost to Risko, and he has refused to meet Risko again in anything but a 10-round bout. I wouldn't be surprised if some of the humane societies acted to prevent some of the bouts he has planned to do his barnstorming tour. He is unearthing old relics and going into the training camps for some sure win opponents."

JAKE SCHAEFER, WORLD'S BILLIARD CHAMPION

TAFTVILLE OUTPLAYS MANCHESTER RECS

The Taftville Crescents gave the Manchester Recs a decisive trimming Tuesday night at Parish hall by 44 to 21 before a packed house and thereby gave one more example of the strong team they rounded into.

The Crescents were at their best last night. But for a short spell near the end of the first half the Crescents were never really forced. The entire team worked well all the way and did especially well when under pressure when the Recs rallied a bit and closed up a wide gap at the half.

Every Crescent Scores

Every one of the Crescents threw in points while the two forwards Normandin and Dessinger were ahead in scoring with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The Crescents jumped into a seven point lead before Manchester scored at all. Normandin converted a foul after three minutes of play and Eccleston followed with a field basket, via the run-under route right after. Normandinthre w in a score from a goodly ways out and Harris tossed in a short one. With nearly half the period gone Ballsieper scored the Recs' first points on a foul and then tossed in one from near midcourt for two points. Mantelli scored on a short one making the score 7 to 5 with Taftville leading. However, Murphy, first with a short one and then Dessinger with one half the length of the hall gave the Crescents an 11-5 lead before Manchester fought up and with baskets by Farr and Ballsieper made it 16-14 in the next few minutes and that is where the score stood at half time.

In the second half the Crescents swept the Recs off their feet with dazzling play and soon had a commanding lead. They held the Manchester team to a foul for the first five or six minutes and the Recs scored their first field basket after nearly half of the period had gone. During the rest of the time it was only a matter of how large Taftville would pile the points up with Manchester having little or no chance of even staging a rally.

Taftville Defense In Good Shape

The Taftville defense was a very hard problem for the visitors. It formed with surprising speed and functioned in the best form of the season. The Crescents started off with Normandin and Dessinger at the forwards, Harris at center and Eccleston and Murphy at guards. At the half Brown went in for Murphy and then about three quarters of the way through the half Dessinger went to center while Gauthier took his place at forward and Murphy came back at guard. Coleman also saw service during the closing moments at guards and even with all these substitutions the Crescents did not seem to falter one bit. Dessinger's work on long shots brought the gallery to their feet many times while he and Mondi Normandin teamed well throughout. Normandin threw in several sensational over-hand shots of the kind that only Mondi can make. Harris showed one of his best games, his work on the taps helping the Crescents play greatly.

Brown also played well when he got into the thickest of it in the second half and it is safe to say that with the play Taftville showed last night she can stand with the best of them in her class in New England.

Whirlwinds Lose Prelim

In the preliminary the Baltic Mystery Five beat the Taftville Whirlwinds 29 to 26 in a rough but interesting game. The Whirlwinds led nearly all the way through the first three periods until the visitors snatched the upper hand early in the last quarter.

Next week the Crescents play the Hilltop A. C. quintet of Winsted this state.

I., Jan. 24—A Buick sedan, 267480 Mass., with two occupants was fired at Monday night or in the early hours of Tuesday morning by Rhode Island state police and police of Wakefield and Westerly. About 1 a. m. Tuesday a telephone call was received from Wickford, that an auto, probably stolen had driven away from a Norwood filling station without paying for the gasolene, and was headed in this direction. Word was also sent Norwich police and to Connecticut state police.

When the car escaped, passing through Wakefield, after an unsuccessful attempt to stop it, Lieutenant George H. Champlin took a position near the St. Clair corner in Dixon square, Officer Michael Curtin near the Washington Trust company and Officer Leroy H. Norman on the Broad street river bridge over the Pawcatuck.

When the driver of the automobile approached Dixon square at a slow rate of speed, he noticed the police officers and shot up a high rate of speed followed by five or six bullets from the officers' guns. The officers later searched the northern section of the town for the car, but in vain.

STOCK PRICES RALLIED DESPITE SIGNS OF SLOWING UP IN THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—(AP)—The rally in stock prices, having been under way for five consecutive days, showed signs of slowing up today despite violent advances of 5 to 30 points in a few specialties. Pools, encouraged by the plentiful supply of call funds available at 3 1-2 per cent marked up more than a score issues to their highest levels since 1926, or longer. The sharpest gains took place in the express shares and other specialties in which there is a small floating supply.

The increase from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent in the rediscount rate of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, which was announced after the close of the market, took Wall street by surprise, although the possibility of higher rediscount rates has been one of the reasons advanced by some of the conservative brokerage houses for recommending a lightening of long committments. While speculative opinion is divided as to the effect of this action on securities prices, it is generally conceded that it will have a sobering effect on speculative operations. It was recalled that some of the Chicago bank officials were opposed to a lowering of the rate last fall, which is said to have been forced upon them by the pressure of federal reserve authorities in Washington.

One likely effect of the higher Chicago rate is a reduction in the amount of funds sent into New York to be loaned on call. The heavy influx of out-of-town funds is reported to have been one of the contributory causes to the recent ease of the New York call money market. Other western banks are likely to follow the lead of Chicago, eastern banks are expected to maintain the 3 1-2 per cent rate for the present, barring a development of speculative excesses in the stock market. Directors of the New York bank meet after the close of the market on Thursday.

Adams Express was the outstanding individual feature, soaring 30 points to a new high record at 295, or just 100 points above the low level of the month. American Express jumped 13 points to 191 1-2 and eased to 189 and American Railways Express climbed 15 1-2 points to 136, closing at 133 1-2. Air Reduction, American Machine & Foundry, Advance Rumely preferred, Gold Dust, Greene Cananea Copper, Laclede Gas, National Surety, Rossia Insurance, Warren Bros., and Westinghouse Air Brake all advanced 4 to 10 points, many of them to new peak prices.

Savage Arms, which has been dormant for some time, suddenly blazed into activity with a gain of 4 3-8 points at 68 on buying influenced by reports of expanding earnings of both the gun business and other products, such as laundry machines and health motors. Hupp crossed 39 to a new peak on another turn-over of more than 100,000 shares, but the final price, 136 1-4, represented only a small fractional change. U. S. Steel common touched a new high on the current recovery at 149 1-4 and then slipped below 149 for a small fractional net loss. Heavy accumulation of Ajax Ruber, which has been under way since the recent change in management, carried the stock to a new high record at 14 3-8, the day's transactions exceeding 100,000 shares. Woolworth, General Electric, Houston Oil, Oil Well Supply and Radio were heavy.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A drop of nearly 15 points in Spanish pesetas to 16.90 cents and a jump of 8 points in Japanese yen to 46.81 cents were the only changes of consequence in the foreign exchange market. Sterling Cables were slightly firmer at $4.87 21-32.

Commodity markets were reactionary. Cotton dropped about a $1 a bale on selling inspired by the unfavorable mill outlook. Wheat futures yielded a fraction of a cent a bushel on selling by northwestern holders. Coffee dropped 10 to 15 points and an easier undertone was reported in the sugar market.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—(AP)—With the Canadian government's final crop report due tomorrow and indications of 50,000,000 bu. more wheat in Canada than last year, wheat today averaged lower. It was also pointed out that the United States visible supply is 22,000,000 bu. larger than a year ago.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at 1-4c to 5-8c net decline. Corn finished unchanged to 3-8c higher, oats unchanged to 1-8 and 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 17c.

Notwithstanding official advices that probable European import wheat requirements this year will be so large as to result in only the same world carryover as last year despite a total world crop 125,000,000 bu. larger than last year, the fact remained that export demand today for wheat from North America was slow. At times, today, however, especially in the earlier dealings, the market developed a good deal of firmness on account of high winds reported in Kansas and because of persistent dearth of moisture in large areas southwest.

On the other hand, price bulges today in the wheat market led to increased selling pressure from the northwest, and so likewise did announcement near the end of the day that the world available supply of wheat showed 3,144,000 bu. enlargement, making the total now 299,000,000 bu. against 245,000,000 bu. a year ago. Besides, December exports of domestic wheat and flour were rather disappointing, with the season's total but 10,000,000 bu. greater than the year before.

New England Industries

The Boot and Shoe Industry.

Census figures show that the number of boot and shoe establishments in New England increased 23 per cent. from 1914 to 1923, reaching a total of 711 in 1923. Increases for the rest of the United States amounted to 15 per cent. The additional New England concerns were all located in Massachusetts, while Maine, New Hampshire and Connecticut show a decreasing number during this period.

New England production, measured by value, has decreased since 1921, while that of the rest of the country has increased 28 per cent., with the result that in 1914 New England produced 52.4 per cent. of the ouput for this country, and in 1923 38.9 per cent.

The proportion of labor cost to value of product was 27.5 per cent. in 1923, compared with 23.4 per cent. elsewhere. The decrease in percentage of material costs has been slightly greater here.

Women's shoes comprised 20 per cent. of the total United States production in 1914 and 35 per cent. in 1923.

A survey of representative New England establishments made by the United States department of commerce in co-operation with the New England council show that the average number of years in operation for those establishments which reported is 14 for women's shoes exclusively, 22 years for men's and 18 for those classed as "others," including firms making both men's and women's shoes, slippers, sandals, etc., which could not be classified under the first two groups. The reports also show that 51 per cent. of the women's shoe concerns, 28 per cent. of the men's, and 39 per cent. of the "others" have been running six years or less.

Changes in management during the last six years have taken place in 11 per cent. of all establishments reporting, and 72 per cent. of this number reports steadily increasing sales volume since the change was effected.

Availability of skilled labor has proven the greatest attraction for location in New England, with accessibility of raw materials reported second, and nearness to markets third. Only 8 per cent. of the reporting companies have established branches.

The percentage of employes reported as belng on a piecework or other incentive wage basis is 86 per cent. in the women's boot and shoe establishments, 70 per cent. in the men's, and 68 per cent. in the "others." The average yearly earnings in 1923 were $1,140 against $1,090 throughout the rest of the country. Of more importance is the unit of output cost; it is found that the average labor cost per pair of shoes in New England is 84 cents, but 64 cents elsewhere; yet the average value per pair of shoes in 1923 was $3 in this section compared with $2.75 for the rest of the country.

Seasonal employment fluctuation was much less in 1925 than in 1923, with July the slackest month in both years and January the busiest. The reports indicate only a slight tendency toward development of supplementary production, although individual producers have exercised some ingenuity in this direction. The main resort has been to a different type or grade having a different seasonal period, or designed to meet a new class of buyer.

Improvements in manufacturing prices have been widespread, with production control, organization and executive control and prevention of accidents particularly mentioned.

The reported average per cent. of total product sold in New England is 28 per cent., New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania forming the leading markets, with New England second, and Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin third. New England sales have increased since 1921 in 50 per cent. of the men's shoe plants, in 60 per cent. of the women's and 70 per cent of all others. The competition offered by other New England companies was reported asthe most severe.

Total sales were reported as having increased in 42 per cent. of the men's factories, 64 percent. of the women's, and 55 per cent. of all otherr. Extension of territories, new products, new sales methods, lower manufacturing costs, in the order mentioned, are the causes reported. Reasons for sales decreases usually reported are general overproduction and competition. The sales trend in the industry as a whole since 1921 has been slightly downward, with women's shoe sales decreasing up to 1923 and men's rising sharply.

The average per cent. of value of product expended for selling by this group during 1923 was 7.1, and for advertising 1.1 per cent. Thirty-six per cent. of the industry's output is trademarked.

The channels of distribution generally used are reported as direct to the retailer and wholesaler, with other methods in use to some extent. The largest number of concerns sell the retailer direct. Chain stores have also provided an outlet of growing importance.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Admirers of Dolores Del Rio and Victor McLaglen, the famous Fox stars in "What Price Glory," will have their final chance to see them tonight in "Loves of Carmen," their current picture at the Breed theatre. This picture has been playing to capacity houses since Sunday. Raoul Walsh, the director, succeeded in catching the true atmosphere of Spain and the passion of her people in this picture of a matador and his love.

Palace Theatre

Napoleon crossed the same Alps that form the background of "Peaks of Destiny" which will be at the Palace theatre this afternoon and evening and Wednesday afternoon only. There can be no doubt that the patrons who are fortunate enough to view this picture will appreciate the beauties of this unusual film. U. F. A. the company responsible for such successes as "Variety," "Metropolis" and "The Last Laugh" also produced "Peaks of Destiny."

A love story which in its heightened moments grips the most lethargic, runs through the entire feature to a grand climax. Two men and a girl. The old, old story told in a new manner that remains interesting until the final minute.

Photographically "Peaks of Destiny" can take its place high up in the realms of cinema art. Glorious mountains covered with snow and ice; the men who have learned to conquer the elements engage in races on skis and snow shoes. In a rescue scene that takes place during a terrific storm at night, there are thrills that are enough to enliven a picture were it twice as long.

Johnnie Walker, who plays the feature lead in "The Clown," Columbia's circus special which is the co-feature at the Palace, states that his role in "Old Ironsides" fitted him for the circus film.

"I don't see why sailors don't join circuses when they come ashore," Walker declares. "The ship training certainly would come in handy around the canvas."

Johnnie Walker played Stephen Decature in "Old Ironsides," and gave an outstanding performance in that epic of the sea. In "The Clown" he portrays a wealthy young man who falls in love with a young circus trapeze artiste. In order that he may be near his goddess of the big tops he joins the circus as a roustabout and performs such menial tasks as carrying water to the elephans.

While Walker and Dorothy Revier, as the circus star, provide the love interest in "The Clown," William V. Mong in the title role, and John Miljan as the "villain" carry the dramatic portrayals. Wm. James Craft handled the megaphone.

NORWICH TOWN

At Norwich Town Methodist church Rev. A. E. Whitton in his Sunday morning sermon gave a sketch of Paul's life as depicted in the Book of Acts, this being the second talk that Mr. Whitton has given on this subject. He pointed out chiefly the great crisis and martyrdom in the life of this greatest of foreign missionaries.

Rev. Dyana Ogden, of Waterford, who spoke to the children of the M. E. church, Sunday afternoon, held their close attention while he told in an inspiring story of a boy taking an adventurous journey. He was offered and took four gifts as aids. This is allegorical of every life. It is a journey, and Christ offers us gifts if we will accept them: The Bible, which is "A Lamp" and guide-book, the consciousness of His presence, faith, and His hand, which is ever held out to us to take when crossing the hard places. Mr. Ogden tried to impress his listeners with the idea of purity and the desirability of a perfectly clean character. Virginia Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Ward, played the prelude, hymns, and recessional for this service.

Mrs. Carl Ricker and Miss Ida Beebe of the Norwich Town Congregational church, Mrs. F. H. Buehnell and Miss F. M. Bennett of the M. E. church were representatives at the Norwich Girl Workers' council meeting held at the Taftville Congregational church, Monday evening.

POETRY

Grass on the Dunes

[illegible]
Are [illegible] touched [illegible]
[illegible]
I [illegible] friend to [illegible] and to [illegible]
[illegible]
Then [illegible] mingles with mine in [illegible] [illegible]
In the [illegible] shifts her a [illegible] [illegible]
Her young—I feel the soft round [illegible] [illegible] wings
And know the thrill that stirs her to the sky
In her untrammeled joy. And as the dawn
Steals out across the sky and the sun's disk
Rises above the shoulder of the hill,
His first ray touches me and I look forth
And worship God through veils of morning dew.

I have a tryst with every wind that blows
And I have heard the stories of the rain
Gathered from farthest seas; oh, me she falls
Loosening her treasuries of scented lands
To scatter foreign sweetness on each blade.
The tiny breeze that stirs at still noontide
Of August, tells me breathlessly soft rhymes
Of all the gentle happenings of the day;
The song of waves that pull against the shore
Of seaweed-covered rocks where seagulls cry.

And when night comes and everything is still,
I learn the far-off secrets of the stars
That lean upon the dome of night and gaze
Immeasurably below; then do I watch
With them above the sleeping earth, till dawn.
—Florence Irene Gubbins in Christian Science Monitor.

Man and Nature

O steadfast trees that know
Rain, hail and sleet and snow,
And all the winds that blow;
But when Spring comes, can then
So freshly bud again
Forgetful of the wrong!

Waters that deep below
The stubborn ice can go
With quiet underflow,
Contented to be dumb
Till spring herself shall come,
To listen to your song!

Stars that the clouds pass o'er
And stain not, but made more
Alluring than before:—
How good it is for us
That our lives are not thus

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Parker: "Who is that stunningly dressed lady?"

Bender: "The fine looking brunette? Oh, she's the wife of that worried-looking little man."—Life.

Boring Young Man: "You know, I'm funny like that—always throw myself into anything I undertake."

Pretty Girl (sweetly): "How splendid."—Tit-Bits, London.

Bix (trying to remember): "Let's see; isn't there a saying that begins 'If the shoe pinches——'"

Dix: "Sure! 'If the shoe pinches it is on a woman's foot.'"—Boston Transcript.

These are awkward times and we sympathize with the teashop waitress who approached a customer from behind and said brightly: "Anything more, sir, I mean madame; I beg your pardon, sir."—London Daily Chronicle.

If the man in the store merely sells you what you want, he is only a clerk. If he sells you this when you want that, he is a salesman.

If he sells you this and that, when you want nothing, he is a super-salesman.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Slick is always telling parlor stories," complained Blondie of the Rapid Fire restaurant.

"Aw, that's all right with you, ain't it?" returned Heloise, the head waitress.

"Well, they are tonsorial parlor stories."—New Yorker.

Tommy was meandering homeward much later than his usual suppertime. A friend of the family who happened to meet him said:

"Why, Tommy, aren't you afraid you'll be late for supper?"

"Nope," replied Tommy; "I've got the meat."—Children, the Magazine for Parents.

Farmer Boyce: "That son-in-law of ours is gettin' lazier every day. Now he wants me to bring him some cork checkers from town."

Mrs. Boyce: "Cork checkers?"

Farmer Boyce: "Yes, he says the wooden checkers are too heavy for him to push around."—Pathfinder.

NEW LONDON TO INCREASE SALARY OF DIRECTOR OF LAW TO $3,500

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 24.—Director of Law Thomas E. Troland is to be given an increase of $500 in salary. That action was taken last night by the city council, sitting as a committee at the municipal building. The salary now received by that official is $3,000. At the next meeting of the council it will be recommended that Director of Law Troland be paid an annual salary of $3,500.

Members of the city council last night inspected the police gymnasium in the Cronin building, State street, the gymnasium having been recently completely fitted with every modern device for keeping the members of th department in the finest physical condition.

BULLET THROUGH WINDOW OF CRYSTAL AVENUE HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 24.—Mrs. Simon DeLong, 271 Crystal avenue, reported to the police today that a bullet penetrated a window of her home last night. Mrs. DeLong said that shortly before 8 o'clock the leaden missile crashed through the window and dropped on the floor. Her husband, who was home, went to the street and endeavored to determine who had been responsible for the discharge of the firearm, but was unable to do so. Neither did he report it to the police, so that the fellow who is shooting at random and who is liable to inflict personal injury was not apprehended.

PORTLAND MAN GIVEN A CHANCE TO LEAVE TOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 24—In the police court this morning, James O'Brien, 27, of Portland, Me., was acquitted of the charge of violation of the Mann act and was ordered to leave the city. This he did, boarding an east-bound train at 11:26 o'clock. O'Brien was arrested Sunday night on a charge of intoxication and Monday was fined $10 and costs. He was detained, for it was believed that the more serious charge might be fastened on him. O'Brien came to New London recently and accompanied by Ella Herrick, 20, of Mechanics Falls, Me., and with her lived as husband and wife at a rooming house on Masonic street. O'Brien represented that he was a theatrical promoter and was endeavoring to stage a minstrel performance for the sailors at the submarine base. He was intoxicated practically all the time. The police were informed of O'Brien's actions and when he was found drunk on the street he was arrested.

GROUP LIGHTS PROMISED FOR MONTAUK AVENUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 24—Montauk avenue is to have a white way, or rather a large section of that popular avenue is to be more brilliantly lighted than ever before. At a meeting of the council, acting as a committee last night, it was voted to include an appropriation in the budget now being prepared to provide for the expenses in operating the city another year, that will insure the installation of group lights from Bank street to south of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, the added illumination to end at the overhead bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Montauk avenue is one of the most traversed highways of the city, particularly during the summer season. Several months ago Mayor James A. May advocated the beautifying of the avenue during the night season by the added electric lights, but because of compulsory conditions, action was deferred until last night.

During the course of the further consideration of the tentative budget, City Manager William A. Holt and Councilor Cornelius D. Twomey engaged in several verbal tilts, principally because of the councilor objecting to the recommendation of the city manager that $1,200 be appropriated for general repairs of the fire department. Councilor Twomey objected strongly to the appropriation being made, because, he said, the sum was too large. City Manager Holt advocated the appropriation because the repairs to apparatus was always large, but pointed out that if the money was not entirely expended any sum remaining unexpended at the end of the fiscal year would revert to the treasury. The councilor in strong terms said that if the money was appropriated it would be spent. The councilors voted approval of the city manager's recommendation.

The condition of William Geiston, East Haddam farmer, who was gored by a bull last Saturday, is reported today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital as being somewhat improved. The man is suffering from fractured ribs and severe bruises.

The January meeting of the alumnae of Williams Memorial Institute was held this evening at the Y. W. C. A., when reports of the dance and bridge committee were made. Plans were discussed for entertainments and diversions during the remainder of the winter.

The continued cases of Patrick J. Sullivan, of Boston, formerly of this city; Patrick Barrett and John J. Daley were not disposed of in the Waterford town court yesterday afternoon. The young men were charged with breach of the peace and had been held for trial in bail of $25 each. They did not present themselves before Judge Fred N. Dimmock and their respective bonds were declared forfeited. Because of their failure to appear for trial warrants were issued for the re-arrest of Sullivan, Barrett and Daley and these given Constable Chester H. Brigham to serve. Sullivan, Barrett and Daley went to the roadhouse of Carl Reynolds, Station 17, Waterford, but admittance was refused them by Reynolds because of the intoxicated condition of the three. An altercation followed, which resulted in one of the group striking Reynolds. Constable Brigham was summoned and arrested the young men. Since their arrest Sullivan, Barrett and Daley have been at liberty on bail.

Bank street is receiving the attention of the street department and from indications the city laborers will have work ahead of them for a long time. That section of the street on the east side from Pearl to Golden street is being repaired and that a cave-in did not result is surprising. The street has a long depression in it caused by the earth giving away several feet beneath the street surface. The section now being given attention is just north of the custom house and when that work is completed work on a section just south of Golden street will be started. If favorable weather prevails the work will not be completed for several weeks and if it should prove stormy it will be well into spring before the street has been entirely repaired.

Private funeral services for N. Elbert Geer, were held this afternoon at 2 30 o'clock at his residence, Rev. Arthur Wagner, pastor of the Huntington street Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Crocker, formerly of New London, who died at the United States Marine hospital, Chelsea, Mass., Sunday, were held at 3.15 this afternoon at Beckwith Memorial chapel, Cedar Grove cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Samuel M. Prentis, David Quinn and Stephen and Leonard Crocker acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Miss Sarah M. Johnston, about 65, died this morning at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where she had been a patient but a short time. Miss Johnston, who was employed as caretaker on the Hardness estate, Waterford, is survived by a sister, Mrs. Joseph Denison of Waterford.

A gasoline station near Westerly was burglarized last night and the thieves used an automobile to get away. A short time after the robbery was discovered the state police, Groton barracks, were notified, for the automobile was headed toward New London. It carried Massachusetts registration, 267498. The state police and New London police maintained a watch for the auto, but it was not discovered on the streets of this city, nor passing through New London.

Doris Jarvis, colored, a stranger in New London, and who said that she had recently arrived here from New York, was charged in the police court today with soliciting. She was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. The Jarvis woman was observed loitering on John street, a Negro district, last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman George Cockell. Withing a brief time the woman accosted Palmer Thompson, white, and employed on a Socony barge. She endeavored to entice Thompson to her home and would have succeeded but for the fact that she was interrupted by the officers, who questioned Thompson. The latter admitted that the woman had solicited him. Both were arrested, Thompson as a witness. In court he was discharged upon the conviction of the woman on the more serious charge.

The continued case of Ike Schwell of Montville, charged with evasion of responsibility, was nolled. It developed after Schwell was presented yesterday that it was his son who was guilty of violation of a state motor vehicle law, not the father. An automobile, owned by the elder Schwell was driven to New London several nights ago and in passing through Union street near Methodist street, collided with the parked car of Ray C. B. Jenks, the latter machine being damaged. Jenks obtained the number of the colliding auto, which speeded away and furnished the police with the numerals. It was then ascertained that the auto was owned by Schwell. As the township in which Schwell resided is outside the jurisdiction of the New London police, the complaint was turned over to the state police, with the result that Officer Bernard Kenneron arrested Schwell. It court yesterday it was shown that Schwell was not in New London the night of the law infraction and a further investigation revealed that it was Schwell's son Clarence, who had driven the auto here. The son, who is 18, admitted the accident. The next day the boy drove the auto to Norwich where the damaged fender was repaired and the part of the car disfigured was repainted. The boy was arrested and today when he pleaded guilty he was fined $25 and costs.

A young woman residing on Hempstead street was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy as a matter of caution for the actions of the woman unmistakably displayed symptoms of unsound mentality. The young woman was on State street about 2.30 and attracted pedestrians by ugly facial expressions which she made whenever anyone chanced to glance at her and at other times persisted in kicking women and children. When Officer Murphy detected the woman's acts he arrested her. It was then revealed that she resided with her aged mother and she was taken to her home for no one who had been annoyed by the young woman's actions desired to press a complaint against her.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Charles Bovetti of Waterford, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ida C. Bovetti, to Nelson C. White, also of Waterford.

Mrs. Mydon Van Ness and infant son of Waterford, James Ryley, 43 Mechanic street; Mrs. Albert Kenney and infant daughter, 65 Vauxhall street; John Bridgeman, Waterford; Harold Staplins, 32 Golden street; Mrs. Alice Hopkins, Quaker Hill and Gladys Bridgeman, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Louis Laybovitch, of 21 North Bank street and Mrs. Louis Beckenstein and infant son, 20 Peninsula avenue, Ocean Beach, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The traffic signal, corner of Broad and Williams street, was discovered out of order by Patrolman Harry Watterson, early this morning.

The store at 72 Crystal avenue, conducted by Louis Debelis, was damaged by fire early today. At 1.10 o'clock a still alarm was received at fire headquarters for a lively blaze had been observed by a pedestrian. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Thomas Hose company responded. When the firemen arrived at the burning building the interior of the store was a mass of flames, but they were quickly extinguished with chemicals. The damage, it is estimated, will be about $300. How the fire originated could not be determined by Deputy Chief Edmunds.

Another still alarm was received at headquarters today when residences on Bank street were threatened with damage from a brush fire. Niagara Engine company responded and the fire, which was in the lot, 972, was beaten out with fire brooms.

The annual state dinner will be given at Ottawa tonight on the eve of the formal opening of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada.

Embarrassed by Dishpan Hands

Ill at ease . . . at her own dinner table

"DICK'S 'chief' was pleasant and friendly, but I knew that he had the fastidious standards of a man of culture and wealth.

"I was so eager, as Dick's wife, to meet those standards.

"It was a little thing which upset me—just the merest change of expression on his face . . . I was pouring coffee, and for the fraction of a second his glance had rested on my hands.

"I knew my hands looked red and rough from housework and dishes—and knew he had noticed them . . . I became self-conscious, ill at ease.

"Foolishly, perhaps, I felt the evening was a failure.

"Now I know how NEEDLESS it was. Since I have been using Lux for dishwashing, for all cleansing my hands have to do—my hands are soft and smooth and white. I'm never embarrassed now by 'dishpan' hands."

So many soaps—whether flakes, chips, or cakes—contain harmful alkali which makes the skin harsh.

There is NO injurious alkali in Lux! Made by a remarkable process—Lux actually SOOTHES the skin, leaves it a little whiter and softer than before*

Dissolving instantly, before you ever put your hands in, a little Lux foams up into a mountain of suds—so rich, so cleansing, the dishes seem almost to wash themselves

The big package of Lux washes six weeks' dishes. Lovely hands for so small a price!

*Many beauty parlors use Lux in manicuring the nails, to soften and whiten the fingers.

Lux keeps lovely the hands that wash dishes

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Twins, triplets and a blueberry pie—a midget masquerading as a baby and two college boys in love — with trimmings — these are among the queer and heterogeneous elements that blend into one of the laughs of the season—"Baby Mine," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's second Karl Dane-George K. Arthur co-starring play, which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theatre.

"Rookies" was a classic in comedy—but "Baby Mine" goes a few steps further in the gentle art of rib-tickling. For one thing, the team of Dane and Arthur — the "Big Bertha of Laughland" is augmented by a hilarious howitzer, so to speak in the person of Charlotte Greenwood—she of the scissors-like nether appendages and the semaphore arms. It is the first appearance in pictures of the famous stage star of "So Long Letty," "Canary Cottage" and others. The lanky comedienne is a veritable riot of laughs.

Her scenes with Karl Dane, in which he makes love, are among the funniest things the screen has ever seen—and the trials and tribulations growing out of missing babies, a midget masquerading as an infant, and the rest of the comical flurry that results when a borrowed baby is needed to convince Dane of his parenthood are a whirl of hilarity.

Five acts of headline vaudeville will be shown in conjunction with the feature "Baby Mine."

Strand Theatre.

A fast and furious runaway provides many thrilling moments in "Code of the Cow Country," the Pathe western feature starring Buddy Roosevelt showing tonight at the Strand. Buddy, the new foreman of Diamond A Ranch is out riding the range one day when the pretty daughter of his employer loses control of her horse. The frightened animal gallops down the road at a headlong pace. Buddy rides after the girl and sweeps her from her saddle into his arms. Others in the cast are Elsa Benham, Richard Neill and Melbourne McDowell.

"Backstage" tells in simple but human fashion the story of four chorus girls who depict that the life of the girls behind the footlights is not all sunshine, roses and diamond bracelets. Barbara Bedford, Alberta Vaughn, Eileen Percy and Shirley O'Hara give a splendid performance of the much abused chorines. Wm. Collier, Jr., as the ardent young lover of one of the girls who really want to succeed is splendid in his emotional roles, while Gayne Whitman as the "angel" of the show and Guinn Williams as the chauffeur are both excellent in their portrayals.

"Aesops Fables" complete this interesting bill.

Houston, Texas, will be the meeting place today of the annual business session of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Chas. D. Greenman,
Arthur E. Story,
Auditors.

The deed of the trust of the Nellie Dean Fuller Memorial fund was then read by the treasurer. The house committee, Mary F. Alling, chairman, was received and accepted.

Family Welfare Department

In her report on the family welfare department, Miss Marion Lee Bishop, chairman, said:

The records for 1927 show that we have had 150 families in our care during the past year, in addition to minor services rendered to 97 families, making the total number of families to whom services were rendered 249.

We have visited 975 homes of our clients; and 1680 office interviews were held. 37 of these were transients.

We have had 59 office interviews with other agencies in behalf of families. We have made 37 calls for out of town societies. We have had five Traveler's Aid cases. Transportation as per our agreement with the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad was provided for three persons and two attendants.

We have given out 616 articles, including garments, bed clothing, household furnishings, materials to be made over, and jellies, etc. which have been donated to us for that purpose.

Home service Section, American Red Cross—We have assisted 10 families and 92 men. Monthly reports are sent to the chairman, Charles Colt.

The time limit for applying for adjusted compensation expired January 1, 1928.

We have filed compensation claims, insurance claims, secured information from Norwich sources for other chapters, investigated soldiers' claims for discharge on account of dependency, contacted persons at the request of the Veterans' Bureau, in regard to the appointment of conservators for disabled soldiers, aided in securing reimbursement for funeral expenses after death of an ex-service man and assisted in finding missing men, besides supplying men who are out of employment with the material things, such as clothing, food and medicine.

Public Health Nursing

Hortense M. Briggs, secretary of the public health nursing department, called attention in her report to a schedule of fees for nursing service as follows:

Feeling that the cost of the nursing visit was more than the fee asked, a careful estimate was made for a period of one year. As a result of this survey the following schedule of fees was evolved: Nursing visit $1; maternity visit $1.25. In addition an hourly service is offered. For this service a fee of $1.25 is charged for the first hour and for each additional hour or fraction thereof $1.

With the enlarged waiting room and additional office space, the congestion on clinic days has been much relieved. The nurses' work room is much appreciated by the entire staff.

The tuberculosis work is now a definite part of our work. The last few weeks of the year the committee's efforts were directed toward the annual Tuberculosis Seal Sale, of which Mrs. Richard B. Snow is the chairman.

Thirteen thousand six hundred ninety-five calls, an average of five to a patient, were made by the five staff nurses.

The reports of the neuropsychiatric clinic committee, Elizabeth B. Huntington, chairman, and of the Norwich neuropsychiatric clinic, Betsy Mitchell, psychiatric social worker, were heard and accepted. Harriet F. Mitchell, secretary of the club department, said in her report:

This is the first year we have centralized all the work, combining the Falls and down town classes at No. 9 Washington street. This plan has worked out beautifully, the attendance keeping up well in all the classes. One hundred ninety children are enrolled, some weeks there have been 144 children in attendance.

Sheltering Arms

The report of the Sheltering Arms committee, Alice M. Baird, secretary showed that there have been 31 patients cared for during the year, including three single men and one couple. One of these men passed away, and four other patients have died. There are 20 members of the family at the present time.

Mrs. Beckwith, the matron, and her splendid staff are continuing to give very efficient service, and it is due to their efforts and understanding care that the family is so happy and contented. At present there are three regular nurses employed, and occasionally a special nurse assists.

Rock Nook Home

Emily M. Gilman, secretary of the Rock Nook Home department, said in her report:

In looking over the reports for 1927 of the chairmen of the various departments of the Rock Nook Home committee, the outstanding feature is, the general good health of all the children entrusted to our care throughout the whole year. Under the faithful and conscientious supervision of Mrs. Murray (for 21 years the matron at the home) the children have been happy and well cared for.

Outside of the six children we are taking care of in their own homes, at the close of the year there were only 20 children in the Home, a smaller number than we have had for many years. Whether this is due to the general prosperity of the country at large ,or to the increased improvement in the morale of parents, we do not know, but it seems worthy of mention.

The district visitation report, Helena Huntington, secretary showed that the committee entered into the campaign with such zeal that 90 visitors were secured, five more than last year.

Seventeen hundred forty-five contributors, 52 more than last year, rewarded the efforts of these visitors with $1,623.44, an increase of $35.29 over the contributions of a year ago. This increase is small, but it may represent the interest of new comers in our midst, and is therefore encouraging, for our treasury is not inexhaustible, as many seem to believe.

Almshouse Improvements

The meeting received and accepted the Nellie Dean Fuller Memorial fund report, as submitted by Alice W. Cogswell, secretary. In the almshouse report, Katherine K. Stanton, chairman, called attention to improvements at the almshouse, as follows:

Improvements have been going on at the home, a new roof being one of the principal additions. Gradually the home is being put in excellent shape and Mr. Murray is continually improving the property. The general health of the family is good. Three deaths were reported during the past year. Those in charge of the home are ever ready to welcome visitors on the regular visiting days and a general invitation is extended to all those who are in any way interested.

Martha Brewer Norton submitted the report on the Adam Reid Worthy Poor fund after which the usual collection was taken. A piano solo by Mrs. Charles Olson followed. The benediction was pronounced by Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis. The ushers were Mrs. H. Clinton Atterbury, Miss Marion Briggs, Miss Louise Norton and Miss Margaret Sayles.

BODIES OF TWO BOYS NOT RECOVERED YET

Despite an all day search Tuesday by Sergt. Myron O. Morgan of the police department and two members of the local fire department, no trace of the bodies of Allen and Herbert Whitaker, 10 and 3, respectively, was discovered. The two boys were drowned with their parents and three sisters in the Shetucket river Monday evening when the machine in which they were riding, plunged over Preston bridge after a collision with a motorcycle driven by Harris Preston, 17, of Hamilton avenue. The police dragged the river the greater part of the day and late in the afternoon abandoned the search for the day. One of the several theories advanced is that the two boys were thrown through the top of the touring car as it plunged off the bridge and were swept down the river by the strong current. It is thought that the bodies will be found somewhere between Preston bridge and Fort Point. Hundreds of people visited the scene of the tragedy Tuesday to watch the police and firemen dragging the river. During the evening there was a rumor that volunteer searchers who were at work in a boat after dark located one of the bodies but that the body got away from them when the child's clothing was torn away. This rumor could not be substantiated. The police knew nothing of any such report.

During the day Tuesday there were several versions of the collision story in circulation. One story had it that the machine driven by Mr. Whitaker turned onto the bridge from Talman street. This rumor is discounted as it was pointed out that if he had made the turn from Talman street the machine would not have gathered speed enough to throw it off the bridge after the collision.

That the machine was traveling at a good rate of speed is agreed upon by many. In that case, it was pointed out, it no doubt was driven through Main street on the east side and not Talman street. This theory is backed up from the fact that the machine, which was raised Tuesday morning from the river, shows considerable damage about the left front end. The left front mudguard is bent and the left side of the front axle is pushed back for several inches.

Although it is not definitely known just what occurred the logical solution is that Mr. Whitaker was driving the machine across the bridge towards Burnham square and that the motorcycle was headed in the opposite direction. As a matter of fact George Jennings, 18, of Hamilton avenue, who was riding in the motorcycle side car, told Serg. John T. Casey at police headquarters Monday night that Preston had driven across the bridge towards Burnham square and at Burnham square circled the traffic beacon and started back across the bridge towards Preston. Jennings said he saw the touring car approaching at a fast rate of speed and the next thing he knew he found himself on his back in the highway. He claims he cannot remember what immediately happened before the crash except that he saw the automobile approaching. He was unconscious when he was thrown from the side car.

Another theory advanced was that Mr. Whitaker's attention was momentarily distracted from the wheel by his small sons and daughters who were no doubt riding with him in the front seat, and that this caused him to lose control of the machine, just as the motorcycle was passing. From the location of the bodies when they were removed or floated by the river current from the machine as it was being raised Monday night, it is fairly certain that Mrs. Whitaker was riding on the rear seat. This would tend to indicate that several of the children were with Mr. Whitaker in the front seat. It is possible that one of them may have grabbed the wheel for some unexplained reason or that the children may have been jostling in the seat which momentarily took Mr. Whitaker's attention from the steering wheel.

Still another theory advanced is that the steering apparatus went wrong just after the machine started across the bridge. Driving through Main street, at a fair rate of speed, Mr. Whitaker would, no doubt have made a wide swing as the machine reached the bridge. The swing would have been towards the left. If the steering apparatus suddenly went wrong the position of the front wheels would have carried the machine to the left, far enough to sideswipe the approaching motorcycle.

Whatever caused the crash, it is the general opinion that the automobile sideswiped the motorcycle and that the left front mudguard crashed against young Preston's leg, crushing it against the motorcycle frame.

Mrs. Herbert Whitaker of New Haven, mother of the dead man, and Mrs. Albert Karkness of New Haven, a sister, arrived in Norwich Tuesday morning. During the day arrangements were completed for the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker and their three daughters. The funeral is to be held at Buckingham Memorial, and the burial is to take place in Preston City.

It was said Tuesday morning that Mr. Whitaker carried between $2,500 and $3,000 insurance on his life. According to a reliable source of information, it is said the insurance policies lapsed two or three weeks ago.

Coroner J. J. Desmond was out of the city during a large part of the day Tuesday and was able to interview only one witness who might throw any light on the tragedy. This witness was George Jennings, who was riding in the motorcycle side car. He told the coroner substantially the same story as he told the police at police headquarters shortly after the accident on Monday night.

Several New York and Boston newspaper men arrived in Norwich early Tuesday morning and took pictures of the scene of the accident. One arrived from Boston at 4.30 o'clock Tuesday morning and others arrived from New York during the early morning hours.

The accident was one of the worst tragedies in the history of the city.

MILE-A-MINUTE GALE SWEPT OVER A VAST TERRITORY

Extended Over Southern and Eastern States and Parts of Canada—In New York City a Great Iron Water Tank Was Blown Over and Crashed Through a Building Crowded With Men and Women Workers—Only Three Were Injured—Ships Were Torn From Their Moorings, Trees Were Uprooted, Buildings Unroofed and Houses Wrenched From Their Foundations—Heavy Damage Was Caused Along the Southern New England Coast.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—Southern and eastern states and parts of Canada bowed today under the force of a more than mile-a-minute gale that left minor devastation in its wake.

During the day there was a general drop in temperature and heavy snow fell in Quebec and parts of New York.

The most serious accident of the two day storm occurred in Tennessee when a school house was blown over and four children were killed.

A far more serious catastrophe was narrowly averted in New York city when a great iron water tank was blown over and plunged four stories through a lower West Side building crowded with men and women workers.

Although 55 men and women were working on two floors through which the tank crashed only three were injured and they not seriously.

Possibly the greatest money loss due to the storm was caused by the breaking of plate glass windows. In Manhattan alone glass valued between $20,000 and $30,000 was broken.

The gale was so strong that ships were torn from their moorings, trees were uprooted or snapped like twigs, roofs were ripped away and whole houses wrenched from their foundations.

In many towns power and light systems were put out of commission, communication lines were destroyed, and local transportation generally disrupted.

Reports of the storm's havoc came in from Delaware and Maryland, Tennessee, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, all the New England states, New York, the province of Quebec and Nova Scotia.

HEAVY DAMAGE ALONG THE NEW ENGLAND COAST

BOSTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—The heaviest gale of the winter caused widespread damage in New England today. Several vessels were driven ashore or endangered, buildings were unroofed, chimneys, trees and wires blown down and signs demolished and windows smashed.

The greatest force of the storm was along the southern New England coast. At Newport, R. I., Captain Sterling Fullerton of the barge Harry E. Keeler and his wife were brought ashore in the breeches buoy by the Price's Neck coast guardsmen and sailors from the naval training station after the vessel had broken her moorings in the bay and had been driven on the rocks. Bath houses at Newport were moved from their foundations, small buildings were demolished, stones picked up by the gale broke windows and several cottages near the Beaver Tail light house were wrecked. The Fall River liner Commonwealth slipped her moorings and went into the mud but was hauled back to her dock undamaged.

At Point Judith, R. I., the two masted schooner Alice S. Wentworth after safely passing through the breakwater into the harbor of refuge dragged her anchors and was in such imminent danger of going on the rocks that Captain Z. M. Tilton and his two nephews, comprising the crew, deliberately beached the vessel. They made their way ashore in a dory.

A roller coaster was demolished in an amusement park at Portsmouth, R. I., the roof of a brick plant at Barrington, R. I., was blown down on the railroad tracks, carrying wires with it and delaying railroad traffic for several hours. The sidewalls of a factory in Warren, R. I., were blown in. On the Massachusetts side of Mount Hope bay two barges were driven aground near Somerset.

In Boston harbor two vessels were driven into the mud flats but escaped were broken in across Back Bay bank were broken in across Bay Bay bank building and two pedestrians were injured slightly. In the suburbs some trees and chimneys were blown down. Chimneys and portions of roofs were blown off in Fall River.

Inland the wind was almost as strong. Two sides of a hangar at the new Brockton airport were blown out and in the same city a storehouse was moved off its foundation, wires fell and a theatre sign was torn off and struck a man who was slightly hurt.

At Concord, N. H., many trees were broken off and windows broken and falling temperature after last night's rain made the streets perilously icy. A falling tree injured a telephone lineman at Nashua, N. H., and a railroad gate which was blown off struck an automobile. One man was injured when his car ran into a tree which had fallen across the road in Norton, Mass.

HIGH WINDS CAUSED FLOOD TIDE AT HALIFAX

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 25.—(AP)—High winds, causing a tide of from seven to eight feet, played havoc along the waterfront today.

The government merchant marine steamer Canadian Scottish, at anchor above Imperoyal, dragged both anchors and started up the harbor, imperiling shipping. Traveling light, the vessel was at the mercy of the sea until one of the anchors caught.

High seas swept across a railroad track and into the street of Dartmouth, covering wharves among the waterfront.

The Halifax-Dartmouth ferry service was crippled.

HEAVY SNOWSTORM IN PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 25.—(AP)—A heavy snowstorm struck the province of Quebec last night and at noon today was still raging. From Quebec, Three Rivers, Sherbrooke and other points came reports of snowfall to the depth of several feet. Wire facilities were severely crippled, the telephone companies reporting the loss of most of their long distance wires, while both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telegraph companies were accepting messages and press reports for Quebec and maritime points subject to delay.

Street traffic in all the principal cities of the province was disorganized with tram cars and motor vehicles fighting their way through heavy snowdrifts.

WINTRY WEATHER IN NORTHERN NEW YORK

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25—(AP)—Upstate New York today faced probably the most wintry night of the season, as reports from various sections of the state told of blizzards, high winds and rapid drops in temperature. Stranded automobiles and crippled lines of communication appeared to be the most serious results.

As usual, northern New York bore the brunt of the storm. A temperature drop of twelve degrees in four hours accompanied a terrific blizzard which swept over Malone. Traffic was impeded when a strong northeast wind ushered in the most severe storm of the winter. Streets in Malone as well as country roads, were piled with drifts.

Saranac Lake reported that the Adirondacks faced one of the severest nights of the winter. A gale from the northeast was accompanied by a heavy fall of snow and a steady drop of the mercury.

HICKMAN DEFENSE WINS CHANGE OF TRIAL JUDGE

HALL OF JUSTICE, LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Swift and unexpected moves that ended in the defense scoring a prime victory, that of obtaining a new judge by charging bias and prejudice to the jurist assigned to the case, marked the opening day of the sanity trial of William E. Hickman, kidnaper and slayer of 12 year old Marian Parker.

Superior Judge Carlos Hardy filed an affidavit consenting "in the interest of justice and the speedy hearing of this trial" to remove himself from the case. The trial judge is expected to be named by a judicial council, headed by William Waste, chief justice of the California supreme court.

Striking swiftly after the trial was called to order this morning, Jerome Walsh, Kansas City attorney defending Hickman, entered an exception to Judge Hardy. The defense charged bias and prejudice on three separate grounds and the court denied that such were true. Forty minutes after the trial opened adjournment was taken until afternoon to give the petition more consideration.

The swift action of the morning session was eclipsed by the afternoon session, which lasted only 20 minutes. Adjournment was taken until Thursday morning.

Hickman remained quiet throughout the session.

LINDGERBH TO FLY TO CARTAGENA TODAY

COLON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Returning to France field this afternoon from a deep-sea fishing expedition, in which he caught no fish, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh decided that he would fly to Cartagena, Colombia, tomorrow. He expects to arrive there at 2 p. m.

The aviator went with several associates to Perlas Islands, in Panama Bay, yesterday, and enjoyed himself thoroughly, notwithstanding the fact that the fishing was hardly up to the standard. But when he returned to the flying field and pondered for an hour or two, he decided to point the Spirit of St. Louis in the direction of the republic of Colombia.

He and another driver, Loton Horton, later organized the Sheffield Farms company, Horton being made president and Van Bomel vice president. When Horton died last year, Van Bomel became president and resigned within a few months to become chairman of the board of directors.

ACOSTA, FAMOUS FLYING ACE, IS UNDER ARREST

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Bert Acosta, internationally famous trans-Atlantic flying ace, was arrested at the Airdrome inn, Bethany, late last night by Chief Aviation Inspector George Parnartis and Police Chief William T. Morris, of Naugatuck, on a warrant charging violation of the Connecticut aircraft laws. He was held in $500 bonds and will appear before Judge Frank A. Sears in borough corut this morning.

The arrest, believed to be the first for such an offense in this state, followed issuance of a warrant yesterday afternoon by Prosecuting Attorney Claremont R. Tolles on complaint of Naugatuck authorities. The specific violation is low flying. Complaint was made to Tolles after what witnesses said appeared to be an attempt by Acosta to maneuver his plane to go under the Maple street bridge.

Acosta had not secured bondsmen at one o'clock this morning and was taken to the Naugatuck police headquarters to await arraignment.

Chief Morris said he had no official notification of a warrant issued in Hackensack, N. J., for the arrest of Acosta on complaint of the Splitdorf Electrical company of New York. The warrant was issued following the disappearance from the Teterboro airport of the plane, Splitdorf, which was attached by the company for an alleged debt of $4,445. This plane was built for a trans-ocean flight with Acosta as a pilot, but the plan was never carried out.

Unless such notice is received today, Chief Morris said, Acosta will be released after his appearance in court.

The plane which Acosta used yesterday to visit Naugatuck friends, is said to bear a close resemblance to the Splitdorf. Last night, it was left by him at the Bethany flying field. No effort was made by police to seize it, pending arrival of word from New Jersey authorities.

FLIVVER PLANE COVERED 70 MILES IN 35 MINUTES

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Coming here from Asheville, N. C., instead of going to Greensboro, N. C., as he had planned, Harry Brooks brought his Ford flivver plane down at the Spartanburg airport late today. He covered the 70 miles from Asheville, where he was forced down yesterday in his attempt to make a non-stop flight from Detroit to Miami, in 35 minutes.

Unable to take off from the hill top where he landed yesterday, Brooks ordered his plane towed to the Biltmore estate of Mrs. John F. A. Cecil. He had intended going to Greensboro for gasoline before proceeding to Washington on his way back to Detroit, but to avoid darkness he decided at the last minute to make the shorter flight here.

CURTIS FOR PROHIBITION AND RIGID ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The efforts of Senator Borah of Idaho, to pin all republican presidential candidates down on prohibition drew from Senator Curtis of Kansas, a statement today that he favored rigid enforcement of the dry laws and was opposed to repeal of either the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act. It also precipitated another prohibition debate in the senate with verbal contributions from both the wet and dry camps.

Curtis expressed his views on the prohibition in replying to a questionnaire on the question which Borah is sending to all avowed candidates for the republican nomination.

Mrs. Knapp Resigns As Dean of College

Is Accused of Irregularities in Conduct of 1925 New York State Census.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp resigned late today as dean of the college of home economics, Syracuse university.

"In full knowledge of my own integrity," said her telegram to Hurlbut W. Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the university board of trustees, "and in justice to the university, I place my resignation in your hands, until such time as my good name is cleared before the world."

The denouement which has been pending for months, ever since charges into the former secretary of state's administration of the 1925 census were laid bare last October, broke with dramatic suddenness.

It followed within three days the climax of Commissioner Randall J. Le Boeuf's report into his Moreland act investigation, recommending grand jury consideration of serious charges against Mrs. Knapp and four of her aides, and within 24 hours of a rumored meeting in New York of the special committee named by the university trustees to handle the case.

Chancellor Flint returned to Syracuse Tuesday night, and Mr. Smith this morning. At 5 o'clock this afternoon, the trustees' chairman announced receipt of the telegram containing Mrs. Knapp's resignation.

Mrs. Knapp's telegram contained the answer to two questions on which public interest has been centured during the three days since the release of the Le Boeuf-report.

The first involved the impending developments regarding Mrs. Knapp's connection with the university.

The second concerned the whereabouts of the former secretary of state, who left Syracuse Sunday, a few hours before the publication of the report, and has been missing 72 hours.

But the key to the second question remained unanswered tonight as far as the public knowledge was concerned. It lay in the sending address on the yellow telegraph blank which was in the hands of Mr. Smith. But the university official, to save Mrs. Knapp for a few hours at least from the deluge of newspaper harassment which the revelation would entail, refused to divulge it.

The telegram heightened the mystery of Mrs. Knapp's present location, for it followed close on the heels of persistent rumors that she had returned to Syracuse late Tuesday, and was in hiding at the home of a friend in this city.

Possibility that the dean's resignation might have been requested by the board was denied by Mr. Smith. He had not talked with her regarding the case at any time since it first developed, he asserted, disclaiming also the alternative that such a request might have been transmitted through other officials of the institution.

The wording of Mrs. Knapp's telegram led to the conjecture that in event she is ultimately exonerated, she may seek to regain her position with the university.

NO NEW EVIDENCE IN THE OIL LEASE INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Half a dozen witnesses passed in rapid succession today befofre the senate lands committee, but none of them shed any material light on the main subject of the inquiry—what became of the three million dollars of profits made by the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada, in the purchase and sale of oil in this country.

Of these profits $233,000 have been traced from Harry F. Sinclair to Albert B. Rall, after the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve in 1922, but it appears now that the committee is going to encounter serious difficulties in getting track of the remainder.

PRESIDENT OF IRISH FREE STATE VISITED THE HOUSE AND THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—President William T. Cosgrave of the Irish Free State executive council today repaid a debt of 150 years standing.

Addressing the senate after he had shaken hands with each of its members in an impromptu reception, the Free State executive said: "Benjamin Franklin came to my country a hundred and fifty years ago and told the Irish parliament that the Irpish people and the Americans alike were fighting for freedom. I have now come to repay thg visit of that great man."

The visit to the senate was the climax of the third busy day the Irish president has spent in Washington. It came after he had first paid homage to the father of the country during a visit to the home of George Washington at Mount Vernon, and had visited informally with representatives during a recess of the house. He left behind him a message addressed through Speaker Longworth and the members of the house to the American people expressing gratitude for American assistance in the fight for Irish freedom.

Later he visited the library of congress and between times he lunched with the overseas writers at the National Presseclub. A dinner with Secretary Kellogg was on his program for tonight.

Both the senate and the house acknowledged the presence of their distinguished visitor by recessing for a few minutes.

Speaker Longworth of the house, informed of the presence of President Cosgrave by Representative Tilson, the republican leader, designated Tilson and Representative Garrett, the minority leader, together with two additional members from each party, as a committee to escort him into the chamber.

The slight form of the president was almost hidden among his escort as he passed through the lane of applauding representatives. As he stood for a moment chatting with the speaker and Mr. Tilson, a voice from the rear shouted "louder" and there was some laughter. Later he shook hands with the representatives in an informal reception with himself stationed at the foot of the speaker's dais.

Immediately afterward, President Cosgrave and his party moved across the capitol to the senate.

Here his entrance was less of a ceremony and his reception more dignified. After chatting for a few minutes with Vice President Dawes, he entered the chamber with the vice president.

Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee moved for a 15 minute recess and the senators filed past to grasp Mr. Cosgrave's hand.

For a moment he addressed the body from a station beside the vice president. He thanked the senate for the honor it had bestowed upon him, and extended the thanks of his people for all that America had done for them.

SENATOR-ELECT VARE IS SUSTAINED BY COMMITTEE

By a Vote of 8 to 6 Senate Elections Committee Dismissed the Petition of Contest Brought by William B. Wilson, Vare's Democratic Opponent—The Vote Was Divided Strictly on Party Lines—Wilson Has Been Given 25 Days in Which to File an Amended Complaint—Slush Fund Committee is Yet to Deal With the Vare Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—Dividing on strictly party lines, the senate elections committee voted today to dismiss for lack of particularities the petition of William B. Wilson, democrat, contesting the election of Senator-elect William S. Vare, republican, Pennsylvania, but agreed to give the contestant 25 days in which to file an amended complaint.

Immediately after the vote, which was 8 to 6, Senator Reed, of Missouri, chairman of the slush fund committee which unearthed heavy expenditures in Vare's primary campaign announced that tomorrow he would ask the senate to direct the elections committee to "proceed forthwith" in considering Wilson's contest and in counting the ballots in six Pennsylvania counties where the defeated democratic candidate claims there was conspiracy.

The contest which Wilson has brought is wholly apart from the challenge to Vare's right to sit in the senate made by Reed as chairman of the slush fund committee. That case against the Pennsylvanian has been referred to Reed's committee with instructions to conduct a further inquiry into both the primary campaign and the general election.

While the senate committee was acting in the Vare case, a house elections committee continued to hear evidence on the right of the senator-elect's chief counsel, James M. Beck, to sit in the house as a representative from Vare's old congressional district in Pennsylvania. Beck's right is challenged on the ground that he was not a legal resident of the district when elected. The committee will hear final argument next Tuesday and then proceed to vote on the issue.

The senate committee session was a lively one with Reed of Missouri standing out vigorously against the republican majority. Those voting that the Wilson netition should be dismissed included:

Greene, of Vermont, and Moses of New Hampshire.

INTERNATIONAL LAW DEBATED AT HAVANA

HAVANA, Jan. 25—(AP)—The problem of the codification of international private law proved a stumbling block at the meeting of the committee on that subject today. After Eduardo Espinola, of Brazil, had presented a long study of the question in his report, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, of the American delegation, caused a commotion by announcing the opposition of the United States to the projected code.

"The United States delegation," said Judge O'Brien, "is not free to vote for the adoption of the code as it is now presented, because questions that are involved would be to us domestic questions. We have, as you know, 48 states, each sovereign and each having conceded to the general government certain powers. But the general government is bound by the constitution of the United States."

Antonio Bustamente, Cuba, had previously endorsed a fixed law code for the American republics, and later he explained the exact proposals. After a consultation between Judge O'Brien and James Brown Scott, Judge O'Brien went into further details as to the attitude of the United States, which, he said was not one of disinterest. He requested that the proposal be submitted for full study by the American delegation and that its attitude be guaged according to action taken in the future.

"Our desire," he added, "is to cooperate in every way possible, but to take no definite stand before an examination."

Senator Bustamente said there were two tendencies looking to the solution of the question of codification of international law—the first, a gradual progressive code; the second, the adoption of a fixed code of international private alw.

CHAMBERLIN UNABLE TO COMBAT GALE AND SNOW

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Clarence Chamberlin, conqueror of the Atlantic ocean by air, today met one of the hardest tests in his career as an aviator when, in the face of a near gale and snow, he attempted, unsuccessfully, to negotiate the dangerous air line over the Pennsylvania mountains.

The rugged mountains, held fast in the grip of winter, with the aid of the wind, threw back the challenger as he tried again and again to make a hop of less than one hundred miles from Middletown, Pa., to Altoona. He was forced down twice and the second time he decided to give the decision to the elements by leaving his small Sperry plane in Mifflin and complete his journey to this city by train. The plane was not damaged. His first landing was made at Newport, Pa.

"It was the hardest flight I ever tried," said the airman as he was met by a reception committee here.

At Mifflin, members of the Chamber of Commerce greeted Chamberlin, who after his bumpy ride, was slightly nauseated. He went to the home of a committee member where he rested a short time before boarding the train for Altoona.

The airman addressed a gathering of aviation enthusiasts at a theatre here tonight. He said he would return to Mifflin in the morning and make a hop to Johnstown, his next stop on a national tour.

FAILED TO REACH VERDICT IN PHILA. LIQUOR CASE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Failing to reach a verdict after deliberating nearly 24 hours, the jury of seven men and five women in federal district court trying the case of three alleged "master minds" behind the movements of the rum ship Bulko, were discharged today. The case was listed for re-trial February 6.

The Bulko was seized on September 10 last while attempting to unload a $500,000 liquor cargo in South Philadelphia.

The jury, which was locked up over night in a hotel, returned twice for instructions from Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, before whom the case was tried, after they had resumed their deliberations this morning.

The men tried are John McCambridge, said to be the owner of a fleet of tugs in New York; Jack Murphy, alleged super-cargo of the vessel, and Morris Rotman, supposed financial backer of the liquor shipment.

Four other defendants, Louis Feinberg, Max Feinberg, Julius Verkovitz and Max Friedman, also under indictment in connection with the Bulko's movements, will be tried when the case of the alleged "master minds" is concluded.

The action is returnable in the February term of superior court.

Neither Mr. Young nor his wife, who also is a school teacher here, would discuss the matter tonight. Young said that he might make a statement tomorrow.

ALIENIST TO TESTIFY FOR DEFENSE IN MATHWINK TRIAL AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 26.—That the defense of Sava Mathwink, 41, charged with the murder of Mrs. Anna Berkowitz at her home here on the night of November 4, would be based on an insanity plea, was given impetus as a general belief today when Dr. A. R. Diefendorf, of New Haven, psychiatrist, was present at court. Dr. Diefendorf admitted that he had been summoned to testify as an alienist for the defense. The insanity in this case will probably be based on emotions arising in a brain not fully developed to a point of normal intelligence. The defense paved the way for testimony of this nature today in introducing evidence tending to show bitter temporary emotions in the accused at the time of the shooting through the cross-examination of state witnesses, and scored rather heavily on this point by securing the reading of the coroner's inquest by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Windham county. While the inquest gave a frank confession of the burly Russian's intentions to kill and summed up in detail the weapons with which Mathwink was armed for the shooting, it gave evidence of a desire for revenge flaming into a burning rage which led to the fatality. The revenge was based on Mathwink's allegations that Jacob Berkowitz, husband of the slain woman and wealthy realtor had swindled the Russian of all his savings extending over 4 period of 16 years of work. Time and again during the inquest, Mathwink had said that his children were sick and that he had no money to buy things for them because "everything has been stolen." A copy of the evidence of the inquest was read from the witness stand by Coroner Bill.

While building up strong evidence of willful desire to murder, the state will stand ready to offset psychiatric evidence by the testimony of Dr. R. L. Leak, superintendent of the hospital at Middletown.

Berkowitz First Witness.

Jacob Berkowitz, real estate salesman and erstwhile farmer, and husband of the dead woman, was the first witness called this morning when the state resumed its evidence. Berkowitz occupied the stand for over one hour and a half and was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Attorney Harvey for the defense, especially with regard to the possibility of Mathwink's intention to kill the witness and not the entire family or any other member of it. The defense failed, however, to shake Berkowitz's statement that about the time Mathwink fired the shot which killed Mrs. Berkowitz, he had muttered words in the Russian language to the effect that he "would kill them all."

Bloody Clothes Exhibited.

In beginning his testimony, Berkowitz displayed a gray business suit, a shirt and collar and necktie bearing bloodstains as the result of the fight between himself and Mathwink following the shooting at the house and a chase with Mathwink at the pursuer down the street to the corner of Walnut and Valley streets. Berkowitz said that he had known the accused for about five years. He had sold a large farm in Pleasant Valley for Mathwink to Jacob Slater and subsequently that farm had come into the possession of Mrs. Berkowitz. The family had occupied it for about two months and in November, 1926, he purchased the residence at 275 Prospect street. He said that about the middle of last September, Mathwink had come into his yard on Prospect street and approaching him (Berkowitz) had asked for money, mentioning a mortgage of $6,000 on the Slater farm. Berkowitz said that when his wife had sought the place, the attorney who made the search had stated that the mortgage was held by Henry A. Bugbee, of this city. Getting no satisfaction, witness said Mathwink went away angry and said that he would look into the matter himself.

On the night of Friday, November 4, Berkowitz said he arrived home about 5:30 o'clock. About six o'clock the family were seated at the table in the kitchen participating of a meal. At the table were Mr. and Mrs. Berkowitz, their daughter Gertrude, 13, and the latter's chum, Marjorie Barrows, 16, resident of a neighboring house. Berkowitz and the Barrows girl sat facing the kitchen door leading off from a rear porch. Gertrude Berkowitz sat partly facing the door and Mrs. Berkowitz sat with her back to it. Berkowitz said he heard a noise at the door and looking up he saw it swung open and Mathwink stepped in holding a gun to his shoulder. With the exclamation, "I kill you all," spoken in Russian, Mathwink fired the gun. Mathwink said nothing about money, according to the witness and he asserted that he looked to him as if Mathwink aimed the shot at Mrs. Berkowitz who was just arising from the table. He heard the loud report and saw his wife drop to the floor. Berkowitz said he then ran toward Mathwink who was fussing with the gun with the apparent intention of reloading it. He grabbed the muzzle of the weapon and turned it upward "to protect the children." Berkowitz said he knew he would soon be overpowered and he ran from the house. As he ran from the back porch he claimed that a woman, whom he identified as Mrs. Mathwink despite the darkness, grabbed him, but he broke free and with Mathwink almost at his heels, he ran down from the house to Walnut street and down that to the intersection of Valley street where Mathwink caught up to him. During the chase, Berkowitz said that he heard another shot fired. At the intersection of the streets, Mathwink grappled with Berkowitz and struck him several times on the head with what he believed to be the butt of a revolver. This started his skull bleeding and he was also bleeding from his index finger which Mathwink had severely bitten in the struggle in the kitchen. Berkowitz said that men then came and separated them and at his request he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where he remained a patient over night.

Cross-Examined by Harvey.

In getting new angles of the description of the struggle for possession of the shotgun held by Mathwink in the kitchen, Attorney Harvey attempted to establish that Berkowitz and Mathwink both had hold of the gun when it was discharged, killing Mrs. Berkowitz. The witness reaffirmed his previous testimony, however.

Miss Marjorie Barrows, 16-year-old high school freshman and supper guest at the Berkowitz home on the night of the fatal shooting, was the next witness. Her testimony corroborated that of Berkowitz with regard to the shooting in most instances. She said that Matwink looked angry and talked loudly in a language she did not understand. She ran from the room when the two men struggled.

Ide Tells of Capture.

Merril Ide, 19, who was first to arrive at the scene of the fight between Mathwink and Berkowitz, near Valley street, testified that he saw the two men running down Walnut street. The first one, whom he described as being Berkowitz, was yelling for help and the police. He ran after the two man and saw Mathwink strike Berkowitz on the head once. Ide said that he applied an arm-lock on Mathwink and the latter ceased to struggle without further force. Other men then came and one of them gave him a revolver which he had secured from Mathwink. Ide then walked to the police headquarters with Mathwink. The latter walked without protest and uttered something about his money being stolen. Mathwink spoke quite loudly in a foreign language near the police station entrance and Captain of Police Frank McLean came out and escorted him inside. Ide said he turned the revolver over to the police officer and left.

Corroborates Ide's Testimony.

Leroy M. Roberts said that when he arrived at the corner of Walnut and Valley streets in his car he turned up Walnut street and saw the two men running down. He turned the car around and when he got back to the intersection about six men were standing there. At the request of one, he took Berkowitz to the hospital.

Andrew J. CSarey, a telephone repairman, said that he was near his home just off Spring street cleaning out debris from the gutter when he saw a man come running down Walnut street followed by another and larger man brandishing something over his head. He ran down and found Berkowitz bleeding from the head. Merril Ide had hold of Mathwink. The latter handed Carey a revolver and Carey gave it to Ide.

At this point, court recessed until two o'clock when Officer Arthur M. Hurley of the police department was called to the stand. He testified to receiving a call from police headquarters through the police telephone system, at 6:15 o'clock. When he arrived at the Berkowitz house he found Mrs. Berkowitz lying dead on the kitchen floor with part of her head blown off. The woman was lying in a pool of blood.

Captain of Police Frank McLean said that he got a telephone call from Mrs. Harry S. Gaucher, who occupied the second floor of the Berkowitz home and was told that there was trouble downstairs and an officer should be sent at once. He dispatched Officer Hurley. A little while later he heard the scuffle outside and went out to assist Ide in bringing Mathwink inside. He removed cartridges from Mathwink's pockets and locked the man up. Ide gave him the revolver.

Hormisdas Cyr, truck driver, testified to being one of those to be at the scene of the fight on Walnut street. He identified both men.

Dr. Frederick E. Wilcox said that he was summoned to the Berkowitz home. He found the woman dead and after a few minutes left, having learned that she had been shot.

Medical Examiner Testifies.

Medical Examiner Louis L. Mason testified to the position of the body on the kitchen floor and described how the skull had been blown open and pieces of flesh and brain spattered about the kitchen. The shot had entered over the right eye and torn practically the entire skull open. On order of Coroner Bill, he performed an autopsy. Attorney Torrey, examining the witness for the defense, then questioned Dr. Mason with regard to Mathwink's condition during the coroner's inquest held a few hours after the shooting and part of which Dr. Mason attended. The state's objection to this questioning was not sustained by Judge Yeomans. Dr. Mason said that he had been amazed at the calm deportment of the accused during his testimony of the shooting as made to the coroner.

Donald E Crane, a wood worker, testified to removing a window casing from the Berkowitz house and finding the lead slug which had Leen fired from the shotgun and which had caused the death of the woman. The slug had entered the casing at a height of four feet 10 inches from the floor. The lead slug and window casing entered as exhibits.

Dr. Michael D. Riordan gave testimony of his treatment of Jacob Berkowitz at the hospital on the night of the shooting. He said the man suffered from four contusion wounds on the head, inflicted by a blunt instrument, lacerations on the index finger and abrasions on the right lip.

Coroner Bill Submits Confession.

County Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson, took the witness stand at 3:45 o'clock and was the last witness for the day. Two inquests were held in the case, one on the night of November 4 and another at Brooklyn jail on November 7. In explaining a copy of the inquest, evidence which he subsequently read at the request of the defense, Coroner Bill said that although warned that whatever he said might be used either for or against him in a court action, the accused made a frank confession. Summarily Mathwink said that Berkowitz had stolen his money which he had worked 16 years to save. He got mad and after going to Hickey's drug store to get medicine for his sick children he returned home and decided to go after Berkowitz. He took the shotgun and shells, the revolver and two boxes of cartridges and a hatchet and walked to the Berkowitz house. When he opened the kitchen door he claimed to have said, "Jake, give me my money." He said that Berkowitz lunged at him and he fired. Berkowitz grabbed him by the throat and then ran from the house and he gave chase. "I was awful mad. I shoot, that's all," he told the coroner. He had testified that he had aimed the shot at Berkowitz. While a review of his murderous act broken at frequent intervals with mention of his sick "kids" and his need of money, was being read, Mathwink displayed his first sign of outward emotion since the night of the shooting. His hands twiched nervously and tears began to stream down his cheeks. He brushed these quickly away and put effort in retaining his composure.

TOWN MEETING VOTES FOR NEW STATE AID ROAD

W. R. Snyder was elected chairman and William I. Allyn clerk. First Selectman Frederick W. Burton read the proposed contract to be signed and answered many questions. After some discussion it was voted to give the selectmen power to sign the contract, which they did and the same has been forwarded to Hartford. The proposed road will run from the Preston line, near Pequetanuck, to Ledyard Center, then through Gutheriers to the Groton line.

DANIELSON

HIGH WIND RAISES HAVOC IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 25—Plate glass crashed, roofing was ripped off, poles and trees blown over, windows smashed and radio aerials torn down in a gale that raged throughout the day and during last night in Danielson.

Getting under full headway late last night, the gale viciously swept a heavy southerly rainstorm before it. The intensity of the storm was so great as to make dwellings shake and quiver under its impact and to send many an object in its path swirling into some new location.

At the Buick salesroom in the Keystone block a large plate glass window collapsed under the driving force of the storm. A window in the rear of the Hyde block was torn off by the storm and roofing was loosened and curled up on the southerly side of the Windham County Savings bank building. Near the ridge pole on the southeasterly corner of the Baptist church a row of shingles were loosened and were intermittently flipped on end by the big blow. All over town walks and streets were littered today with branches torn from trees. From the country districts nearby stories began to filter through this afternoon of highways being blocked by fallen trees, which in some instances broke wires in toppling over. With all the windy fuss, very little damage to the lines of wire services companies had been reported in this territory.

The Hand Book of Killingly grange has been issued for 1928. It is of particular value to members and interesting to anyone. It lists the officers of the organizations, "Our Grange Platform for 1928," the lecturer's program for the year, committees and members and past masters.

Killingly grange is enterting the 39th year of its existence. The Hand Book notes that during these long years there have been periods of depression and periods of prosperity, and points out that the periods of prosperity can be increased if all work for the mutual benefit of all the members.

The platform includes a plan to have the best ladies' degree team in Connecticut, to exemplify third and fourth degrees and to place it at the end of all such teams in the state.

Another proposal is to start a building fund for a Grange hall. Still another is the development of a Grange orchestra, that interest in meetings may be increased. An increase in farmer membership is also an expressed ambition, for the Grange is fundamentally agricultural.

Walter G. Bruce of the faculty of Killingly high school, agricultural department is master of the grange for this year and has with him an able corps of officers.

Frank Gagnon died today at the town farm near Dayville. He had been an inmate of the institution for only three weeks. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and brought here. Mr. Gagnon was about 82 years of age. He was a native of Canada, but had lived in Danielson the greater part of his life and for years was a capable and faithful employe of the Crystal Water company. He has no relatives hereabouts insofar as could be learned today, but is believed to have nieces or nephews resident in Willimantic.

This morning the funeral of Eugene Baril was held from the home in Plainfield, with services at St. John's church, Rev. J. H. Landry, Rev. John Carey, Voluntown, and Rev. Oscar Norman of Moosup were the officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. John's cemetery. The bearers were Charles Lavallee, Joseph Clocher, Joseph Lavesque, Napoleon Bissonette, Frederick Normandin and Arthur Fortier. Fr. Landry conducted the committal service. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral conductor.

Of the several thousand people who are liable to pay a personal tax in the town of Killingly, all but about 50 have discharged the obligation as it applies to the list of 1927. Since January 14, the time limit for paying this tax, numbers have paid the tax and an additional dollar penalty for delaying about doing so, and still others have heeded the notices relative to impending summary action and court appearances and settled up.

Now only about 50 of these taxes are due to come in. They are owed by people in various communities of the town. It was understood today that a list is being prepared to be handed to town court officials, that they may take the necessary action for collection.

In going over the list in final checkups it has been established that some of those against whom this tax has been assessed are no longer residents of the town, that there had been some duplication of names, that some stood to be rebated on account of being assessed against exempt persons and for other reasons. The assessments on the 1926 list, it was said today, all have been cleared up.

Relative to court action to collect remaining overdue personal taxes there is this to be said about what the charges are in such instances. In no case has the payment of the overdue tax and the court costs amounted to more than $6.62. This is mentioned because a silly story has gained wide circulation that the costs amounted to $200 in one case recently disposed of in the town court. On its face, this statement is ridiculous, but, nevertheless, it gained wide circulation.

Goodyear church news of the week has to do with last Sunday's services, when, in the morning, the pastor, Rev. Charles A. Downs preached on the subject of Hunger, taking for a text Psalms 84:2. Miss Gladys Child and Mrs Arthur Longbottom each sang a solo during the service. The weekly choir meeting was held at the parsonage. The Woman's club held its biweekly meeting with Mrs. Joseph Green.

The prospect of getting an ice crop this winter is becoming more than an abstract subject with a great many people who, having nothing to do with the ice business other than as customers of the dealers. Last night's high temperature, fog, gale and heavy rain played old hob with the ice that formed to a thickness of several inches during the cold spell of last week. It was a bad setback for so late in the season. It has wrought of visions in many a household of the use of "imported" ice and materially higher prices that the native product costs when July and August are providing sizzling days next summer.

Mrs. Mary F. Taylor of Webster came this afternoon to spend a vacation period with relatives in Danielson.

Basketball, Millville vs. Danielson, town hall tonight.—Adv.

February 6 has been designated as Ladies' night in Killingly grange. The literary committee will be in charge of the program.

Several hundred members of St. James' parish attended the weekly whist held in halls in the Hyde building this evening.

Danielson's Winter Baseball league is talking these winter days of plans for next season's Twilight league, which will be the third for the organization.

Colonel Theodore D. Taylor of the Army Base at Boston came to Danielson today to check up relative to the accident in which Sergeant Thomas Freels was so seriously injured in an automobile accident in which an army truck figured at Hall's hill, South Killingly Tuesday. Mrs. Freels accompanied him and they visited the injured sergeant at the hospital in Putnam. Freels has a fracture at the base of the skull and his condition remained critical today. It developed from Colonel Taylor's visit that Sergeant Freels was taking a day off Tuesday, and thought he would like the motor trip from Boston to Hartford. Another officer here to investigate the accident was Capt. C. D. Hall of Providence. The damaged army truck is in the state armory garage here, and is to remain there pending instructions as to its repair.

Some sore arms were being tenderly nursed today by Service battery members who took a second inoculation against typhoid fever at the state armory last night. The inoculations were made by Captain Edmond L. Douglas of New London.

HUGHEY DUFFY'S PICTURE RECALLS EARLY BALL GAMES

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 25—An old time fan, always an admirer of Hugh Duffy, and a close follower of his many successes in the baseball world, has a cabinet photograph of Duffy, taken in 1888, by W. H. Brown of the East Main Street Highlands. As some of the older school stop to look at the picture in Charlie Carey's window, they recall the time, back in '88, when Hugh worked in the stocking factory, then operated by the late I. F. Lewis, in a small building on Green street, situated about opposite the present residence of Maxcy Seymore.

It was in Jewett City that "Hughey" Duffy began the game of baseball, in one of the amateur home town teams, managed and financed by George A. Ross, now of Wellesley and Lisbon. His genius which later was developed to such a marked degree, that he "made the grade" time and time again, was first awakened here. The lad's picture served at once to show the cleverness of the photographers, and a young man of model physique. Hugh is around 60 today, and this season has been offered the berth of baseball coach for Boston college in place of Slattery, who is to manage a team in the major league.

A letter was received here Wednesday from Charles B. Palmer, member of the board of directors of the Connecticut State Rifle association, telling of the status of local riflemen, in connection with the practically assured formation of the Eastern Connecticut Rifle league. Mr. Palmer is giving the information to all in this vicinity desiring to try out for the team, that Supt. Alfred Stebbins of the Ashland Cotton Co., will make known the necessary requirements.

All local marksmen, desiring to qualify for the new team, may make use of the rifle range in the state armory on McKinley avenue, Norwich. Mr. Palmer a Griswold man, and one of the leading marksmen of Connecticut, has to say also, that the high scored targets, which have been made by the members of the one-time Jewett City Rifle club, will stand in competition with the other rifle clubs of New England.

Beginning in the early evening Tuesday, a southerly storm of marked intensity, with a furious gale, lasted until after daybreak Wednesday. Shortly before midnight the electric light men were out on the job, hunting storm damage. Trouble on Slater Hill, resulting in a short circuit, left a section of the borough's system in darkness for a short time.

The gale destroyed eleven sections of one of the decorated windows in the tower of the Congregational church, below the bell deck.

Andrew McNicol, of the church committee, found the lead, plate divisions, badly damaged, and had his workmen remove the whole sash Wednesday afternoon. Close to an inch of rain fell while the high wind took toll in dead branches from the borough trees and shrubery.

The members of the Ritchie family here are grief-stricken at the sudden death of Mrs. Herbert Whittaker in Norwich. She was Mrs. Henry Ritchie's niece, the daughter of her brother.

The annual meeting of the Catholic Woman's council was held Monday evening. The officers elected are: Mrs. E. Shea vice president; Mrs. E. J. Jordoin, treasurer; Miss Josephine Raszenas, secretary, Mrs. T. A. Rioux was appointed sick committee.

Riding the girders—matching muscle against steel

But no stiff aching muscles for men of the Turner Construction Co.

WHETHER you're riding the girders a hundred feet up in the air, holding the drill, or tossing the red hot rivets—a construction man is using his muscles all day long.

Out in the open, too, mostly—sometimes in a biting wind or a chilling drizzle.

Unless you look out for yourself, your muscles are likely to get stiff and painful—or you find yourself laid up with a bad cold or an attack of rheumatism.

The men of the Turner Construction Company in New York are an especially fine, healthy-looking lot of men. We asked them what they do to keep in such splendid condition.

About half of them said, "Sloan's is our great standby."

It's the same everywhere on strenuous jobs

Active men and women on strenuous jobs all over the world have known for years that there is nothing like Sloan's Liniment for limbering up stiff muscles, for warding off the effects of exposure and for taking care of all sorts of minor injuries.

One of the men of the Turner Construction Company who told us that they rely on Sloan's to keep their muscles fit for the job

A painter tells this remarkable story of quick relief: "A severe pain came in my instep while I was on top of a roof painting. I was two and a half miles from home, and had to walk. How I suffered, no one knows. It was something terrible. A friend of mine gave me some Sloan's and by ten o'clock it commenced to quiet down and I rested well. The next morning I rubbed it on again. The way it hurt, I thought I never would be able to finish my paint job, but I went right out and walked the two and a half miles and the pain left me entirely and I finished my job." Frank Daton Hayes, St. Louis Park, Minn.

And read this story of relief from a painful injury:

"I tore a ligament loose in my hand. I tried other remedies, but none of them helped me, until I used Sloan's Liniment. It destroyed the pain completely. While I was trying other medicines I had to use my one hand, and by the time I found Sloan's it was very much fatigued so I applied Sloan's. In one-half hour it was all right. I wish you would inform everyone who is suffering. I cannot give Sloan's enough gratitude." Robert Whisler, 127 N. Benton St., Mansfield, Ohio.

Sloan's Liniment requires no tiresome rubbing. Just pat it on over the place where the pain is. At once you feel a pleasant, glowing warmth. Knotted tendons relax, stiffened joints limber up as fresh blood begins circulating through the aching spot. The pain stops because the cause is removed.

Get a bottle today—35 cents at all druggists. Then tonight, at the end of your day's work, try it and see for yourself what quick, genuine comfort it gives. Use it for:

Rheumatism, Lame muscles, Sciatica, Stiff neck, Lumbago, Colds and congestions, Neuralgia, Sprains and bruises

Here's what a company doctor who cares for the ills of hundreds of working people every year says of Sloan's: "People whose work exposes them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

ROADS NEEDING ATTENTION

A North Scituate correspondent of the Providence Journal writes to that paper in advocacy of more attention for what may be regarded as secondary country roads. He writes, "There are hundreds of acres of beautiful country in Rhode Island that await only comfortable transportation to bring them into immediate occupancy by seekers after fine country estates or farms capable of profitable productivity. The most important part of the problem of medical attention to those who choose to live in the country is the one of transportation and passable country roads would save each year a vast amount of suffering and even deaths. There is no doubt either that the deep rutted uneven country roads in winter and the veritable seas of mud which they become in the spring interfere at all times with the efficient service which our splendidly organized state police are ready at all times to render."

This reference to Rhode Island roads applies equally well to the roads of Connecticut, to the road benefits which the residents of the country are entitled to, to the facilities which ought to be provided for the doctors, the state police and even for the rural mail carriers. It concerns highway improvement which would be of much value to many of the highway users because of the short cuts that would be afforded and the relief to traffic that would follow on the main thoroughfares.

There is great need for the giving of just such attention as is called for to the highway between Preston City and Voluntown and then on to connect with the present macadam road at Oneco or the Nooseneck road in Rhode Island, either of which would afford a big cut in the distance between Norwich and Providence and would open up a territory which is not only attractive farming country but wherein are located mill villages and many residents. This section of New London county should get the attention which is needed for the good of those located there and also for the advantage that would come from opening up a large section which now has brothersome handicaps quite in keeping with what has been noted above.

COASTING FATALITIES

From Millbury, Mass., comes a report concerning the fatal injury of a five year old boy who crashed into an automobile while coasting. It was the first fatal coasting accident in that town in several years, but there are many towns which cannot claim such immunity. There have been conspicuous instances where many young people have lost their lives in a similar way while coasting.

In the Millbury case it is believed that the child did not see the auto approach, and it can be easily believed. In these days when vehicles travel so quickly and silently there is little or no warning, and this is particularly true of cross streets. The fact is that those speeding down a hill on a sled are not able to insure their own protection, they are not in a position to get out of the way of traffic that suddenly appears and too often it is the case that there is warning neither for the coaster nor for the cross street traffic.

Such conditions make it apparent that either there must be a stop put to vehicular traffic on and across such coasting hills, or else coasting must be prohibited at such places. For the protection of human life it is preferable that the coasters should be required to restrict their activities to hills which are safe for such purposes. When traffic can be sent elsewhere during certain hours it is a commendable move, but it isn't always possible to deny vehicles the use of important arteries of travel. Frequently coasting hills cross those streets which are the most used. In such instances there is nothing to do in the interest of safety but stop the coasting.

Last winter there were many coasting fatalities. The lack of snow this winter has doubtless reduced the number, but whenever there is snow it becomes more and more evident that coasting in the streets is today faced with a danger which means serious accidents or deaths unless restricted. Safety first must be the governing factor under such conditions.

PROTECTING BIRDS

There are friends of the birds which have established sanctuaries that birds of all kinds can be protected and their extinction prevented.

There are laws which have been enacted for the similar protection of the migratory birds, and there's no doubt but what a great amount of good in the desired direction is being accomplished. But while these individual, federal and state acts have made a good beginning there is an opportunity and a need for more of such work being done. It is possible for the government to provide similar sanctuaries at many points throughout the country where the migratory birds would be sure of protection as they go from one state or one section to another.

The possibilities of such work is being presented to congress which is asked to adopt the migratory bird conservation bill. Through this measure there would be cooperation between the federal and state governments in the acquisition or lease of suitable lands to be designated as bird refuges. The belief is that this would insure for all time a reasonable abundance of the game, song and insectivorous birds which go from one part of the country to another. In case the condition ever developed that such sanctuaries became so overcrowded that sickness or starvation endangered the birds in such refuges, provisions is made for opening them as shooting grounds under careful regulations.

There are birds which have become extinct because they have lacked just such protection as would be afforded in such reserves. There are others which are now threatened with extinction and it is with the idea of giving protection to others which may yet be so endangered that efforts are being urged at the present time.

It is too late to do anything after the milk has been spilled. It would be unwise to wait until there was only one, or even a few, of the various kinds of migratory birds left before doing something to protect them. The prevention of their extinction is the aim and the earlier the action the more effective will be the results.

THE SALE OF THE TIMES

A newspaper deal of unusual size and importance was consummated when the Hartford Times was acquired by Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, the owner of a group of newspapers in New York state and New Jersey. This is, of course, only one of the many changes which have taken place in the newspaper world within the past few years. Some of the big and prominent ones, some of the oldest ones have changed hands or gone out of business through absorption or consolidation.

In the sale of the Times the change takes place at the height of its prosperity. Therein lies one of the surprises that a disposition of the property would be entertained, but it can be fully appreciated, as the report of the sale sets forth that "it was one of the largest transactions of this kind in New England newspaper history." It is a case which discloses the advantages of a single and the handicaps of a divided control.

The Times has been a Connecticut institution directed by the Burr family. The Burr policies long since made it a success and they have been adhered to since the passing of the Burrs. For it to pass so quickly thereafter into other hands prompts the quandary as to what Willie O. Burr would think of it if he could be told.

That the Times has fallen into good hands as long as it was on the market is firmly believed. Mr. Gannett is a successful publisher, a newspaper owner of ability who cannot fail to have full regard for the territory which his latest acquisition serves. In fact Mr. Gannett must be looked upon as decidedly fortunate in being able to obtain such an excellent newspaper and plant and The Bulletin hastens to welcome him into the Connecticut newspaper field.

THE ALASKAN PANHANDLE

A liberal member of the British Columbia government has filed notice of a motion to the Canadian government urging the acquisition of the Alaskan panhandle as Canadian territory. This concerns the long, narrow stretch of territory along the Pacific coast to the west of British Columbia which is desired under the claim that it is necessary for the proper development of the northern part of British Columbia.

Of course such a motion can be carried and the Canadian government can even seek to purchase that 800 miles of coast front, but there's nothing to give it any assurance that it would be successful in the negotiations.

Just why there should be any barrier to the development of the northern part of British Columbia is difficult to understand. If it seeks outlets to the Pacific at other points than now prevail they could unquestionably be obtained without buying Alaskan territory. Canada sought an outlet in the east down through New England and it has obtained railroad lines which carry its business to three ports in this part of the country and through which a large volume of goods moves into Canada. It isn't the only means of development which eastern Canada has but it is able to make full use of it.

That a similar arrangement might be carried out in western Canada across the Alaskan panhandle is entirely possible. It might not be the same thing as if Canada actually owned the territory but the barriers which are referred to would be removed and the northern part of British Columbia would be able to get transportation and other facilities which it seeks, or which are sought for it.

GREGORY OUTDOES HIMSELF

"Good morning, Mr. Gregory." Nora stood in the doorway and there was an uneasy glint in her eye that bespoke unfinished breakfast dishes. ""Tis not often we see you now that you are married." Gregory Spaulding grinned at his mother's cook.

"It keeps me pretty busy, Minnie. I'm rushing down to the office now, but I dropped in to see if I could get you to join a little conspiracy."

"Me, Mr. Gregory?" Nora's face was incredulous. "If you do be telling me it's something I should belong in, I'll join today."

"You're a member," pronounced Gregory. "Here's the story. When my wife was in school she knew a nasty little red-headed girl who was specializing in domestic science. She tried to get Gloria to take it, but Gloria wasn't interested. Now this girl is bringing her husband out to dinner, and Gloria's scared stiff for fear she can't turn out the kind of dinner the other girl puts across. Do you understand?"

"I do not, then. It sounds like no kind of club I ever belonged to."

"We're getting to the club part now. The organization is to show this domestic science person where to get off. Will you help?"

"Sure, don't I always be helping when I can?"

"Nora, you're a good egg! It's this way. Gloria's all right on the regular stuff, but her baking is pretty sad—"

Gregory came home earlier than usual that evening. Officially he was anxious to help his wife, but actually he could no longer wait for the praise which he felt was his due.

"I suppose you'll admit," he beamed from the kitchen door, "that it was a fair, insidious idea. It certainly smells unbeatable. Rolls and doughnuts and cookies and cakes, unless my eyes deceive me. Nora certainly stretched herself a few, didn't she?"

"Too much, I'm afraid. Jane will never believe it. She'll ask if I baked them myself, and I can't lie to her, can I?"

"Leave it to Gregory. I'll fix it so that she'll never think of asking."

He strode masterfully across the room, selected two blue bowls from his wife's neat shelves, divided the contents of a convenient egg between them, and sifted flour over the debris.

"Gregory! What do you think you're doing? You're making a frightful mess." Gregory paused in his orgy of disorder.

"Look around you, woman. Have you no eye for artistic detail? You're supposed to have been baking in here all day and you haven't even got your oven turned on. Smear up that rolling pin a little and I'll show you how to pull this off properly."

There was a desolation in Gloria's heart as she viewed the wreck of her little kitchen, but she was forced to concede before dinner was half over that her husband's plan contained elements of genius. Waiting until Jane had been maneuvered into a position near the sitting room door, he had slid Nora's delectable pan of "pocketbooks" out of the oven and inquired if they were done. A more suspicious person than Jane would never have thought of making inquiries after that. Up to the moment of serving dessert Gloria was bursting with silent pride over the efficiency of her husband. Then, after the tragedy she was almost too weak to state her mind.

"Can you ever forgive me?" pleaded Gregory when their guests had left.

"I guess so." Gloria giggled reminiscently. "If you only could have seen Jane's face."

"I did see it. It wasn't much of a face, but I didn't have hysterics over it."

"I mean right after you took that cake out of the oven." Gregory smiled nervously.

"How was I supposed to know that people didn't bake cakes with the frosting on?"

"Never mind, big boy. It came out all right. Her husband certainly shut her up."

"I admire that man," remarked Gregory seriously. "What did he say? I couldn't hear."

"He said home-cooked food tasted so good after the delicatessen stuff he had been eating that he didn't care how it had been baked. You really should have seen Jane's face."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Misquotations.

Mr. Editor: "Let him That is without sin among you cast the first stone at her."

The above garbled quotation from the famous passage of Scripture found in the 8th chapter of John, 7th verse, is almost invariably presented in this manner by speakers and writers. In fact, I have yet to find a person to quote the verse correctly. Even The Man Who Talks has fallen into the same error. If one wishes to use this quotation it would seem desirable to quote it as spoken by Jesus in his admonition to the Pharisees, namely—"He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." The erroneous quotation is entirely at variance with, and has an opposite meaning to, the verse as it appears in the Bible. Nothing is said about casting the first stone. This would imply a probability of the quickest accuser casting a stone in advance of his other coadjutors.

Whereas in the true quotation the implication is that any of the accusers in order to prove their innocence of the sin, with which they charged the woman, are challenged to produce evidence of the absence of evil from their personalities by casting a stone, not the first stone, i. e., that was the suggestion of Jesus irrespective of whether the potential stone casting accuser was first or last.

Another misquotation is often made from St. James, as: "Behold how great a fire a little matter kindleth," whereas, St. James states: "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth," which puts a different construction on the passage.

Also a monstrosity in misquoting is sometimes let loose by unthinking people, to wit:

"A man convinced against his will
Is of the same opinion still."

This is too absurd to dwell on and, moreover, an impossible condition of mind.

The true quotation from this author is:

"He that complies against his will
Is of his own opinion still."

We also hear that: "A miss is as good as a mile." The word "miss" has several meanings and, therefore, the statement is rendered ambiguous.

The true proverb reads: "A miss of an inch is as good as a mile," which is much more specific.

"Look before you leap," is garbled from "And look before you ere you leap." Thus, these quotations became distorted, dislocated, disrupted, dismembered, dismantled, disfigured and divested of all sense as a final alliterative comment.

"When ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

YOUR HEALTH

The Periodic Health Examination

By Walter Gay Lough, M. D., New York, Member Gorgas Memorial.

In consideration of the periodic health examination, four clear and distinct questions present themselves to one's mind:

First: Just what is meant by a periodic health examination?

Second: What is the real value of a periodic health examination?

Third: By whom is such a service to be performed?

Fourth: How often should a health examination be made?

Now as to the first question, by a periodic health examination is meant a complete examination of the body from head to toe, and a survey of personal hygiene, at some definite period during the year. This includes a careful examination of the skin, eyes, ears, sinuses, nose, throat, teeth, tonsils, heart, blood pressure, abdomen, urinalysis, organs of reproduction, bony structure, and the extremities, with particular reference to the feet and fallen arches, which cause many cases of backache. The foregoing should be done in all cases and, when deemed necessary, blood examination, X-ray, and whatever else may be indicated, should be made in order to give the health client the best advice. Only in this way can defects, however slight, be revealed.

The second question, as to what is the value or purpose of the health examination. The answer to this question is the prolongation of life. The value lies in the detection of any manifestations of disease in its very incipiency, so that a proper regime may be instituted to prevent its development. If the health client is in sound health, a program should be given to conserve his health. If infection in the mouth, sinuses, teeth, tonsils or any other part be found, the immediate institution of procedures to eradicate the infection should be advised. Recommendations as to health habits, exercise, diet, recreation, work and a host of others will be included in this examination.

The third question—by whom is the periodic health examination to be made? I should say emphatically that the family physician is the logical person to carry out the periodic health examination. He knows your eccentricities, peculiarities, your temperament and environment. The family physician anticipates your condition many years hence. He will make a mental picture of you and will keep a record of your condition for comparison in the years to follow.

If the health examination reveals disease of one sort or another, and the management of such a condition is not within the province of the family physician, he will refer you to the proper specialist who will perform such service. The family physician should be your confidante and your guide. He will be able to take into account your habits, worries and difficulties of various sorts and help you in the solution of your problems.

The fourth question—How often should the periodic health examination be made? This will vary according to the findings in the first health examination and according to the best judgment of the physician. If the health client is found to be perfectly well, and in the case of an adult, probably once a year is sufficient. However, if the individual feels below par or at any time has been afflicted with an infection, no matter how simple, an examination should be made very soon thereafter and repeated as often as the family physician deems necessary.

Finally, the periodic health examination, when carried out intelligently and when the health client and family physician are in complete accord, will prove to be the best assurance anyone can have for a prolonged, happier, healthier and more useful life.

Stories That Recall Others

"Buttonholer Is Coming."

Mother had told Marjory, age four, that when grandmother came she would sew some buttons on her dress and work some buttonholes.

A few days later when she was informed that her grandmother would arrive that day she said, "Oh, goodie, my button and buttonholer is coming."

Thing-a-Ma-Jigge.

She entered the store and said, "I want some of those-ph, those thing-a-ma-jigs that stick out from your book. You know what I mean."

"I'm afraid I don't know just what you mean. What are they called?" she was asked.

"I don't know, but everybody has some. They are white, kinda round; they are stickers, they are 15 cents a box. You use them so you can use the same notebook for half a dozen subjects. They have 'stickum' on them. Yes, those are it. What do you call them?"

"Index tabs," was the unromantic reply.

Former Norwich Leaders

Gardiner Greene.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Oct. 31, 1895)

The death of Gardiner Greene, as announced in Wednesday's Bulletin, caused a feeling of profound regret to be expressed in all quarters of the city at the passing away of one so universally loved and respected.

Gardiner Greene was a son of the late William P. Greene, who was a native of Boston, but resided in Norwich for more than forty years. Gardiner Greene was born in Boston September 19, 1822, and in 1824 came to this city with his father, who engaged in business as part owner and agent of the Thames Manufacturing company, who had invested a large capital in the purchase of a mill privilege at the Falls.

The son, Gardiner Greene, entered Yale college and graduated in 1842. He then took a full course at the law school of Harvard university and obtained the degree of bachelor of laws in 1845. One of his classmates in college was the late Rev. Edward W. Gilman, D. D., of this city. Mr. Greene never practiced law.

Meanwhile the father, William P. Greene, had acquired the esteem and respect of the community. He was an energetic and large hearted man, literary in his tastes, but with profound sagacity in financial and business concerns. He was chosen the first president of the Thames bank and held the office for sixteen years. He was also mayor of the city and in a tribute to him the beautiful village of Greeneville received its name. When he died in June, 1864, his sons had worked into the various manufacturing industries in which he was interested.

Gardiner Greene became manager of the Falls company and the Shetucket company and held this position for years until the stock of the company was transferred. He then resided where the Hon. David A. Wells lives and he carried on the business of these industries ably and successfully. He was associated in business with his brothers, the late James Lloyd Greene and William P. Greene.

Gardiner Greene married Miss Mary R. Adams, a native of Alexandria, Va., who is a sister of Judge Beardsley's wife of Utica, N. Y., and of the late Mrs. James B. Goddard of Norwich. Mrs. Greene survives him and also one son, Gardiner Greene, Jr., of this city. Mrs. William G. Ely of this city and Mrs. Jeffery of Boston are sisters of the deceased.

Gardiner Greene was a trustee of the Free Aacdemy and was an active member of Christ church, being warden there for many years. He was held in high esteem for his integrity and estimable qualities, which were united with a pure life and an absence of ostentation.

BILL WOULD PROHIBIT SLANDER OVER THE RADIO

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 25.—(AP)—A bill "to prohibit slander over, through, and by means of what is commonly known as the radio," was introduced in the Rhode Island senate today by Senator Maurice Robinson, democrat, of Providence.

The bill provides for a fine of $500, or a jail sentence not over six months or both for a person found guilty of "falsely uttering or publishing words over the radio which would blacken the memory of one woh is dead, or impeach the honesty, integrity, virtue of reputation or publish the natural defects of one who is alive so as to expose him to public hatred, contempt, ridicule or financial injury."

Some marriages are failures because parties quit dishing out polite falsehoods after the ceremony.

Says F. H. Marble. This is Nature's Signal of "Danger Ahead."

Fred H. Marble, Danielson, Conn., says in his own home paper, the Danielson Transcript: "My bladder bothered me 4 or 5 times every night. After taking Keller's Lithiated Buchu a few days I saw I was improving. Now I am not troubled at all. They have also relieved my friend Elmer Martin. I will tell or write my experience to anyone."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes "Getting up nights." The tablets cost 3c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Geo. Engler's, druggist.

CUT HIGHWAY TREES WITHOUT GETTING PERMISSION

After having cut down two large elm trees and girdled a third on the Center Groton road, a state aid highway, Dominic Ceravolo of Center Groton was told Tuesday by Selectman Henry J. Latham to refrain from any further cutting pending an investigation by State Tree Warden Luther Keith, who was to come to Groton.

Mr. Ceravolo had planned to install a gasoline filling station on the Center Groton road, on property west of Haley's corners. He, according to First Selectman Clark B. Whaley, recently applied to the board of selectmen for permission to remove trees which were in the way of the proposed station. The selectmen informed him that they had no jurisdiction to allow him a permit to cut trees on the state road and told him to apply to Mr. Keith for the permission.

Tuesday the selectmen received complaint that the trees were being removed and the order to stop the work was given, but prior to that time two large trees had been felled, and a third had been girdled preparatory to being felled. The selectmen then were in communication with the state tree warden, who stated that he would come to Groton.

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY WAS BIBLE STUDY TOPIC

At the weekly Bible study for men Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A., the topic was "Social Responsibility," and the scripture used was James, 2nd chapter, first to 17th verses. Among other points the following were brought out: For years people tried to find destiny in individualism and in more recent years they have swung away over to the other extreme, the group, the community. While going to church, forms, ceremonies and creeds are probably important, they are a comparatively small part of real religion. The man who, though he lives a good, clean life, and is a Christian so far as his habits are concerned, but stops there, is still a selfish man; he needs to learn that service to others is an important part of life. We cannot serve God without serving our fellowmen. Faith is very necessary in every phase of life. It is very strange that while men recognize that faith plays an important part in all secular life, some fail or refuse to use it in the religious realm. Practically faith demonstrates itself in works, else it is not real faith. I am my brother's keeper insofar as I can help him, and I am obligated to help the other man bear his burden.
